PREFACE

The present volume is not a revision of the author's "Latin for Beginners," but is an entirely new book. However, all features of the earlier book that have been highly commended and have proved their value have been retained. Chief among these are the separation of the special vocabularies from the lessons and the insertion of frequent reviews.

The body of the book is divided into two parts: fifty-six lessons for the first half year and fifty-four for the second. While greater in number than in "Latin for Beginners," the lessons are much shorter and simpler, and are designed, in most cases, for a single recitation period. Two optional lessons have been added, covering matter that some teachers prefer to include in the work of the first year. The remainder of the book up to the reviews is supplementary in character, and is intended to diversify and enrich the regular work through the lessons, and to supply reading matter after the lessons are completed. Some classes will be able to use more of this material, some less; but all will be able to draw something interesting from it.

The vocabulary has been limited to only five hundred words, averaging less than five new words per lesson. These words have been carefully selected from standard word lists, and are listed on pages 357–360 for convenience of reference and review. Nearly all the words are Cæsarian, and more than ninety per cent are used in Cæsar five or more times. Still, the vocabulary is of a general rather than of a military character, and most of the words are found also in Cicero and Vergil.

The principles of syntax discussed have been reduced to the bare essentials, the author feeling strongly that the tendency still prevailing in some quarters to include the more difficult constructions in the work of the first year is a very mistaken one. The fundamental principles of English grammar are compared with the Latin, and constructions are presented from the standpoint of English. The order of presentation is systematic, and related constructions are treated together.

Connected reading in the form of dialogues and stories is introduced as early as possible. The material is abundant and very simple. It includes famous Greek myths and many legends of ancient Rome, and is designed to arouse and hold the interest of the young. The supplementary reading comprises selections for sight translation, a Latin play, and a story which is intended to serve as an introduction to Cæsar. If not used the first year, it will be found very helpful at the beginning of the second.

Great emphasis is laid throughout the book on word formation and derivation. Matters of derivation are discussed in many paragraphs, and some entire lessons are devoted to this important and practical subject. Furthermore, the words in the special vocabularies are accompanied by parallel columns of related words, and these are again called for in the vocabulary reviews.

The book is very fully illustrated. While a few pictures have been inserted for the general purpose of interesting pupils in Rome and the Romans, the great majority of the pictures are illustrative of the stories they accompany and were prepared for that specific purpose. Those illustrating the legends of ancient Rome are reproductions of some famous historical pictures published by Paravia and Company of Rome. The colored plates are from original paintings by Mr. M. McGregor Jamieson of New York. Particular attention is called to the series of pictures in the chapter entitled "Original Stories," pages 263–271. Teachers are urged to make frequent use of this material for original work in substitution for exercises found in the lessons.

The author wishes to express his gratitude to the many teachers who have given him freely of their wisdom and experience. Particular acknowledgments are due to Miss Anne C. Wilder and to Dr. A. T. Chapin of Kansas City, Missouri, who have read all the proof and offered many valuable suggestions.

ELEMENTS OF LATIN

TO THE STUDENT — BY WAY OF INTRODUCTION

LATIN, THE LANGUAGE OF THE ROMANS

Rome was the whole world, and all the world was Rome. — SPENSER

Latium,[1] a small district on the western coast of ancient Italy, was the home of the Latins. The chief city of the Latins was Rome, which, according to tradition, was founded 753 years before Christ. Beginning as a small settlement on the banks of the Tiber and the surrounding hills, and controlling at first a territory of not more than twenty-five square miles, the city remained weak and insignificant for many centuries, and its very existence was frequently threatened by warlike neighbors. But the Romans, inspired by a spirit that never owned defeat, gradually extended their boundaries. Before the middle of the third century before Christ they had conquered all Italy. Then they reached out for the lands across the sea and beyond the Alps, and finally Rome became the head of a mighty empire, which ruled over the whole ancient world for more than four hundred years.

The Latin language, meaning the language of Latium, was spoken by the Romans and other inhabitants of Latium, and Latin was the name applied to it after the armies of Rome had carried the knowledge of her language throughout the world. Rome impressed not only her language but also her laws, customs, beliefs, and ideals upon the subject nations; and the world has remained largely Roman ever since.

LATIN AND THE MODERN WORLD

Even after the fall of the Roman Empire Latin lived on, and lives today as Italian, Spanish, French, and other so-called Romance, or Roman, languages. Many millions of people are therefore still speaking a modernized form of Latin which differs from ancient Latin little more than modern English differs from the English of bygone centuries. Latin is not a dead language, but has only changed its name. During the Dark Ages the knowledge of Latin was the only light of learning that kept burning, and in the succeeding years Latin continued to be the common language of the schools and universities, and is even yet, more nearly than any other tongue, the universal language of the learned. It survives, too, in the services of the Roman Catholic Church and in much sacred poetry and song. The life of today is much nearer the life of ancient Rome than the lapse of centuries would lead one to suppose. You and I are Romans still in many ways, and if Cæsar and Cicero should appear among us, we should not find them, except for dress and language, unlike men of today.

LATIN AND ENGLISH

Do you know that more than half the words in the English dictionary are Latin and that you are speaking more or less Latin every day? How did this come about?

In the first place Latin and English, along with most of the other languages of Europe, are descended from a very ancient mother speech, which has long since disappeared. They are, therefore, sister languages and have many words in common.

Furthermore, in the year 1066 William the Conqueror invaded England with an army of Normans and established a Norman civilization among the Anglo-Saxons. The Normans spoke a kind of French, which, as has been said, is a modern form of Latin, and from this source hundreds of so-called Latin derivatives were added to our vocabulary. Some of these derivatives are pure Latin and others differ only in their endings. Note the following examples:

Latin Words	English Words
horror	horror
census	census
animal	animal labor	labor
superior	superior
inferior	inferior
calamitas	calamity
barbarus	barbarous
virtus	virtue

Besides, in later years many Latin words have been brought into English through the writings of scholars, and many of the technical terms used in the sciences and the professions of law, medicine, engineering, etc., are of Latin derivation, and many new inventions are given Latin names.

WHY STUDY LATIN?

Latin, as we have seen, touches the life of the modern world in many ways and the study of it adds greatly to our intelligence and efficiency. Indeed, few studies are more practical. You may be asked why you are studying Latin. The following summary of reasons will help you to make a forceful and convincing reply:

1. Latin was the language of the Romans, on whose civilization our own civilization is largely based. In their writings we find the origin and the reason for many of our institutions.

2. In Roman literature we find the models which modern writers have imitated. Our literature is full of allusions and quotations which only the student of Latin can fully understand.

3. A knowledge of French, Spanish, Portuguese, or Italian is best obtained by studying Latin first. The value of these languages to an American is greater today than ever before.

4. Latin grammar makes English grammar easy, and a knowledge of Latin words makes clear the meaning of English words. A mastery of English is gained by the study of Latin, and the ability to use good English promotes success in every calling. Even a year or two of Latin will be a great help in grammar, spelling, and composition.

5. A knowledge of Latin is of great service in the pursuit of the sciences and professions. That is why Latin is required for entrance to schools of medicine, law, engineering, and other higher institutions of learning.

QUESTIONS

What is Latin? Where is Latium? Where is Rome? What river flows through Rome? What date is given for the founding of Rome? How long did the Roman Empire endure? How wide was its power? What was the language of the Roman Empire? What besides their language did the Romans impress upon the world? What is meant by the Romance languages? If you wish to master French or Spanish, what language should you study first? Why? Is Latin a dead language? What great service did Latin render during the Dark Ages? Why do some scholars still write their books in Latin? What proportion of English words is of Latin origin? How did this come about? What five reasons can you give for the study of Latin? Which one of these reasons do you consider the most important?

FIRST HALF YEAR

THE ALPHABET AND SOUNDS OF THE LETTERS

Errāre hūmānum est — To err is human[1]

THE ALPHABET

1. The Latin alphabet is the same as the English except that it has no j or w.

2. The vowels, as in English, are a, e, i, o, u, y. The other letters are consonants.

3. The letter i is used both as a vowel and as a consonant. When standing first with a vowel following it, or between vowels within a word, it has the value of a consonant, and is called i consonant.

Thus, in iam and maior, i is a consonant; in iānitor the first i is a consonant, the second is a vowel.

SOUNDS OF THE LETTERS

4. The sounds of the letters are best learned by hearing them correctly pronounced. The matter in sections 5–7 is, therefore, intended for reference rather than for assignment as a lesson. As a first step it is suggested that the teacher pronounce the examples in class, the pupils following.

[1] From Seneca, a Roman philosopher.

5. Vowels. Vowels are either long or short. In this book long vowels are marked (ā), short ones are unmarked (a). The vowels have the following sounds:

Long	Short
ā as in artist: hāc, stās	a as in artistic: amat, canās
ē as a in fate: tēla, mēta	e as in net: tenet, pedēs
ī as in machine: sertī, prātī	i as in bit: sītis, bibī
ō as in bone: Rōma, ōris	o as in obey: modō, bonōs
ū as in rude: ūmor, tūber	u as in full: ut, tūtus

6. Diphthongs. A diphthong is a combination of two vowels in a single syllable. The Latin diphthongs and their sounds are as follows:

ae as ai in aisle: taedae	eu almost like ew in new: seu
au as ou in out: gaudet	oe as oi in boil: foedus
ei as in eight: hei	ui almost like we: cui, huic

ROMAN CHILDREN AT PLAY

7. Consonants. Consonants are pronounced as in English, with the following exceptions:

c always has the sound of k: cadō, cibus, cēna
g is always like g in get: gemō, gignō
i, when a consonant, is sounded like y in yes: iam, iocus, cuius qu, gu, and sometimes su before a vowel, have the sound of qw, gw, and sw, respectively: inquit, lingua, suādeō s is always like s in sea: rosa, is t is always like t in native (never as in nation): ratiō, nātiō
v has the sound of w: vīnum, vir
x always has the sound of ks: extrā, exāctus bs, bt, are like ps, pt: urbs, obtineō
ch, ph, th, are like c, p, t: pulcher, Phoebē, theātrum

8. Learn the following Latin mottoes:

Ē plūribus ūnum, one out of many (motto of the United States).
out of many one

Ad astra per aspera, to the stars through difficulties (motto of Kansas).
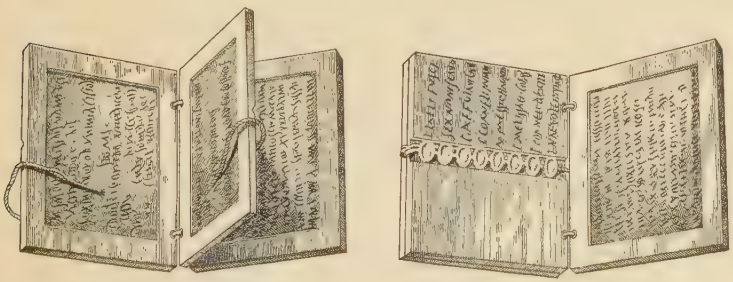
to stars through difficulties

Labor omnia vincit, toil conquers all things (quotation from the Latin poet Vergil).
toil all things conquers



ROMAN WRITING TABLETS

SYLLABLES, QUANTITY, AND ACCENT

Fēstīnā lentē — Make haste slowly [1]

SYLLABLES

9. A Latin word has as many syllables as it has vowels and diphthongs.

Thus, lī-ber′-tās has three syllables, au-di-en′-dae has four.

10. Words are divided into syllables as follows:

a. A single consonant between two vowels is pronounced with the following vowel: as, a-mā′-bi-lis, a′-best, pe-rē′-git; also bl, br, tr, and similar combinations with l or r that can be pronounced in one syllable are pronounced with a following vowel: [2] as, pū′-bli-cus, ē′-bri-us, mā′-tris, a′-grī.

b. In all other combinations of consonants the last of the group is pronounced with the following vowel: as, mag′-nus, e-ges′-tās, hos′-pes, an′-nus, su-bāc′-tus, sānc′-tus, il′-le.

c. The last syllable of a word is called the ul′ti-ma; the next to the last, the pe-nult′; that before the penult, the an′te-pe-nult′.

Thus, amantur consists of a- (antepenult), -man- (penult), -tur (ultima).

QUANTITY OF SYLLABLES

11. The quantity of a syllable is the time occupied in pronouncing it. About twice as much time should be given to long (that is, slow) syllables as to short (that is, quick) ones.

12. A syllable is long if it contains a long vowel or a diphthong: as, cū′-rō, poe′-nae, aes-tā′-te; or if it ends in a consonant which is followed by another consonant: as, the first syllables of cor′-pus and mag′-nus. All other syllables are short: as, a′-ni-mal, me-mo′-ri-am, nu′-me-rus, pa′-tri-a.

[1] A favorite saying of Augustus, the first emperor of Rome.

[2] But prepositional compounds follow rule b: as, ab′-luō, ab-rum′pō, etc.

NOTE. The vowel in a long syllable may be either long or short, and should be pronounced accordingly. Thus, in ter-ra, in-ter, the first syllable is long, but the vowel in each case is short and should be given the short sound. In words like saxum the first syllable is long because x has the value of two consonants (cs or gs).

ACCENT

13. Words of two syllables are accented on the first: as, mēn′-sa, Cae′-sar.

14. Words of more than two syllables are accented on the penult if the penult is long. If the penult is short, the antepenult is accented. Thus, mo-nē′-mus, re′-gi-tur, a-gri′-co-la, a-man′-dus, a-mān′-tur.

15. Sing the following translation of the first two stanzas of "America":[1]

Tē canō, Patria,

lībera montium
vōx resonet.

Tē canō, Patria,

culmina, flūmina;
sentiō gaudia

THE PARTS OF SPEECH

16. Words, according to their use, are divided into eight classes called parts of speech: nouns, pronouns, adjectives, verbs, adverbs, prepositions, conjunctions, and interjections. The parts of speech in English and in Latin are the same.

[1] Translated by Professor George D. Kellogg, Union College, and published in the Classical Weekly, VIII, 7.

17. Nouns. A noun is the name of a person or thing: as, Caesar, Cæsar; Rōma, Rome; domus, house; virtūs, virtue.

18. Pronouns. A pronoun (pro, 'instead of,' and noun) is a word used instead of a noun.

Thus, in I am studying Latin, I is used instead of the speaker's name. Pronouns are often used to avoid repeating the same noun: as, The soldiers are weary; they have marched many hours.

a. Nouns and pronouns are called substantives.

19. Adjectives. An adjective is a word that describes a noun or pronoun, and is said to belong to the word which it describes: as, The great forest was full of beautiful flowers.

20. Verbs. A verb is a word which asserts something (usually an act) about a person or thing: as, The girl is carrying water. She has a rose in her hair.

LESSON I

Carpe diem — Make the most of today[1]

FIRST PRINCIPLES OF SYNTAX

21. Subject and Predicate. A sentence is a group of words expressing a thought. A sentence consists of two parts, a subject and a predicate.

22. The subject is the person or thing spoken of.

23. The predicate says something about the subject.

SUBJECT	PREDICATE
Puel'la The girl	rēgī'nam vo'cat calls the queen
Les'bia Lesbia	bo'nam memo'riam ha'bet has a good memory

24. Transitive and Intransitive Verbs. Some verbs are followed by nouns or pronouns which receive their action and complete the sense. Such verbs are called transitive verbs, and the nouns or pronouns are called the direct objects.

Thus, in the sentences above, vocat (calls) and habet (has) are transitive verbs, and rēgīnam (queen) and memoriam (memory) are their direct objects.

25. Verbs that have no direct object are called intransitive verbs: as,

Puel'la pro'perat, the girl hastens
Agri'cola labō'rat, the farmer toils

[1] From Horace, a Roman poet. Literally, Seize the day.

26. A form of the verb to be (is, are, was, etc.), connecting the subject with a noun or adjective in the predicate, is called the copula ('joiner' or 'link'): as,

Iū'lia est pul'chra puel'la, Julia is a pretty girl

EXERCISE

27. Pronounce the Latin of the following sentences and name the nouns, pronouns, adjectives, verbs, copulas, subjects, objects, and predicates, and state whether the verbs are transitive or intransitive:

1. E'go pa'triam a'mō.
   I (my) country love.
2. Puel'lae in mag'nam sil'vam pro'perant.
   (The) girls into (the) great forest are-hastening.
3. Les'bia, pul'chra fī'lia agri'colae, nūl'lam pecū'niam ha'bet.
   Lesbia, (the) beautiful daughter of (the) farmer, no money has.
4. Agri'cola fī'liam ex par'vā ca'sā vo'cat.
   (The) farmer (his) daughter from (the) little cottage calls.
5. Is pul'chram puel'lam a'mat.
   He (the) pretty girl loves.
6. Lin'gua Latī'na est pul'chra.
   The language Latin is beautiful.

NOTE. Latin has no article the or a; thus puella may mean the girl, a girl, or simply girl. Further, the possessive adjectives my, your, his, her, etc. are not expressed if the meaning of the sentence is clear without them. Note, too, in 6 that in Latin the adjective may follow the noun.

VIEW OF ROME FROM THE DOME OF ST. PETER'S CATHEDRAL

From the dome of St. Peter's, over four hundred feet high, the work of Michelangelo, one obtains a wonderful view of the city. Immediately below is the Piazza of St. Peter's, an imposing ellipse inclosed by huge colonnades. In the middle distance are the Tiber and the circular tomb of Hadrian. The flat expanse beyond the river, now densely peopled, was the Campus Martius of ancient Rome and almost without buildings

LESSON II

Audentēs fortūna iuvat — Fortune favors the brave[1]

INFLECTION AND CASES

28. Inflection. Words may change their forms to indicate some change in their meaning, or their use in a sentence: as, is, are; know, knew; we, us; woman, woman's, women. This change is called inflection.

29. The inflection of a verb is called its conjugation; that of a noun, adjective, or pronoun, its declension.

30. Declension. To decline a word means to give in order all its different forms: as, who, whose, whom. Each one of the forms is called a case.

31. Cases in English. Observe the following sentences:

Who is this man?
Whose son is he?
Whom do I see?

We use the form who as the subject, whose to denote possession, and whom as the object. The three forms illustrate the three cases found in English.

The subject case is called the Nominative case.

The case of the possessor is called the Possessive case.

The object case is called the Objective case.

32. Cases in Latin. In Latin the subject case is called the Nom'inative; the possessive, or case of the possessor, is called the Gen'itive; and the object case is called the Accu'sative.

[1] From Vergil, Rome's greatest epic poet.

Gal'ba (NOMINATIVE) est agri'cola, Galba (SUBJECT) is a farmer
Gal'bae (GENITIVE) fi'lia est Les'bia, Galba's (POSSESSOR) daughter is Lesbia
Gal'bam (ACCUSATIVE) fi'lia a'mat, (his) daughter loves Galba (OBJECT)

33. Rule for Nominative Subject. The subject of a finite verb is in the Nominative and answers the question Who? or What?

34. Rule for Genitive of the Possessor. The word denoting the owner or possessor of something is in the Genitive and answers the question Whose?

35. Rule for Accusative Object. The direct object of a transitive verb is in the Accusative and answers the question Whom? or What?

36. When the nominative singular ends in -a (as, Galba), the genitive singular ends in -ae and the accusative singular in -am.

EXERCISES

37. In the following sentences add the proper Latin endings:

1. Lesbia (SUBJECT) loves the farmer (OBJECT), Lesbi- amat agricol-
2. The farmer's (POSSESSOR) daughter (SUBJECT) loves Galba (OBJECT), agricol- fīli- amat Galb-
3. The farmer (SUBJECT) calls Galba's (POSSESSOR) daughter (OBJECT), agricol- vocat Galba- fīli-

38. State what nouns in the following sentences would be nominative, genitive, and accusative if translated into Latin:

1. A lion was terrifying the villagers. 2. A hunter found the lion's den. 3. The hunter shot the lion and captured the lion's cubs. 4. The lion's cubs bit the hunter's hand.

LESSON III

Fīat lūx — Let there be light[1]

FORMS AND POSITION

39. English and Latin Compared. Observe the following sentences:

Galba loves his daughter
His daughter loves Galba

The nouns Galba and daughter have the same form in both these sentences, although the noun that is the subject in the one becomes the object in the other. In other words, the nominative and the objective case are alike in English, and the only way to distinguish them is by the order of the words.

In the Latin of this sentence no doubt can arise, for the subject ends in -a and the object in -am, and this remains true no matter in what order the words are written.

Gal'ba a'mat fī'liam
Fī'liam a'mat Gal'ba
A'mat Gal'ba fī'liam
Gal'ba fī'liam a'mat
} Galba loves his daughter

As you see, all these arrangements mean the same thing. The form of the Latin noun, therefore, and not its position in the sentence, shows its use.

40. Position of Subject and Verb. The subject of a short, disconnected sentence generally stands first; the verb, last. But est, is, and other forms of the verb to be usually stand, as in English, between the subject and a noun or adjective in the predicate: as,

Gal'ba est agri'cola, Galba is a farmer

[1] From the Latin translation of the Bible.

41. Position of Genitive. The genitive may stand either before or after the noun to which it belongs: as, Gal'bae fī'lia or fī'lia Gal'bae, Galba's daughter.

VOCABULARY

42. Learn the following words so that you can give the English for the Latin or the Latin for the English:

agri'cola, farmer
fī'lia, daughter puel'la, girl a'mat, loves, is-loving pro'perat, hastens, is-hastening vo'cat, calls, is-calling rēgī'na, queen

EXERCISES

NOTE. In translating a Latin genitive into English we may use either the preposition of and the noun, or its possessive case: as, fīlia rēgīnae the daughter of the queen, or the queen's daughter.

43. 1. Rēgīna puellam amat. 2. Puella rēgīnam amat. 3. Fīlia agricolae properat. 4. Puella fīliam agricolae vocat. 5. Fīlia agricolae puellam amat. 6. Rēgīna agricolam vocat; agricola properat.

44. 1. The farmer is-calling (his) daughter. 2. The daughter is-calling the farmer. 3. The girl loves the queen's daughter. 4. The queen's daughter calls the girl. 5. The queen is-hastening.

LESSON IV

Omne initium est difficile — Every beginning is hard[1]

NUMBER · AGREEMENT OF VERBS

45. Number. Latin, like English, has two numbers, singular and plural.

46. Plural of Nouns. In English the plural of nouns is usually formed by adding -s or -es to the singular. So Latin changes the singular to the plural by changing the ending.

	SINGULAR
NOM. (subject)	puell-a, girl
GEN. (possessor)	puell-ae, girl's, of the girl
ACC. (object)	puell-am, girl
	PLURAL
NOM. (subject)	puell-ae, girls
GEN. (possessor)	puell-ārum, girls', of the girls
ACC. (object)	puell-ās, girls

Note that the genitive singular and the nominative plural are alike.

a. Some Latin words ending in -a have passed into English without change and form the plural in -ae: as, alumna, alumnae; formula, formulae; minutia, minutiae; nebula, nebulae; vertebra, vertebrae. Consult the dictionary for the meaning of these words.

47. Plural of Verbs. Verbs, as well as nouns, form the plural with different endings. In the singular the third person ends in -t, in the plural in -nt. Thus,

porta-t, he (she, it) carries	porta-nt, they carry puella portat, the girl carries	puellae portant, the girls carry

[1] A Latin proverb.

The endings -t and -nt, which show the person and number of the verb, are called personal endings, and take the place of the English personal pronouns.

48. Rule for Agreement of Verbs. The verb agrees with its subject in person and number.

EXERCISES

49. Write and give orally the nominative, genitive, and accusative, singular and plural, of the Latin nouns meaning farmer, daughter, queen, girl.

50. Write and give orally the third person singular and plural of the Latin verbs meaning love, call, hasten.

51. Derivation. Define the following English words: vocal, vocation, filial, amiable, agriculture. To what Latin words are they related?

THE DATIVE CASE · INDIRECT OBJECT · PREDICATE NOUN

52. Dative Case. In English many relationships between words are expressed by to, for, from, with, in, at, and the like. These are called prepositions. Latin, too, often makes a similar use of prepositions, but frequently expresses such relationships by means of case forms that English does not possess. One of these cases is called the Da'tive.

53. The dative case is used after verbs and adjectives to express the relation conveyed in English by the prepositions to or for somebody or something.

He gave the money to John	They are ready for war
She was kind to him	He is no match for you

NOTE. To or for in expressions of motion, like He went to New York, He sailed for Europe, are not denoted by the dative.

54. What dative relations do you discover in the following?

To Captain Smith was given the cross of war, an honor great enough for any man. He was always ready for action and was equal to all demands. To him nothing seemed impossible. No wonder the general said to him, "France gives to you an honor well deserved."

55. Case Endings of Dative. When the nominative singular ends in -a, the dative singular ends in -ae and the dative plural in -īs.

NOTE. The genitive singular, the dative singular, and the nominative plural have the same ending, -ae; but the uses of the three cases are different.

[1] From Andrea Alciati, an Italian author of maxims.

56. Indirect Object. In English the person to whom something is given, told, refused, etc. is called the indirect object.

The queen gives money to the girl (or gives the girl money)

57. The indirect object is clearly a dative relation (§ 53) and is expressed in Latin by the dative case.

Rēgīna puellae pecūniam dat

58. Rule for Dative of Indirect Object. The indirect object of a verb is in the dative.

59. The indirect object may either precede or follow the direct object.

60. Predicate Noun. A noun standing in the predicate, describing or defining the subject and connected with it by some form of the verb to be, is called a predicate noun.

61. Rule for Predicate Noun. A predicate noun agrees with the subject in case.

EXERCISES

62. Write the nominative, genitive, dative, and accusative, singular and plural, of the nouns agricola, rēgīna, puella.

First learn the special vocabulary, page 361

63. 1. Puella est rēgīna. 2. Puellae sunt rēgīnae. 3. Agricola properat. 4. Agricolae properant. 5. Filiae agricolārum rēgīnam vocant. 6. Filia agricolae rēgīnam vocat. 7. Rēgīna puellīs agricolae pecūniam dat. 8. Filiae rēgīnae fābulās puellīs agricolārum nārrant.

64. 1. The queen is a farmer's daughter. 2. The girls give the farmers' money to-the-queen. 3. The girl is-telling the queen's daughter a story. 4. The girl loves the queen's daughter. 5. The girls are daughters of-farmers.

LESSON VI

Ars longa, vīta brevis — Art is long, time is fleeting[1]

THE ABLATIVE CASE · THE FIRST DECLENSION

65. Ablative Case. Another case lacking in English, but found in Latin, is the Ablative. This case is used to express the relations conveyed in English by the prepositions from, by, with, at, in, or on. Sometimes, as will be shown later (§ 79), Latin uses similar prepositions with the ablative.

66. Ablative Relations. What ablative relations do you discover in the following sentences?

> At two o'clock the troops began to march by, the general with his staff leading the van. Many thousands were in line and the ground shook with their martial tread. From sidewalks, windows, and housetops the spectators viewed the wonderful sight. On every side flags were waving in the breeze and everyone was wild with joy. Our boys were back from France.

67. Case Endings of Ablative. When the nominative singular ends in -a, the ablative singular ends in -ā, and the ablative plural in -īs.

a. Note that the final -a is long in the ablative and short in the nominative: aqua, nominative; aquā, ablative.

b. Note that the ablative plural is like the dative plural.

68. Declensions. Latin has five declensions.

[1] Latin form of a saying attributed to the Greek writer Hippocrates. Literally, Art long, life short. The verb to be is often omitted when it can readily be supplied.

69. The declension to which a noun belongs is shown by the ending of the genitive singular.

70. First Declension. Nouns having the ending -ae in the genitive singular belong to the First Declension. They are declined as follows:

	Noun	Translation	Use of Each Case
		SINGULAR
Nom.	aqua	the water	The subject
Gen.	aquae	of the water, or the water's	The possessor
Dat.	aquae	to or for the water	The indirect object
Acc.	aquam	the water	The direct object
Abl.	aquā	from, by, with, at, in, or on the water	Relation denoted by the prepositions from, by, with, at, in, or on
		PLURAL
Nom.	aquae	the waters	The subject
Gen.	aquā'rum	of the waters, or the waters'	The possessor
Dat.	aquīs	to or for the waters	The indirect object
Acc.	aquās	the waters	The direct object
Abl.	aquīs	from, by, with, at, in, or on the waters	Relation denoted by the prepositions from, by, with, at, in, or on

a. The nouns fīlia, daughter, and dea, goddess, have fīliābus and deābus in the dative and ablative plural.

71. Base. That part of the word which remains unchanged throughout the declension, and to which the terminations are added, is called the base. Thus, aqu- is the base of aqua.

72. How to learn a Declension. First pronounce each form carefully, with due regard for the sounds of the letters and the accent, giving the corresponding English meaning. Repeat again and again until you have the declension memorized. Then close your book and write the Latin forms, marking the quantity of the long vowels in the case endings, and write also the meaning of each form. Then open your book and correct any errors in your work. For further drill make a blank scheme of the declension as shown below, and, pointing rapidly with your pencil to the different spaces, give quickly the Latin forms that would appear there, using a variety of words. Persist in drilling yourself until you can give the ten Latin forms complete in ten seconds.

	SINGULAR	PLURAL

GEN.	----------	----------
DAT.	----------	----------
ACC.	----------	----------
ABL.	----------	----------

EXERCISES

73. Write the declension of puella, dea, and agricola, with the meaning of each form.

74. Give orally the declension of fābula, rēgīna, fīlia, pecūnia.

75. Give the case or the cases, and the meaning or the meanings, of the following: puellārum, fīliābus, pecūniae, fābulā, rēgīnam, deās, agricolīs.

76. Derivation. The noun aqua appears in the English words aquarium, aqueous, aquatic, aqueduct. What do they mean? Consult the English dictionary if you do not know.

LESSON VII

Mēns sāna in corpore sānō — A sound mind in a sound body[1]

PREPOSITIONS

77. While many relations expressed in English by prepositions are in Latin expressed by case forms, still prepositions are of frequent occurrence, but only with the accusative or ablative.

78. Prepositions with Accusative. The relations to, into, and through in expressions of motion are expressed in Latin by the prepositions ad, in, and per, with the accusative.

Nauta ad aquam properat, the sailor hastens to the water
Nauta in aquam properat, the sailor hastens into the water
Nauta per aquam properat, the sailor hastens through the water

79. Prepositions with Ablative. The relations from the side of, in company with, and in or on are expressed in Latin by the prepositions ā or ab, cum, and in, with the ablative.

Nauta ab aquā properat, the sailor hastens from the water
Nauta cum Galbā properat, the sailor hastens with Galba
Nauta in aquā est, the sailor is in (or on) the water

NOTE. The preposition ā is used only before words beginning with a consonant, ab before either vowels or consonants.

[1] From Juvenal, a Roman poet.

LESSON VIII

Numquam retrōrsum — Never turn back[1]

GENDER · DECLENSION, AGREEMENT, AND POSITION OF ADJECTIVES · THE PREDICATE ADJECTIVE

83. Gender. Latin, like English, has three genders: masculine, feminine, and neuter.

84. Gender in English is distinction according to sex. Names of males are masculine; of females, feminine; and of things without animal life, neuter. This is called natural gender.

85. The rules for natural gender are applied also in Latin to beings having life: words denoting males are masculine, and words denoting females are feminine. But the gender of words denoting things is generally determined by the termination of the nominative singular. This is called grammatical gender. Hence nouns which in English would be neuter may in Latin be masculine, feminine, or neuter.

Thus, in Latin, sōl, sun, is masculine; lūna, moon, feminine; caelum, sky, neuter.

86. Gender of Nouns of First Declension. Nouns of the first declension are feminine unless they denote males.

Thus, aqua, water, is feminine, but nauta, sailor, is masculine.

87. Adjectives. Examine the following sentence:

Puella parva bonam rēgīnam amat, the little girl likes the good queen

In this sentence parva, little, and bonam, good, are not nouns, but descriptive words expressing quality. Such words are called adjectives and are said to belong to the noun which they describe.

[1] A Latin slogan. Literally, Never backward.

88. Declension of Adjectives. In English the adjective remains unchanged even when the noun changes its form: as, the good man, the good man's, the good men. In other words, in English, adjectives are not declined. In Latin, adjectives have declensions like those of nouns.

89. Feminine adjectives in -a have the same case forms as nouns in -a. Decline nouns and their adjectives together, as follows:

aqua (base aqu-), F., water; bona (base bon-), F., good

	Noun	Adjective		Terminations
Nom.	aqua	bona	good water	-a
Gen.	aquae	bonae	of good water	-ae
Dat.	aquae	bonae	to or for good water	-ae
Acc.	aquam	bonam	good water	-am
Abl.	aquā	bonā	from, with, by, in good water	-ā
Nom.	aquae	bonae	good waters	-ae
Gen.	aquā′rum	bonā′rum	of good waters	-ārum
Dat.	aquīs	bonīs	to or for good waters	-īs
Acc.	aquās	bonās	good waters	-ās
Abl.	aquīs	bonīs	from, with, by, in good waters	-īs

90. Agreement of Adjectives. In the phrase aqua bona, we have a feminine noun aqua combined with a feminine adjective bona. When the phrase is declined, a change in the number or the case of the noun is accompanied by a corresponding change in the adjective. This is called agreement.

91. Rule for Agreement of Adjectives. Adjectives agree with their nouns in gender, number, and case.

92. An adjective may either precede or follow its noun.

93. Predicate Adjective. An adjective standing in the predicate, but describing the subject, is called a predicate adjective.

Puellae sunt pulchrae, the girls are pretty

NOTE. In English the predicate adjective is often called the attribute complement or subjective complement.

GALBA ET LESBIA

First learn the special vocabulary, page 361

94. Galba est agricola. Lesbia est filia Galbae. Lesbia est pulchra. Galba filiam pulchram amat. Agricola parvae puellae bonās fābulās nārrat. Galba cum Lesbiā in casā parvā habitat. Galba et Lesbia casam parvam amant. Lesbia Galbam vocat et agricola ad parvam casam properat (see picture).

95. 1. The little cottage is beautiful. 2. Galba hastens through the land to the pretty cottage. 3. Galba is with the sailor. 4. The girls hasten into the cottage. 5. Farmers live in small cottages.

THE SECOND DECLENSION · THE VOCATIVE CASE

96. Second Declension. Nouns ending in -ī in the genitive singular belong to the Second Declension.

97. Gender and Declension. Nominatives of the second declension ending in -us or -er are masculine; those ending in -um are neuter.

Thus, servus, slave, and ager, field, are masculine; but oppidum, town, is neuter.

Masculine nouns in -us are declined as follows:

servus (base serv-)ī M., slave

	Terminations			Terminations
Nom.	servus	-us	servī	-ī
Gen.	servī	-ī	servōrum	-ōrum
Dat.	servō	-ō	servīs	-īs
Acc.	servum	-um	servōs	-ōs
Abl.	servō	-ō	servīs	-īs

Note. In learning all declensions, follow the suggestions given in § 72.

a. Some Latin words ending in -us have passed into English without change and form the plural in -i: as, alumnus, alumni; syllabus, syllabi; focus, foci; radius, radii; stimulus, stimuli; narcissus, narcissi. Consult the dictionary for the meaning of these words.

98. Vocative Case. A noun used to address or call a person is in the vocative case (from Latin vocō, I call). The form of the vocative is regularly the same as the nominative, but the vocative singular of nouns in -us of the second declension ends in -e: as, serve, O slave; Mārce, O Marcus.

[1] From Vergil, a Roman poet. Literally, A way is made by force.

99. In English the name of the person addressed often stands first. The Latin vocative rarely stands first.

Lesbia, the cottage is small, casa, Lesbia, est parva

100. 1. Quō nauta properat? 2. Nauta ad parvam casam Galbae properat. 3. Ubi est Galba? 4. Galba cum Lesbiā et cum amīcīs Lesbiae in casā parvā est. 5. Agricola parvīs puellīs bonās fābulās nārrat. 6. Ubi, Mārce, est servus agricolae? 7. Servus agricolae equīs aquam dat. 8. Aqua est bona et equī bonam aquam amant.

101. 1. Marcus, Galba is-calling the slaves. 2. Slaves, where are the horses? 3. The horses, Galba, are-hastening to the cottage. 4. The water of-the-cottage is good. 5. The slaves are the friends of-the-horses.

THE SECOND DECLENSION (CONTINUED) · APPOSITION

102. Declension of Nouns in -er. Masculine nouns in -er of the second declension are declined as follows:

puer (base puer-), M., boy; ager (base agr-), M., field

			TERMINATIONS			TERMINATIONS
NOM.	puer	ager	—	puerī	agrī	-ī
GEN.	puerī	agrī	-ī	puerōrum	agrōrum	-ōrum
DAT.	puerō	agrō	-ō	puerīs	agrīs	-īs
ACC.	puerum	agrum	-um	puerōs	agrōs	-ōs
ABL.	puerō	agrō	-ō	puerīs	agrīs	-īs

a. Nouns in -er are declined just like servus, except that they have no termination -us in the nominative singular.

b. In puer the e appears in each case; in ager it appears only in the nominative singular. Most nouns in -er are declined like ager. The genitive singular shows whether the noun follows puer or ager.

c. The noun vir, man, is declined like puer: vir, virī, virō, etc.

103. Apposition. Observe the following sentences:

Galba Mārcum nautam amat, Galba loves Marcus, the sailor

In each sentence the word sailor is added to Marcus to explain who he is. A noun explaining another noun, and signifying the same person or thing, is called an appositive, and is said to be in apposition. A noun and its appositive agree in case.

104. Rule for Apposition. An appositive agrees in case with the noun which it explains.

THE SECOND DECLENSION (CONTINUED) · GENERAL RULES OF DECLENSION · QUESTIONS

107. Declension of Nouns in -um. Neuter nouns in -um belong to the Second Declension, and are declined as follows:

oppidum (base oppid-), N., town

		TERMINATIONS		TERMINATIONS
NOM.	oppidum	-um	oppidă	-a
GEN.	oppidī	-ī	oppidōrum	-ōrum

ACC.	oppidum	-um	oppida	-a
ABL.	oppidō	-ō	oppidīs	-īs

a. Some Latin words ending in -um have passed into English without change and form the plural in -a: as, stratum, strata; datum, data; curriculum, curricula; memorandum, memoranda.

108. General Rules of Declension. Write side by side the declension of servus, aqua, and oppidum. A comparison of the forms gives us the following rules, which apply not only to the first and second declensions but to all five (§ 68):

a. The nominative and accusative of neuter nouns are alike, and in the plural end in -a.

b. The accusative of masculines and feminines ends in -m in the singular, and in -s in the plural.

c. The dative and ablative plural are alike.

d. Final -i and -o are long; final -a is short except in the ablative singular of the first declension.

[1] From Cicero, who wrote a famous essay on friendship.

QUESTIONS

109. Questions may be introduced, as in English, by such words as quis? who? quid? what? ubi? where? and quō? whither? But questions that can be answered by yes or no have, in Latin, a special question sign -ne attached to the emphatic word, which stands first and is usually the verb.

Est'ne puella pulchra? Is the girl pretty?
Properant'ne puerī? Are the boys hastening?

110. There are no single Latin words meaning simply yes and no. Questions are usually answered in the affirmative by repeating the verb; in the negative, by repeating the verb with nōn, not.

Properant'ne puerī? Properant. Are the boys hastening? Yes.
Properant'ne puerī? Nōn properant. Are the boys hastening? No.

EXERCISES

111. Derivation. Using the prefixes ex- (out), im- (in), re- (back), sup- (under), trāns- (across), with -port, from the Latin verb portō, to carry, make five English words and define them.

112. What English words in the following paragraph do you know to be of Latin derivation? Define the words, using the dictionary if necessary, and give the Latin sources.

Below the terrace was an aquarium fed by an aqueduct, a gift of Mr. B——, concerning whose bounty and fabulous wealth the inhabitants of the town love to tell. But these data are not essential to my narrative, and I will speak only of his love for the sea, aquatic sports, and nautical affairs.

S. Labō'rant.

114. 1. Are the men of-the-town hastening, Marcus? No (Latin, they are not hastening). 2. What are the farmers' boys carrying? They-are-carrying arms. 3. Whither are the queens calling the peoples? 4. The queens are-calling the peoples from the fields into the towns. 5. Why do the good queens call the people together? 6. Are the slaves toiling in the fields? Yes (Latin, they-are-toiling).

ADJECTIVES OF THE FIRST AND SECOND DECLENSIONS GENITIVE OF NOUNS IN -IUS AND -IUM

115. Adjectives of First and Second Declensions. We have seen that feminine adjectives in -a, like bona, are declined like aqua (§ 89). So masculine adjectives in -us, such as bonus, are declined like servus; and neuter adjectives in -um, such as bonum, are declined like oppidum. For this reason such adjectives are called Adjectives of the First and Second Declensions.

116. The adjective and noun, masculine and neuter, are declined as follows:

servus bonus (bases serv- bon-), M., the good slave

			Terminations			Terminations
Nom.	servus	bonus	-us	servī	bonī	-ī

117. Genitive of Nouns in -ius and -ium. Nouns in -ius and -ium end in -ī in the genitive, not in -iī, and the accent remains on the same syllable as in the nominative: nominative fī'lius (son), genitive fī'lī, dative fīliō, etc.; nominative auxi'lium (aid), genitive auxi'lī, dative auxiliō, etc.

DIALOGUE. MĀRCUS ET FĪLIUS

118. Mārcus. Quid, fīlī,[1] servī Galbae agricolae in magnum oppidum portant?

Fīlius. Frūmentum, Mārce, servī Galbae agricolae in magnum oppidum portant. Rēgīna magnī oppidī populum ad arma vocat. Rēgīna novum et magnum bellum parat.[2] Arma et frūmentum et pecūniam, auxilia[3] bellī, parat.[2]

M. Ubi sunt bonī fīliī pulchrae rēgīnae?

F. Cum sociīs, Mārce, fīliī rēgīnae sunt.

M. Dantne sociī bonae rēgīnae auxilium?

F. Dant. Sociī arma nova et pecūniam magnam rēgīnae dant.

M. Estne, fīlī,[1] terra rēgīnae pulchra?

F. Pulchra et magna est terra rēgīnae. Populus oppidī bonam rēgīnam et pulchram terram amat.

1. fīlī is the vocative of fīlius. 2. Note that parat means prepare for as well as prepare. 3. In apposition with the preceding nouns.

119. 1. The arms of-the-new ally are good. 2. The sons of-the-allies do-give great assistance to-the-people of-the-small towns. 3. The farmers are-toiling in the new fields. 4. Why, (my) son, is the good queen calling the people together? 5. Are the new allies preparing grain? Yes.

NOTE. Learn to recite and to write the forms of adjectives across the page, thus giving the three genders for each case. Make a blank scheme (cf. § 72) of the declension above and use it for drill on a variety of adjectives.

a. Decline magnus, -a, -um; parvus, -a, -um; novus, -a, -um.

121. The agreement between an adjective and its noun does not mean that they must have the same termination. Often the adjective and the noun belong to different declensions and hence have different terminations; for example, nauta, sailor, being a masculine noun, requires the masculine form of the adjective in agreement. But the masculine adjective bonus belongs to the second declension, while nauta belongs to the first; hence, a good sailor is nauta bonus. Learn to decline nouns and adjectives together as follows:

nauta bonus (bases naut- bon-), M., the good sailor

NOM.	nauta	bonus	nautae	bonī
GEN.	nautae	bonī	nautārum	bonōrum
DAT.	nautae	bonō	nautīs	bonīs
ACC.	nautam	bonum	nautās	bonōs
ABL.	nautā	bonō	nautīs	bonīs

122. Adverbs. An adverb is a word which modifies a verb, an adjective, or another adverb.

Most adverbs answer the questions How? Where? When? To what degree?

123. Position of Adverbs. Adverbs, unless emphatic, stand directly before the words which they modify: as,

Rēgīna Galbae pecūniam saepe dat, the queen often gives money to Galba

Interrogative adverbs (where? when? why? etc.) regularly stand first, as in English. Other adverbs, when emphatic, stand in some unusual position.

129. Dative with Adjectives. We learned in § 53 for what sort of expressions we may expect the dative, and in § 57 that one of its commonest uses is with verbs to express the indirect object. It is also very common with adjectives to express the object toward which the quality denoted by the adjective is directed. In English this dative would be in the objective case after the preposition to or for: as, near to town, fit for service.

130. Rule for Dative with Adjectives. The dative is used with adjectives to denote the object toward which the given quality is directed. Such are those meaning near, also fit, friendly, pleasing, like, and their opposites.

Fābula est grāta Lesbiae, the story is pleasing to Lesbia
Ager est proximus oppidō, the field is nearest to the town amīcus, -a, -um, friendly (to) inimīcus, -a, -um, hostile (to) grātus, -a, -um, pleasing (to)

POSSESSIVE ADJECTIVES AND PRONOUNS

132. Observe the following sentences:

Marcus is my son Marcus is mine

In the first sentence my is a possessive adjective; in the second mine is a possessive pronoun. Similarly in Latin the possessives are sometimes adjectives and sometimes pronouns.

133. The Latin possessives are declined like adjectives of the first and second declensions, and are as follows:

Referring to one	meus, mea, meum, my, mine
	tuus, tua, tuum, your, yours suus, sua, suum, his (own), her (own), its (own)
Referring to more than one	noster, nostra, nostrum, our, ours
	vester, vestra, vestrum, your, yours
	suus, sua, suum, their (own), theirs

NOTE. The vocative singular masculine of meus is mī: as, mī fīlī, (O) my son; mī serve, (O) my slave.

134. Rule for Agreement of the Possessive Adjective. The possessive adjective agrees with the noun which it modifies in gender, number, and case.

a. Compare the English and Latin in Galba is calling his friends, Galba

Lesbia is calling her friends, Lesbia } suōs amīcōs vocat

The girls are calling their friends, puellae suōs amīcōs vocant

Observe that suōs agrees with amīcōs and is unaffected by the gender, number, and case of Galba, Lesbia, or puellae.

[1] A Latin slogan.

135. Suus, the Reflexive Possessive. The possessive suus is reflexive; that is, it stands in the predicate and refers to the subject, indicating that the subject is the possessor. In English the meaning of the sentence Galba is calling his daughter is doubtful, for we cannot tell whether Galba is calling his own daughter or the daughter of someone else. But in Latin Galba fīliam suam vocat can mean only the former, for suam must refer to Galba.

136. Omission of Possessives. The Latin possessives are omitted whenever the meaning is clear without them.

137. Position of Possessive Adjectives. Possessive adjectives, when not emphatic, follow their nouns; when emphatic, they precede: as,

Lesbia est fīlia mea, Lesbia is my daughter Lesbia est mea fīlia, Lesbia is my daughter

2. Ubi Galba habitat?
3. Ubi Quīntus habitat?
4. Quid est grātum Mārcō?
5. Estne īnsula nautae proxima terrae?

CONJUGATION · PRESENT INDICATIVE OF SUM · PREDICATE GENITIVE OF POSSESSOR

140. Conjugation. The inflection of the verb is called its conjugation. Through its conjugation the verb expresses voice, mood, tense, number, and person.

141. Voice. There are two voices, active and passive. A verb in the active voice represents the subject as performing the action: as,

ACTIVE VOICE

The boy ⟶ hit ⟶ the ball

A verb in the passive voice represents the subject as receiving the action: as,

The girl ⟵ was hit ⟵ by the ball

Note the direction of the arrows.

PASSIVE VOICE

142. Mood. In Latin there are three moods: indicative, subjunctive, and imperative.

143. Tense. The tense of a verb indicates its time.

144. In English there are six tenses:

1. Present, referring to present time, I call.
2. Past, referring to past time, I called.
3. Future, referring to future time, I shall call.

4. Present perfect, denoting action completed in present time, I have called.

5. Past perfect,[1] denoting action completed in past time, I had called.

6. Future perfect, denoting action completed in future time, I shall have called.

There are also six tenses in Latin, with practically the same names and meanings.

145. Number. In Latin, as in English, there are two numbers, singular and plural.

146. Person. Latin, like English, has three persons. The first person is the person speaking (I call); the second person, the person spoken to (you call); the third person, the person or thing spoken of (he calls). In English, person and number are indicated by personal pronouns. In Latin, on the other hand, person and number are indicated by personal endings (§ 47). We have already learned that -t and -nt are endings of the third person, singular and plural. The complete list of personal endings of the active voice is as follows:

	SINGULAR		PLURAL
1ST PERSON	-m or -ō	I	-mus	we
2D PERSON	-s	thou or you	-tis	you
3D PERSON	-t	he, she, it	-nt	they

147. Indicative Mood. The indicative mood is used to make a statement or to ask a question concerning a real or assumed fact.

148. Regular and Irregular Verbs. Most verbs form their moods and tenses after a regular plan, and are called regular verbs. Verbs that depart from this plan are called irregular.

[1] Also called the pluperfect.

149. Present Indicative of sum. The verb sum, I am, irregular in Latin as in English, is conjugated in the present indicative as follows:

	SINGULAR	PLURAL
1ST PERSON	sum, I-am	sumus, we-are
2D PERSON	es, you-are	estis, you-are
3D PERSON	est, he-, she-, or it-is	sunt, they-are

a. Est meaning there is, or sunt meaning there are, precedes its subject. In this use there is called an expletive.

Distinguish, therefore, between īnsula est magna, the island is large, and est īnsula magna, there is a large island.

150. Rule for Predicate Genitive of Possessor. The possessive genitive often stands in the predicate, and is connected with its noun by a form of the verb sum.

Pecūnia est servī, the money is the slave's, or, freely, belongs to the slave (literally, is of the slave)

THE FOUR REGULAR CONJUGATIONS · PRESENT INDICATIVE ACTIVE OF THE FIRST CONJUGATION

153. Four Regular Conjugations. There are four regular conjugations of verbs. These conjugations are distinguished from one another by the distinguishing, or characteristic, vowel appearing at the end of the present stem.

154. The present stem of each conjugation is found by dropping -re, the ending of the present infinitive active, which is given in the vocabularies.

155. Below are given the present indicative and the present infinitive active of a verb of each conjugation, the infinitive showing the present stem with its distinguishing vowel. These are the first two of the principal parts of the verb.

Conjugation	Pres. Indic.	Pres. Inf.	Pres. Stem	Distinguishing Vowel
I	vo′cō, call	vocā′re	vocā-	ā
II	mo′neō, advise	monē′re	monē-	ē
III	re′gō, rule	re′gere	rege-	e
IV	au′diō, hear	audī′re	audī-	ī

156. From the present stem are formed the present, past (also called imperfect), and future tenses.

157. Present Indicative Active of First Conjugation. Verbs having the infinitive termination -āre, such as vocā're, belong to the First Conjugation.

158. The present indicative is inflected by adding the personal endings to the present stem. The distinguishing vowel -ā disappears in the first person singular, and is shortened before the endings -t and -nt in the third person singular and plural.

159. The inflection of vocō, vocāre (pres. stem vocā-), call, in the present indicative active is as follows:

	Personal Endings		Personal Endings
1. vo'cō, I call	-ō	vocā'mus, we call	-mus
2. vo'cās, you call	-s	vocā'tis, you call	-tis
3. vo'cat, he-, she-, or it calls	-t	vo'cant, they call	-nt

160. Translation of Present. English has three forms for the present tense: I call, I am calling, I do call. Latin has but one form, vocō; this is used for any one of the three English forms.

EXERCISES

161. Inflect the present indicative of the following verbs, all of which you have had before:

INDICATIVE PRESENT	INFINITIVE PRESENT
a'mō, I love	amā're, to love
con'vocō, I call together	convocā're, to call together
dō, I give	da're, to give ha'bitō, I live, I dwell	habitā're, to live, to dwell
labō'rō, I toil	labōrā're, to toil
nār'rō, I tell	nārrā're, to tell
nā'vigō, I sail	nāvigā're, to sail
oc'cupō, I seize	occupā're, to seize pa'rō, I prepare	parā're, to prepare por'tō, I carry	portā're, to carry pro'perō, I hasten	properā're, to hasten
pug'nō, I fight	pugnā're, to fight

NOTE. In dō, dare, the a of the present stem is short. The only indicative form of dō having the stem vowel long is dās, you give, second person singular of the present.

162. Translate each of the following forms and give its voice, mood, tense, person, and number. When translating a verb, note first the personal ending.

1. Occupā'mus, properā'tis, con'vocant. 2. Datis, labō'rās, pugnā'tis. 3. Parās, portat, amā'mus. 4. Nārrat, dant, prō'perat. 5. Occupā'tis, nā'vigās, portant. 6. Habitā'tis, labō'rant, dās.

163. 1. We-dwell, we-are-dwelling, we-do-dwell. 2. You-seize (singular), you-are-seizing, you-do-seize. 3. We-do-carry, they-are-laboring, we-hasten. 4. He-is-giving, he-calls-together, you-are-sailing. 5. They-do-fight, he-carries, we-are-living.

Labōrāre est ōrāre — To labor is to pray[1]

THE ABLATIVE DENOTING WITH

164. One of the relations denoted by the Latin ablative is expressed in English by the preposition with (§ 65). But with varies in meaning, and cannot always be translated by the Latin preposition cum. This becomes clear from the following sentences:

1. The fields are thick with grain
2. Marcus fights with his spear
3. Julia is living with Lesbia
4. Galba toils with great industry

With denotes cause in 1, with grain meaning because of grain.

With denotes means in 2, with his spear meaning by means of his spear.

With denotes accompaniment in 3, the meaning being that Julia is not living alone but in company with Lesbia.

With denotes manner in 4, with great industry telling how Galba works.

These four meanings of with are expressed in Latin by four different constructions of the ablative, known as the Ablative of Cause, the Ablative of Means, the Ablative of Accompaniment, and the Ablative of Manner.

165. Rule for Ablative of Cause. Cause is denoted by the ablative, usually without a preposition, and answers the question Because of what?

Agrī sunt crēbrī frūmentō, the fields are thick with grain

[1] Motto of the monks of the order of Saint Benedict.

166. Rule for Ablative of Means. Means is denoted by the ablative without a preposition. This ablative answers the question By means of what? With what?

Mārcus tēlō pugnat, Marcus fights with his spear

167. Rule for Ablative of Accompaniment. Accompaniment is denoted by the ablative with cum. This ablative answers the question In company with whom?

Iūlia cum Lesbiā habitat, Julia is living with Lesbia

168. Rule for Ablative of Manner. Manner is denoted by the ablative with cum. Cum may be omitted if an adjective is used with the ablative. This ablative answers the question How? In what manner?

Galba (cum) magnā dīligentiā labōrat, Galba works with great industry

EXERCISE

169. What uses of the ablative do you discover in the following passage and what question does each answer?

The day after the battle we retreated with all our forces. The roads were deep with mud and the men were weary with fighting. To make matters worse, aviators attacked our crowded ranks with bombs. The machines flew low, but with such speed that we could not hit them. At last with a sigh of relief we entered a forest so thick with trees that we were well protected by the branches. Many wretched refugees with their wives and children sought shelter there.

PAST AND FUTURE INDICATIVE OF SUM · THE PREPOSITION Ē OR EX

170. Past and Future Indicative of sum. The past[1] and the future indicative of the irregular verb sum are conjugated as follows:

PAST INDICATIVE

1. e′ram, I-was	erā′mus, we-were
2. e′rās, you-were	erā′tis, you-were
3. e′rat, he-, she-, or it-was	e′rant, they-were

FUTURE INDICATIVE

1. e′rō, I-shall-be	e′rimus, we-shall-be
2. e′ris, you-will-be	e′ritis, you-will-be
3. e′rit, he-, she-, or it-will-be	e′runt, they-will-be

171. Preposition ē or ex. Latin has two prepositions meaning from, with the ablative: ā or ab and ē or ex.

Vir ab castrīs properat
Vir ex castrīs properat } the man hastens from the camp

But ā or ab means from the outside of, and ē or ex from the inside of. Note the diagram:

NOTE. Write ē before consonants only, ex before either vowels or consonants.

[1] Also called the imperfect.

QUŌ, QUĪNTE PROPERĀS?

S. Rōmānus sum. Populō Rōmānō bellum semper grātum est. Sed in nostrō oppidō nōn erat fāma bellī. Quis, Quīnte, bellum parat? Eritne novum bellum cum Gallīs?

Q. Nōn cum Gallīs. Germānī, semper inimīcī Rōmānīs, bellum magnā dīligentiā parant. Ex silvīs Germāniae cōpiās suās convocant. Mox viae, Sexte, erunt crēbrae equīs et virīs, et agrī Rōmānī proximī Germāniae in perīculō erunt. Sed nostra victōria erit.

173. 1. The Germans fight with long spears. 2. Soon we-shall-be outside-of the Roman camp. 3. Shall-you-be with Sextus? We-shall. 4. The perils of-our forces were many.

174. Derivation. Give the meaning of the following English words and tell to what Latin words they are related:

insulate	conservation	longevity	agriculture	elaborate sinecure	navigable	servile	virile	depopulate

PAST INDICATIVE ACTIVE OF THE FIRST CONJUGATION

175. Formation of Tenses. Instead of using auxiliary verbs, like was, shall, will, etc., to express differences in tense, Latin adds to the verb stem certain elements that have the force of auxiliary verbs. These are called tense signs.

176. The tense sign of the past is -bā-, which is added to the present stem. The past consists, therefore, of three parts:

Present Stem	Tense Sign	Personal Ending
vocā-	ba-	m
calling-	was-	I

a. Note that the Latin verb is translated from right to left, so that English I was calling is in Latin vocā'bam, calling-was-I.

177. Inflection of Past Indicative Active. The personal endings of the past are the same as those of the present, except that -m is used instead of -ō in the first person singular.

SINGULAR

1. vocā'bam, I-was-calling or I-called
2. vocā'bās, you-were-calling or you-called
3. vocā'bat, he-, she-, it-was-calling or he-, she-, it-called

PLURAL

1. vocābā'mus, we-were-calling or we-called
2. vocābā'tis, you-were-calling or you-called
3. vocā'bant, they-were-calling or they-called

a. Note that the inflection above is somewhat like that of eram (§ 170), the past tense of sum, and that the long ā of the tense sign -bā- is shortened before final -m, -t, and -nt. A long vowel is regularly shortened before nt and final -m or -t. Learn this rule now.

178. Meaning of Past Tense. The Latin past tense has two uses.

a. It may represent an action as going on in past time and not yet completed, and is then translated by the English past progressive: as, vocābam, I was calling. For this reason this tense is often called the imperfect.

b. It usually describes a past situation, and is then translated by the English past: as, vocābam, I called. For this reason this tense is often called the past descriptive.

EXERCISES

FUTURE INDICATIVE ACTIVE OF THE FIRST CONJUGATION

183. Formation of Future Indicative Active. The tense sign of the future in the first conjugation is -bi-. This is added to the present stem and followed by the personal endings.

Present Stem	Tense Sign	Personal Ending
vocā-	bi-	t
call-	will-	he

184. Inflection of Future Indicative Active. The first person singular ends in -bō, the 1 of the tense sign disappearing. In the third person plural -bi- becomes -bu-.

1. vocā′bō, I-shall-call	vocā′bimus, we-shall-call
2. vocā′bis, you-will-call	vocā′bitis, you-will-call
3. vocā′bit, he-, she-, it-will-call	vocā′bunt, they-will-call

a. Note that the inflection is somewhat like that of erō (§ 170), the future of sum.

PRESENT, PAST, AND FUTURE INDICATIVE ACTIVE OF THE SECOND CONJUGATION

188. Formation of Present, Past, and Future Indicative Active. Verbs having the infinitive termination -ēre, such as monē're, belong to the Second Conjugation.

189. The present, past, and future of the second conjugation, as of the first, are formed on the present stem.

190. The present stem of the second conjugation ends in -ē (§ 155). This characteristic vowel appears in every form of the present, past, and future.

191. The same personal endings and the same tense signs are used as in the first conjugation.

192. Inflection of Present, Past, and Future Indicative Active. The inflection below shows the present, past, and future indicative active of vo'cō (I call) of the first conjugation and of mo'neō (I advise or warn) of the second. Review the forms of vo'cō and learn the corresponding tenses of mo'neō.

vo'cō, vocā're (pres. stem vocā-), call

PRESENT

1. vo'cō, I-call	vocā'mus, we-call
2. vo'cās, you-call	vocā'tis, you-call
3. vo'cat, he-, she-, it-calls	vo'cant, they-call

[1] From Plautus, a writer of Latin plays.

PAST (IMPERFECT)

1. voca′bam, I-was-calling or I-called
2. voca′bās, you-were-calling or you-called
3. voca′bat, he-, she-, it-was-calling or he-, she-, it-called

1. vocabā′mus, we-were-calling or we-called
2. vocabā′tis, you-were-calling or you-called
3. voca′bant, they-were-calling or they-called

FUTURE

1. voca′bō, I-shall-call	voca′bimus, we-shall-call
2. voca′bis, you-will-call	voca′bitis, you-will-call
3. voca′bit, he-, she-, it-will-call	voca′bunt, they-will-call

mo′neō, monē′re (pres. stem monē-), advise

PRESENT

1. mo′neō, I-advise	monē′mus, we-advise
2. mo′nēs, you-advise	monē′tis, you-advise
3. mo′net, he-, she-, it-advises	mo′nent, they-advise

PAST (IMPERFECT)

1. monē′bam, I-was-advising or I-advised
2. monē′bās, you-were-advising or you-advised
3. monē′bat, he-, she-, it-was-advising or he-, she-, it-advised

1. monēbā′mus, we-were-advising or we-advised
2. monēbā′tis, you-were-advising or you-advised
3. monē′bant, they-were-advising or they-advised

FUTURE

1. monē′bō, I-shall-advise	monē′bimus, we-shall-advise
2. monē′bis, you-will-advise	monē′bitis, you-will-advise
3. monē′bit, he-will-advise	monē′bunt, they-will-advise

193. Nearly all regular verbs ending in -eō belong to the Second Conjugation.

194. Shortening of Vowels. Attention has been called to the shortening of long vowels in certain forms. The following rules are of general application:

1. A long vowel is shortened before another vowel.

Thus, monē-ō becomes mone-ō.

2. A long vowel is shortened before nt and nd, before final -m or -t, and, except in words of one syllable, before final -l or -r.

Thus, vocănt, vocăndus, vocābăm, vocābăt, monĕt.

LATIN ORDER OF WORDS

197. Order of Words in English and Latin Compared. In English, words are arranged in a fairly fixed order, and this order cannot be changed, as a rule, without changing or destroying the meaning of the sentence.

198. In Latin the office of the words in a sentence is shown by their forms (§ 39), and their position is much more free. Still there are general rules of order, which should be carefully observed. The rules already given in the preceding lessons are here summarized for review.

a. The subject generally stands first, the verb last. But, to avoid obscurity, est, is, and other forms of the verb to be usually stand, as in English, between the subject and a noun or adjective in the predicate.

NOTE. In connected narrative each succeeding sentence begins with the word or words that link it most closely to the sentence preceding. For example, in "The Rhine was the frontier of Germany. Cæsar built a bridge across this river," the order of words in Latin would be "The Rhine was the frontier of Germany. Across this river Cæsar a bridge built." Observe that the first words of the second sentence, "Across this river," link it to the sentence preceding and are therefore placed before the subject, "Cæsar."

b. The indirect object may either precede or follow the direct object.

c. The vocative case rarely stands first.

d. An adjective may either precede or follow its noun (cf. § 199).

e. The possessive adjective regularly follows its noun.

f. Adverbs normally stand directly before the words they modify.

[1] From Terence, a writer of Latin comedies. The expression applies to an unexpected and unwelcome appearance; cf. "Speak of the devil."

199. Words are made emphatic by placing them in unusual positions. Thus we have seen that possessive adjectives, which regularly follow their nouns, are made emphatic by placing them before their nouns (§ 137); and any adjective or other modifier is made emphatic by separating it from the word to which it belongs. Observe the following sentences:

Caesar agrōs pulchrōs Gallōrum occupat
Caesar pulchrōs Gallōrum agrōs occupat

In the first sentence pulchrōs is not emphatic. In the second it has been made so by separating it from its noun agrōs. The order of words, therefore, in a Latin sentence tells the eyes of the reader as much about the emphasis as his ears tell him when he hears a man speak. If you do not note the order, you will often fail to get the sense.

EXERCISES

200. Derivation. What Latin derivatives can you find in the following paragraph? Give the meaning of each derivative and the Latin word from which it is derived.

Britain, because of its insular character, was not occupied by the Romans for many years. Its inhabitants were a great multitude, barbarous in their habits of life, very belligerent, and not slow to fight for their liberties. Then, too, the visible and the invisible perils of navigation in the open sea, though not insuperable, made the Romans timid.

THE ROMAN FORUM AS IT NOW APPEARS

No spot has greater historic interest than the Roman Forum, the center of the political and commercial life of the Roman Empire. Its magnificent buildings were restored for the last time in the sixth century. Then for more than a thousand years they were systematically destroyed and buried in rubbish, so that now the ancient pavement is at places forty feet below the present level of the ground. At the left of the picture is the Palatine Hill, and at the farther end of the Forum is the Capitoline

THE DEMONSTRATIVE IS, EA, ID

201. Definition of a Demonstrative. A demonstrative is a word that points out an object, as, this, that, these, those. Sometimes these words are pronouns: as, Do you hear these? Sometimes they are adjectives: as, Do you hear these men? In the former case they are called demonstrative pronouns, in the latter demonstrative adjectives.

202. Agreement of Latin Demonstratives. Demonstrative pronouns agree in gender and number with the nouns to which they refer, but their case is determined by the way they are used.

Demonstrative adjectives, like other adjectives, agree with their nouns in gender, number, and case.

203. Demonstrative is, ea, id. The demonstrative most used is is (masculine), ea (feminine), id (neuter), meaning this or that in the singular and these or those in the plural. It is declined as follows:

	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.
Nom.	is	ea	id	eī (iī)	eae	ea
Gen.	eius	eius	eius	eōrum	eārum	eōrum
Dat.	eī	eī	eī	eīs (iīs)	eīs (iīs)	eīs (iīs)

Abl.	eō	eā	eō	eīs (iīs)	eīs (iīs)	eīs (iīs)

[1] From Horace. The meaning is that even the best make mistakes. Of similar sentiment are his words "Vitiīs nēmō sine nāscitur," no one is born without faults.

The genitive singular eius is pronounced eh'yus. The plural forms with two i's are pronounced as one syllable. Hence, pronounce iī as ī and iīs as īs.

204. Position of Demonstrative Adjectives. Demonstrative adjectives, being emphatic, normally precede their nouns: as,

Ad eam īnsulam nāvigat, he is sailing to this (or that) island

205. Demonstratives used as Personal Pronouns. Latin demonstratives are frequently used for the personal pronouns of the third person, he, she, it, or (plural) they. Is, as a personal pronoun, has the following meanings:

Nom.	is, he; ea, she; id, it
Gen.	eius, of him, his; eius, of her, her, hers; eius, of it, its
Dat.	eī, to or for him; eī, to or for her; eī, to or for it
Acc.	eum, him; eam, her; id, it
Abl.	eō, with, from, etc., him; eā, with, from, etc., her; eō, with, from, etc., it

Nom.	eī or iī, eae, ea, they
Gen.	eōrum, eārum, eōrum, of them, their
Dat.	eīs or iīs, eīs or iīs, eīs or iīs, to or for them

1. Observe that vīta is translated lives. The plural of vīta is not used except in the sense of biographies, as, vītae magnōrum virōrum, lives of great men.

207. 1. He-sees him, her, it, them. 2. This plan, that life, these boys. 3. For-those rewards, with that friend, the rumor of-that battle. 4. The story of-those wrongs, for-that life, those girls.

LESSON XXV

Aurea mediocritās — The golden mean[1]

THE POSSESSIVE OF THE THIRD PERSON

208. We learned in § 135 that the possessive of the third person, suus, -a, -um, his, her, its, their, is reflexive and is used when the subject is the possessor: as,

Britannī īnsulam suam amant, the Britons love their island

209. When his, her, its, their do not refer to the subject, but to other persons or things, we translate his, her, its by eius (of him, of her, of it), and their by eōrum (of them) for masculine or neuter possessors and eārum for feminine possessors.

Galba sees his (own) danger, Galba perīculum suum videt
Galba sees his danger (not his own), Galba perīculum eius videt
The men see their (own) danger, virī perīculum suum vident
The men see their danger (not their own), virī perīculum eōrum (eārum) vident

THE PRESENT INDICATIVE ACTIVE OF THE THIRD CONJUGATION

212. Verbs having the infinitive termination -ĕre belong to the Third Conjugation: as, regō, re′gĕre (rule), present stem regĕ- (cf. § 155).

213. The present indicative active of regō is inflected as follows:

	Personal Endings		Personal Endings
1. re′gō, I-rule	-ō	re′gimus, we-rule	-mus
2. re′gis, you-rule	-s	re′gitis, you-rule	-tis
3. re′git, he-, she-, it-rules	-t	re′gunt, they-rule	-nt

a. Note that the final -e of the present stem disappears in the first person singular, becomes -u- in the third person plural and -i- elsewhere. The inflection is much like that of erō, the future of sum.

EXERCISES

214. Like regō, re′gere, inflect the present indicative active of dīcō, dī′cere, speak, say; and dūcō, dū′cere, lead.

215. Derivation. From the verb dūcō many English words are derived. Define the following:

ductile	induce	produce	adduce
duke	introduce	reduce	deduce

LESSON XXVII

Cum grānō salis — With a grain of salt[1]

THE PRESENT INDICATIVE ACTIVE OF THE FOURTH CONJUGATION

217. Verbs having the infinitive termination -īre belong to the Fourth Conjugation: as, audiō, audī're (hear), present stem audī- (cf. § 155).

218. The present indicative active of audiō, audī're, is inflected as follows:

	Personal Endings		Personal Endings
1. au'diō, I-hear	-ō	audī'mus, we-hear	-mus
2. au'dīs, you-hear	-s	audī'tis, you-hear	-tis
3. au'dit, he-, she-, it-hears	-t	au'diunt, they-hear	-nt

a. Note that ī, the characteristic vowel, is always long except where long vowels are regularly shortened (cf. § 194). In the third person plural u is inserted between the stem and the personal ending: as, audi-u-nt.

EXERCISES

219. Like audiō, audīre, inflect the present indicative active of veniō, venīre, come, and mūniō, mūnīre, fortify.

220. 1. Nūntiābunt, venītis, habēbat, mūnīs. 2. Vidēbātis, audīmus, timēbit, veniunt. 3. Dabit, tenēbunt, mūnītis, nāvigābās. 4. Audit, timēbātis, nārrant, habēbimus. 5. Properābunt, venīmus, parābās, mūniunt.

1. Translate, lives. 2. Made up of id and -ne, the question sign. 3. His men. The possessives are often pronouns (cf. § 132). 4. Indirect object.

LESSON XXVIII

Palma nōn sine pulvere — No prize without a struggle[1]

THE DATIVE WITH SPECIAL INTRANSITIVE VERBS

222. Intransitive verbs do not admit of a direct object (§ 25). Many such verbs, however, are of such meaning that they can govern a dative as indirect object (§ 58). This dative, in Latin, represents the person or thing to which a benefit, injury, or feeling is directed; but it appears in English as a direct object.

223. Learn the following list of common verbs whose meanings call for a dative as indirect object:

	Derivatives
crē'dō, crē'dere, believe (give belief to), trust	creed, credit, creditor
fa'veō, favē're, favor (show favor to)	favorite, favorable
no'ceō, nocē're, injure (do harm to)	noxious, innocent pā'reō, pārē're, obey (give obedience to) persuā'deō, persuādē're, persuade (make a thing agreeable to)	dissuade, suasion resis'tō, resis'tere, resist (offer resistance to)	persist, insist, desist
stu'deō, studē're, be eager (give attention to)	study, student, studious

a. The verbs crēdō and persuādeō are transitive in some senses and take an accusative (direct object) along with the dative (indirect object): as, Rōmānīs sua crēdunt, they intrust their possessions to the Romans.

224. Rule for Dative with Intransitive Verbs. The dative of the indirect object is used with the intransitive verbs crēdō, faveō, noceō, pāreō, persuādeō, resistō, studeō, and others of like meaning.

[1] Literally, No palm without dust, referring to the palm branch, the prize of the victor in the chariot race, and the dust raised by the struggle. Compare Mrs. Browning's "No cross, no crown."

EXERCISES

225. Inflect the present indicative active of servō, faveō, crēdō, and mūniō.

226. Derivation. The verb resistō, resist, is composed of the verb sistō, stand, and the prefix re-, back or again, so that resist means to stand back in the line or stand again after running away.

Look up the words consist, desist, exist, insist, and persist, and note the force of each of the prefixes.

227. 1. Crēdisne sociīs eōrum? Eīs nōn crēdō. 2. Meī fīnitimī cōnsiliīs novīs tuīs nōn favent. 3. Servī bellō student. 4. Bonae puellae librīs suīs numquam nocent. 5. Equī Galbae Mārcō nautae nōn pārent.

228. 1. We-persuade our friends. 2. We-resist our neighbors. 3. That boy does not obey Lesbia. 4. You-believe them, my friends, because-of-your friendship.[1]

1. Ablative of cause, § 165.

LESSON XXIX

Dīrigō — I point the way[1]

THE PAST INDICATIVE ACTIVE OF REGŌ AND AUDIŌ

229. Formation and Inflection. The tense sign is -bā-, as in the first two conjugations. The past indicative of regō is formed and inflected just like that of moneō. The past indicative of audiō has iē before the tense sign: as, audiē'bam.

THIRD CONJUGATION

1. regē'bam, I-was-ruling or I-ruled
2. regē'bās, you-were-ruling or you-ruled
3. regē'bat, he-was-ruling or he-ruled

1. regēbā'mus, we-were-ruling or we-ruled
2. regēbā'tis, you-were-ruling or you-ruled
3. regē'bant, they-were-ruling or they-ruled

FOURTH CONJUGATION

1. audiē'bam, I-was-hearing or I-heard
2. audiē'bās, you-were-hearing or you-heard
3. audiē'bat, he-was-hearing or he-heard

1. audiēbā'mus, we-were-hearing or we-heard
2. audiēbā'tis, you-were-hearing or you-heard
3. audiē'bant, they-were-hearing or they-heard

230. The Conjunction -que. The conjunction and is often expressed in Latin by -que added to the second of two associated words: as, senātus populus'que Rōmānus, the senate and the Roman people

[1] Motto of the state of Maine.

a. Words which do not stand alone, but are attached to other words, are called enclit'ics. We have already had -ne, the question sign.

EXERCISES

231. Inflect the present and past indicative of nūntiō, studeō, crēdō, and veniō.

232. 1. Dīcēbant, audiēbātis, superābit, dūcunt. 2. Tenēbis, regitis, mūniēbāmus, habēbunt. 3. Dīcimus, timēbātis, patent, veniēbat. 4. Dūcēbam, mūniunt, vidēbitis, patēbis. 5. Servābō, audiēbās, tenēs, dīcēbāmus.

DĒ DEĪS RŌMĀNĪS

First learn the special vocabulary, page 365. The names of the gods mentioned below, being the same in English and Latin, are not included.

233. 1. Rōmānī multōs deōs et multās deās habēbant. 2. Poētae Rōmānī multās fābulās dē deīs et deābus [1] nārrābant. 3. Eīs fābulīs nōn crēdimus. 4. Populus Rōmānus deōs deāsque timēbat et eīs pārēbat. 5. In numerō deōrum erant Iuppiter et Neptūnus et Mārs. 6. Iuppiter deōs deāsque regēbat, Neptūnus in aquīs altīs habitābat. 7. Mārs erat deus bellī, et proeliīs semper studēbat. 8. In numerō deārum erant Iūnō et Minerva et Diāna. 9. Iūnō erat rēgīna deārum. 10. Minerva erat dea sapientiae. 11. Diāna erat rēgīna silvārum.

ATHĒNA DEA SAPIENTIAE

1. dea is declined like fīlia (§ 70. a), having deābus in the dative and ablative plural.

234. 1. Good men obey the gods. 2. Evil men resist the gods. 3. The gods never do harm to good boys and girls. 4. Minerva favors men who (quī) are eager for wisdom.

LESSON XXX

In hōc signō vincēs — In this sign thou shalt conquer[1]

THE FUTURE INDICATIVE ACTIVE OF THE THIRD AND FOURTH CONJUGATIONS

235. Tense Sign and Inflection. The tense sign of the future in the third and fourth conjugations is not -bi-, as in the first and second conjugations, but -a- in the first person singular and -ē- in the rest of the tense. This tense sign takes the place of the final vowel of the present stem in verbs conjugated like regō, and is preceded by the stem vowel -i in verbs conjugated like audiō. The usual shortening of long vowels takes place (cf. § 194).

236. The inflection of the future indicative active of regō (third conjugation) and audiō (fourth conjugation) is as follows:

1. re′gam, I-shall-rule	au′diam, I-shall-hear
2. re′gēs, you-will-rule	au′diēs, you-will-hear
3. re′get, he-will-rule	au′diet, he-will-hear
1. regē′mus, we-shall-rule	audiē′mus, we-shall-hear
2. regē′tis, you-will-rule	audiē′tis, you-will-hear
3. re′gent, they-will-rule	au′dient, they-will-hear

a. Observe that the future of the third conjugation is like the present of the second, except in the first person singular.

EXERCISES

237. Inflect the present, past, and future indicative active of con′vocō, te′neō, dīcō, and mū′niō.

[1] Translation of the Greek motto which Constantine, the first Christian emperor, is said to have seen on a flaming cross in the sky. This vision, we are told, led to his conversion, and his banners afterwards bore a cross with its motto. It is now the motto of the order of Knights Templar.

238. Derivation. Latin prepositions are often used as prefixes and added to simple verbs to make compound verbs. These same prefixes appear in English and generally have the same meanings as in Latin.

Form English derivatives from each of the following Latin compounds, and note the force of the prefix:

ab, from + dūcō, lead = abdūcō, lead away ad, to + dūcō, lead = addūcō, lead to dē, down or from + dūcō, lead = dēdūcō, lead down or from ē, out of + dūcō, lead = ēdūcō, lead out of in, into + dūcō, lead = indūcō, lead into

GLASS VASES FROM POMPEII

LESSON XXXI

Nōn est ad astra mollis ē terrīs via — Not easy is the way from the earth to the stars[1]

VERBS IN -IŌ OF THE THIRD CONJUGATION

241. Some verbs of the third conjugation do not end in -ō like regō, but in -iō, like audiō of the fourth conjugation. The fact that they belong to the third conjugation and not to the fourth is shown by the ending of the infinitive (§ 155). Compare audiō, audī're (hear), fourth conjugation capiō, ca'pere (take), third conjugation

242. Observe that capiō is inflected like audiō throughout the past and future; but that in the present only the forms capiō and capiunt are like audiō and audiunt, all the other forms being like corresponding forms of regō (cf. capis, regis; capit, regit; etc.).

[1] From Seneca, a Roman philosopher.

Tum Thēseus, clārus hērōs (hero) Graecōrum, in patriā nōn erat. Sed mox fāmam miseram audit et in patriam celeriter properat. Populum convocat et dīcit: "Semper, O Graecī, erimus servī? Semper fīliōs fīliāsque ad Crētam mittēmus? Bonum cōnsilium capiam. Minerva, dea sapientiae, auxilium dabit. Mīnōtaurum malum nōn timeō. Cum eō pugnābō et eum vincam."

245. 1. We-were-making, they-will-wage, you-are-sending. 2. We-shall-conquer, you-will-take, they-will-make. 3. He-was-waging, we-shall-come, you-hear. 4. They-will-say, he-will-announce, we-shall-make.

LESSON XXXII

Nē cēde malīs — Do not yield to misfortunes[1]

THE IMPERATIVE MOOD · QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

246. The imperative mood expresses a command: as, come! go! speak!

247. The Latin imperative has two tenses, the present and future. The present is used more than the future, which is not included in this book.

248. The present imperative is used only in the second person, singular and plural. In the active voice the singular is the same in form as the present stem. The plural is formed by adding -te to the singular.

FIRST CONJUGATION

2. vocā, call-thou — vocā'te, call-ye

SECOND CONJUGATION

2. monē, advise-thou — monē'te, advise-ye

THIRD CONJUGATION

2. rege, rule-thou — re'gite,[2] rule-ye

FOURTH CONJUGATION

2. audī, hear-thou — audī'te, hear-ye

250. The irregular verb sum has es, be thou, and este, be ye, as present imperatives.

[1] From Vergil, author of the Aenē'id, the greatest Latin epic poem.

[2] Note that in the third conjugation e of the stem becomes i before -te.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

251. We learned in § 109 that questions might be introduced, as in English, by interrogative pronouns or adverbs: as, quis ? who ? ubi ? where ? quō ? whither ? cūr ? why ? and that questions expecting the answer yes or no were often introduced by -ne, the question sign, combined with the first word.

But questions expecting the answer yes or no may take one of three forms:

1. Venitne ? Is he coming ? (Asking for information.)
2. Nōnne venit ? Is he not coming ? (Expecting the answer yes.)
3. Num venit ? He isn't coming, is he ? (Expecting the answer no.)

252. We learned in § 110 that yes-or-no questions are usually answered by repeating the verb, with or without a negative. Instead of this, ita, vērō, certē, etc. (so, truly, certainly, etc.) may be used for yes; and nōn, minimē, etc. for no if the denial is an emphatic by no means, not at all, or the like.

Num via longa est ? Minimē. The road isn't long, is it ? Not at all.

EXERCISES

253. Give the present imperative of the following verbs: faciō, veniō, gerō, pateō, servō.

254. Tum Thēseus nāvigium celeriter parat et ad īnsulam Crētam nāvigat. Cum[1] ad ōram altam venit, ex nāvigiō properat et terram petit. Eum Ariadnē,[2] fīlia rēgīnae, videt. Tum eum vocat et dīcit: "Quis es, bone vir[3]? Quid in patriā meā petis? Nōnne Graecus es? Crēta est inimīca Graecīs et vīta tua est in perīculō." Thēseus respondet:

"Thēseus sum, Graecōrum hērōs (hero), nōtus fāmā[4] meā per multās terrās. Mīnōtaurum petō. Cum[1] eō pugnābō. Eum vincam. Nōnne Thēseō auxilium dabis?" Tum Ariadnē, clārā fāmā et magnō animō Thēseī commōta (moved), eum amat et respondet: "Num barbara sum? Vītam tuam servābō. Cape arma et venī."

1. The conjunction cum, when, and the preposition cum, with, though alike, are easily distinguished, as cum, with, is followed by the ablative case. 2. Pronounce in English A-ri-ad'ne. 3. Good sir. 4. Ablative of cause.

255. 1. Nūntiā, mūnīte, mitte. 2. Pete, venī, nāvigāte. 3. Servāte, mūnī, tenē. 4. Vidēte, portā, mittite.

THE APPIAN WAY AND THE CLAUDIAN AQUEDUCT

The Romans excelled as engineers and builders. A system of splendid roads connected the capital with the different parts of the Empire. "All roads lead to Rome" was literally true. The Appian Way extended southeast to Brundisium, the great commercial port for the East. Equally famous were the aqueducts, bringing the city an abundant water supply

LESSON XXXIII

Accipere quam facere iniūriam praestat — It is better to suffer a wrong than to do one[1]

PRESENT INDICATIVE PASSIVE OF THE FIRST CONJUGATION

256. Passive Voice. The passive voice (§ 141) uses a different set of personal endings from those of the active. The present indicative passive of vocō is inflected as follows:

vo′cō, vocā′re (pres. stem vocā-), call

	Personal Endings
1. vo′cor, I-am-called	-r or -or
2. vocā′ris or -re, you-are-called	-ris or -re
3. vocā′tur, he-, she-, it-is-called	-tur
1. vocā′mur, we-are-called	-mur
2. vocā′minī, you-are-called	-minī
3. voca′ntur, they-are-called	-ntur

a. The letter r, which appears in all but one of the personal endings, is sometimes called the passive sign.

b. A long vowel is shortened before final -r or -ntur.

c. The forms vocor etc. may be translated either I am called etc. or I am being called etc.

EXERCISES

257. Like vocor, inflect amor, servor, nūntior, portor, superor.

258. Derivation. The prefix con- (com-, co-), identical with the preposition cum (with), added to simple verbs makes many compounds both in Latin and English. This prefix sometimes means with or together, and sometimes strengthens the simple verb with the meaning completely, forcibly. What is the force of this prefix in the following words?

contain (teneō)	compete (petō)	conserve (servō)
convoke (convocō)	convince (vincō)	conduct (dūcō)
collaborate[1] (labōrō)	convene (veniō)	commit (mittō)

1. The final letter of the prefix is often assimilated (made like) to the first letter of the simple verb.

259. Tum Ariadnē Thēseum in nōtum labyrinthum indūcit et eī longum fīlum (string) dat et dīcit: "Tenē id fīlum. Fīlum vēstīgia (steps) tua reget[1] et ex labyrinthō tē (you) ēdūcet. Nunc properā. Mīnōtaurum audiō. Num timēs? Eī fortiter resiste et clāra erit victōria tua. Vince et servā vītam puerōrum puellārumque Graeciae." Mox Thēseus Mīnōtaurum videt et petit.[2] Diū pugnātur[3] nec sine magnō periculō. Dēnique Mīnōtaurus superātur, et posteā puerī puellaeque servantur.

PUERĪ PUELLAEQUE THĒSEUM AMANT

From a Pompeian wall painting

1. Guide. 2. Attack. 3. The form pugnātur means it is fought; translate freely, the battle is fought or the contest rages. The verb pugnō in Latin is intransitive, and so has no personal subject in the passive. A verb with an indeterminate subject is called impersonal, as in English it rains.

LESSON XXXIV

Terrās irradient — Let them illumine the earth[1]

PRESENT INDICATIVE PASSIVE OF MONEO · ABLATIVE OF THE PERSONAL AGENT

260. The present indicative passive of the second conjugation is inflected as follows:

	Personal Endings
1. mo'neor, I-am-advised	-r or -or
2. monē'ris or -re, you-are-advised	-ris or -re
3. monē'tur, he-, she-, it-is-advised	-tur
1. monē'mur, we-are-advised	-mur
2. monē'minī, you-are-advised	-minī
3. monen'tur, they-are-advised	-ntur

261. Rule for Ablative of Personal Agent. The ablative with the preposition ā or ab is used with passive verbs to indicate the person by whom the act is performed.

Puerī ā Rōmānīs servantur, the boys are saved by the Romans

Note. The literal meaning of ā Rōmānīs is from the Romans, but in our idiom by the Romans is a better translation.

262. Ablative of Means and Ablative of Agent Compared. Compare the two sentences:

Puerī ā Rōmānīs servantur, the boys are saved by the Romans
Puerī nāvigiō servantur, the boys are saved by (or with) a boat

In the first sentence ā Rōmānīs is the ablative of personal agent; in the second nāvigiō is the ablative of means. To aid in distinguishing these two constructions, which are often confused, observe the following facts:

a. The agent is a person; the means is a thing.

b. The ablative of personal agent has the preposition ā or ab; the ablative of means has no preposition.

c. The ablative of personal agent is used only with a passive verb; with the ablative of means the verb may be either active or passive.

EXERCISES

263. Like moneor, inflect habeor, teneor, timeor, videor.

264. 1. Superāris, habēmur, videntur. 2. Tenētur, occupāminī, timēmur. 3. Vidēris, parantur, tenēminī. 4. Servātur, habētur, tenēmur. 5. Portāminī, habēris, teneor.

265. 1. Gallī crēbra proelia faciunt et fortiter pugnant, sed ā fīnitimīs superantur. 2. Mīnōtaurus ā filiābus eōrum timētur. 3. Num Thēseus Mīnōtaurum barbarum timet? Nōn timet. 4. Capite arma, Rōmānī; ā barbarīs inimīcīs vidēminī. 5. Nec frūmentum nec aquam in castrīs habēmus. Quid faciēmus? 6. Tenē castra, Mārce, bonīs tēlīs. Iam (soon) sociī nostrī auxilium mittent.

266. 1. The Gauls are quickly conquered by-the-arms of-the-Romans. 2. Are not pleasing stories told by many poets? Yes. 3. Theseus is-advised by Minerva, the goddess of-wisdom. 4. By-the-wisdom of-Minerva we-are-saved. 5. Give that money to-the-good queen, my son. 6. The camp of-the-savages has neither wall nor ditch. 7. When we-are-seen by your men, we-shall-suffer punishment.

Salvē! — Hail[1]

THE PAST AND FUTURE INDICATIVE PASSIVE OF THE FIRST AND SECOND CONJUGATIONS

267. The tense signs of the past and future passive are the same as in the active. The inflection of vocō and moneō in these two tenses is as follows:

vo′cō, vocā′re (pres. stem vocā-), call

PAST INDICATIVE PASSIVE (TENSE SIGN -bā-)

	PERSONAL ENDINGS
1. vocā′bar, I-was-called[2]	-r
2. vocābā′ris or -re, you-were-called	-ris or -re
3. vocābā′tur, he-, she-, it-was-called	-tur
1. vocābā′mur, we-were-called	-mur
2. vocābā′minī, you-were-called	-minī
3. vocāban′tur, they-were-called	-ntur

FUTURE INDICATIVE PASSIVE (TENSE SIGN -bi-)

1. vocā′bor, I-shall-be-called	-r
2. vocā′beris or -re, you-will-be-called	-ris or -re
3. vocā′bitur, he-, she-, it-will-be-called	-tur
1. vocā′bimur, we-shall-be-called	-mur
2. vocābi′minī, you-will-be-called	-minī
3. vocābun′tur, they-will-be-called	-ntur

[1] Motto of the state of Idaho.

[2] Or I-was-being-called, etc. Thus for all verbs in the past indicative passive.

mo′neō, monē′re (pres. stem monē-), advise

PAST INDICATIVE PASSIVE (TENSE SIGN -bā-)

	PERSONAL ENDINGS
1. monē′bar, I-was-advised	-r
2. monēbā′ris or -re, you-were-advised	-ris or -re
3. monēbā′tur, he-, she-, it-was-advised	-tur
1. monēbā′mur, we-were-advised	-mur
2. monēbā′minī, you-were-advised	-minī
3. monēban′tur, they-were-advised	-ntur

FUTURE INDICATIVE PASSIVE (TENSE SIGN -bi-)

1. monē′bor, I-shall-be-advised	-r
2. monē′beris or -re, you-will-be-advised	-ris or -re
3. monē′bitur, he-, she-, it-will-be-advised	-tur
1. monē′bimur, we-shall-be-advised	-mur
2. monēbi′minī, you-will-be-advised	-minī
3. monēbun′tur, they-will-be-advised	-ntur

a. In the future passive the tense sign -bi- appears as -bo- in the first and as -be- in the second person singular, and as -bu- in the third person plural.

EXERCISES

268. Inflect the following verbs in the present, past, and future, active and passive: amō, nūntiō, portō, teneō, videō, timeō.

269. 1. Amābās, amābāris, timēbis, timēberis. 2. Servat, servātur, dabit, dabitur. 3. Portāmus, portābāmus, portābimus. 4. Dabiminī, vidēbuntur, tenēmur. 5. Amantur, dabātur, timentur. 6. Vidēris, nūntiāmus, timēbat. 7. Tenent, timēbunt, monēris. 8. Vidēbant, amābiminī, portāmur. 9. Venīte, timē.

270. 1. They-will-be-feared, I-am-loved, we-were-seen. 2. We-are-carried, you-will-be-advised (plur.), they-have. 3. He-will-hasten, you-were-announcing (sing.), he-persuades. 4. I-shall-injure, you-favor (sing.), you-will-be-overcome (plur.). 5. We-shall-be-carried, I-was-eager-for, you-will-favor (sing.). 6. He-will-obey, we-are-held, they-were-seen.

LESSON XXXIX

Dum spīrō, spērō — While I breathe, I hope[1]

THE PRESENT INFINITIVE AND THE PRESENT IMPERATIVE, ACTIVE AND PASSIVE

284. Infinitive Defined. The infinitive is a verbal noun, giving the general meaning of the verb without person or number; as, amāre, to love.

285. Present Infinitive. The present infinitive active is formed by adding -re to the present stem (§ 154). The present infinitive passive may be formed from the active by changing final -e to -ī, except in the third conjugation, which changes final -ere to -ī.

Conj.	Pres. Stem	Pres. Inf. Active	Pres. Inf. Passive
I	vocā-	vocā′re, to-call	vocā′rī, to-be-called
II	monē-	monē′re, to-advise	monē′rī, to-be-advised
III	rege-	re′gere, to-rule	re′gī, to-be-ruled
IV	audī-	audī′re, to-hear	audī′rī, to-be-heard

a. The present infinitive of sum is esse. There is no passive.

286. Present Imperative. The active forms of the present imperative, already given in § 249, are repeated below for comparison with the passive forms. The present imperative passive ends in -re in the singular and in -minī in the plural. Thus the singular of the passive imperative is like the present active infinitive, and the plural is like the second person plural of the present indicative passive.

	IV	audī're, be-thou-heard	audī'minī, be-ye-heard

EXERCISES

287. Give the active and passive present infinitives of nārrō, rapiō, mūniō, respondeō, parō, gerō, videō, spectō, dūcō, vincō.

288. Give the imperative active of dīcō,[1] dūcō, faciō, nūntiō, veniō, crēdō, noceō, faveō, resistō, sedeō.

289. Give the imperative passive of nārrō, rapiō, portō, petō, occupō, vincō, servō, timeō, mūniō, videō.

290. 1. Hasten-thou, to-be-prepared, be-ye-sent, lead-thou. 2. To-lead, to-be-led, be-ye-seized, come-thou. 3. To-be-sent, to-save, lead-ye, speak-thou. 4. To-be-sought, be-ye-led, to-seize, to-be-held. 5. Fear-thou, come-ye, be-ye-prepared, to-be-fortified.

[1] The verbs dīcō, dūcō, and faciō have dīc, dūc, and fac in the singular of the present imperative active. The plural is formed regularly: dīcite, etc.

LESSON XLI

Equō nē crēdite — Do not trust the horse[1]

THE ABLATIVE DENOTING FROM

294. One of the relations covered by the ablative case is expressed in English by the preposition from (cf. § 65). This relation is represented in Latin by a number of special constructions. One of these, the ablative of personal agent, has been already discussed (§ 261). Two others of importance are the ablative of the place from, many instances of which have occurred in the preceding exercises, and the ablative of separation.

295. Rule for Ablative of Place From. The place from which is expressed by the ablative with the prepositions ā (ab), dē, ē (ex).

Agricolae ex agrīs veniunt, the farmers come from the fields

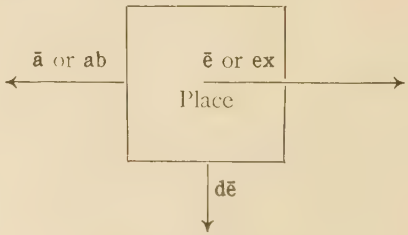
a. Ā or ab denotes from near a place; ē or ex, out from it; and dē, down from it. This may be represented graphically as follows:



[1] This is taken from Vergil's Æneid, and refers to the famous wooden horse by means of which the Greeks took Troy after they had besieged it in vain for ten years. Used in a general way, the expression is a warning against the tricks of an enemy.

296. Rule for Ablative of Separation. Words expressing separation or taking away are followed by the ablative, often with the prepositions ā (ab), dē, ē (ex).

1. Thēseus patriam ā Mīnōtaurō līberat, Theseus frees his country from the Minotaur
2. Thēseus patriam perīculō līberat, Theseus frees his country from peril

a. When there is actual separation of one material thing from another, as in 1, the preposition is usually present. When the separation is figurative, as in 2, the preposition is usually omitted.

Certē eōs līberābō et vir malus poenam dabit. 9. Factō[1] malō eum ex castrīs meīs agam.

1. Ablative of cause.

298. 1. The Roman camp was far distant from that place. 2. We shall be freed from the memory of those wrongs. 3. Depart from this place, my friends, and attack their towns. 4. My men will lead them away from the walls. 5. Keep[1] the savages out of your towns, Romans. 6. Seize that man, my son, and send him away. 7. The boys are not dull, are they[2]?

1. Imperative of prohibeō. 2. Review § 251.

LESSON XLII

Nōn omne quod nitet aurum est — All is not gold that glitters

PRINCIPAL PARTS · VERB STEMS · THE PERFECT STEM THE ENDINGS OF THE PERFECT

299. Principal Parts. Certain forms of the verb are important because we cannot inflect the verb without knowing them. These are called the principal parts.

In English, the principal parts are the present indicative, the past indicative, and the past participle: as, go, went, gone.

In Latin, the principal parts are the first person singular of the present indicative, the present infinitive, the first person singular of the perfect indicative, and the past participle: as,

vo'cō	vocā're	vocā'vī	vocā'tus

300. Verb Stems. From the principal parts we get three verb stems, from which we construct the entire conjugation. These are the present stem, formed from the present infinitive (§ 154), the perfect stem, and the participial stem.

301. The perfect stem is found by dropping final -ī from the first person singular of the perfect: as, vocāv- from vocā'vī, perfect of vocō.

302. The participial stem is found by dropping final -us from the past participle: as, vocāt- from vocā'tus, past participle of vocō.

303. From the perfect stem are formed

The Perfect Indicative Active
The Past Perfect Indicative Active
The Future Perfect Indicative Active

304. Endings of the Perfect. The perfect is inflected by adding the following endings to the perfect stem:

1. -ī, I	-imus, we
2. -istī, you	-istis, you
3. -it, he, she, it	-ērunt or -ēre, they

The endings of the perfect are different from those found in any other tense. They are the same in all conjugations.

305. Practically all the verbs of the first conjugation have regular principal parts: as,

vo'cō vocā're vocā'vī vocā'tus

Following the model, give the principal parts of amō, nārrō, portō, parō, occupō, pugnō, superō, spectō, līberō.

306. 1. Barbarī magnam cōpiam frūmentī comparābunt et ex agrīs suīs discēdent. 2. Multa oppida fīnitimōrum oppugnābunt. 3. Ea oppida mūrīs altīs et fossīs lātīs mūniuntur et fortiter dēfendentur. 4. Quam longē ab Italiā absunt ea oppida? Nōn longē absunt. 5. Nōnne Rōmānī auxilium ad ea oppida mittent? Certē, nam populī eōrum oppidōrum sunt socii Rōmānōrum. 6. Amplae cōpiae Rōmānōrum animōs timidōs sociōrum cōnfirmābunt. 7. Rōmānī firma praesidia in eīs oppidīs locābunt. 8. Itaque barbarī iniūriīs prohibēbuntur et cōpiās suās dīmittent.

307. 1. The cowardly allies will be defended by the Romans. 2. How far distant were those places[1] from their[2] camp? 3. Prepare an abundant supply[3] of grain, Marcus, and place it in our town. 4. Because of the memory[4] of your deeds, we shall be neither slow nor cowardly. 5. Their[2] hearts were encouraged, and so they seized their arms and bravely assaulted the lofty walls. 6. Why are you sitting there? Depart and quickly free those captives.

1. What is there irregular about the plural of locus? 2. Not suus (cf. §§ 135, 209). 3. cōpia. 4. Ablative of cause.

LESSON XLIII

Dīmidium factī est coepisse — Well begun is half done[1]

THE PERFECT, PAST PERFECT, AND FUTURE PERFECT INDICATIVE OF SUM

308. The irregular verb sum is inflected in the perfect, past perfect, and future perfect indicative as follows:

PRIN. PARTS: sum, esse, fuī (perf. stem fu-)

PERFECT

fu'ī, I have been, I was	fu'imus, we have been, we were fuis'tī, you have been, you were	fuis'tis, you have been, you were fu'it, he has been, he was	fuē'runt or fuē're, they have been, they were

PAST PERFECT (TENSE SIGN -erā-)

fu'eram, I had been	fuerā'mus, we had been fu'erās, you had been	fuerā'tis, you had been fu'erat, he had been	fu'erant, they had been

FUTURE PERFECT (TENSE SIGN -eri-)

fu'erō, I shall have been	fue'rimus, we shall have been fu'eris, you will have been	fue'ritis, you will have been fu'erit, he will have been	fu'erint, they will have been

[1] From Horace, the greatest Roman lyric poet and still the most widely read. The literal translation of the Latin is Half of an achievement is to have begun it.

a. The past perfect may be formed by adding eram, the past of sum, to the perfect stem. The tense sign is -erā-.

b. The future perfect may be formed by adding erō, the future of sum, to the perfect stem. But the third person plural ends in -erint, not -erunt. The tense sign is -eri-.

c. The perfect, past perfect, and future perfect of all active verbs are formed on the perfect stem. They are all inflected like sum.

SEXTUS, QUĪNTUS, MĀRCUS

309. Mārcus. Ubi fuistis, Sexte et Quīnte?

Sextus. Ego (/) in nostrā vīllā fuī, et Quīntus in suā vīllā fuit. Diū in agrīs nostrīs fuimus. Officia agricolārum sunt multa. Habēsne bonōs servōs?

M. Habeō. Diū exempla ēgregiae dīligentiae fuērunt. Eīs ampla praemia mox dabō et eōs līberābō.

S. Sine sapientiā fueris. Tenē bonōs servōs et līberā eōs numquam. Sed quid spectās, Quīnte?

Quīntus. Spectō eum pulchrum librum. Estne tuus?

M. Meus est. Semper bonīs librīs[1] studēbam. Is liber erat Galbae[2] et iam diū in casā suā erat. Liber est nōtus et de bellīs Rōmānōrum Gallōrumque nārrat. Dēnique Gallī pācantur, sed iam per septem[3] annōs Rōmānī in Galliā fuerant.

1. Dative. See § 224. 2. Genitive of the possessor, § 150. 3. Can you count seven in Latin?

310. 1. Where had the farmers been? They had been on their farms. 2. Have you not been examples of remarkable industry, O slaves? Yes. 3. Soon, Romans, we shall have been in Gaul for[1] seven years. 4. How long[2] have we been absent from our duties? 5. Finally the Gauls will be subdued, but they will have been neither stupid nor cowardly. 6. Encourage the loyal hearts of their[3] allies with an abundant supply of money.

1. per. 2. Distinguish between quam diū, how long, and quam longē, how far. 3. Not suus (cf. §§ 135, 209).

LESSON XLIV

Nōn ministrārī, sed ministrāre — Not to be ministered unto, but to minister[1]

USE AND INFLECTION OF THE PERFECT INDICATIVE ACTIVE

311. Use of the Perfect. The perfect indicative has two distinct meanings; according to its translation, it is called the present perfect or the past absolute.

312. As present perfect, the perfect is translated by the English present perfect with have, and denotes the action as completed at the time of speaking: as, I have now finished my work.

313. As past absolute, the perfect is translated by the English past tense, and denotes that the action took place sometime in the past: as, I finished my work.

314. Translation of the English Past. The English past is expressed sometimes by the Latin perfect and sometimes by the Latin past. In telling a story the perfect is used to mark its successive forward steps, and the past to describe past situations and past circumstances that attended those steps.

What tenses would be used in a Latin translation of the following passage?

> I sailed the seas for many years. Once a school of whales surrounded our ship. The whales were swimming slowly along and were not terrified by our presence. Spouts of water arose on every side and some of the passengers were greatly alarmed. Then the monsters suddenly vanished.

[1] Motto of Wellesley College.

315. Inflection of the Perfect. The perfect indicative active of the four conjugations is inflected like fuī (cf. § 308), and is as follows:

	First Conjugation		Second Conjugation
	vocā′vī (perf. stem vocāv-), I have called, I called		mo′nuī (perf. stem monu-), I have advised, I advised
1.	vocā′vī	vocā′vimus	mo′nuī	monu′imus
2.	vocāvis′tī	vocāvis′tis	monuis′tī	monuis′tis
3.	vocā′vit	vocāvē′runt or -ē′re	mo′nuit	monuē′runt or -ē′re

	Third Conjugation		Fourth Conjugation
	rē′xī (perf. stem rēx-), I have ruled, I ruled		audī′vī (perf. stem audīv-), I have heard, I heard
1.	rē′xī	rē′ximus	audī′vī	audī′vimus
2.	rēxis′tī	rēxis′tis	audīvis′tī	audīvis′tis
3.	rē′xit	rēxē′runt or -ē′re	audī′vit	audīvē′runt or -ē′re

a. In vocabularies the first person of the perfect is always given as the third of the principal parts. Principal parts must be learned thoroughly. With principal parts and the rules for tense formation well in mind, the conjugation of verbs becomes easy.

EXERCISES

316. Nearly all perfects of the first conjugation are formed by adding -vī to the present stem. Like vocā′vī, inflect amā′vī, nārrā′vī, pācā′vī.

317. Like monuī, inflect habuī, tenuī, patuī.

318. Like rēxī, inflect dīxī (perfect of dīcō), dūxī (perfect of dūcō), mīsī (perfect of mittō), and cēpī (perfect of capiō).

319. Like audīvī, inflect mūnīvī.

CURIUS DENTATUS AND THE SAMNITE AMBASSADORS

DĒ CURIŌ DENTĀTŌ

First learn the special vocabulary, page 368. See if you can explain the use of the past and perfect tenses in this story.

320. In numerō clārōrum Rōmānōrum erat Curius Dentātus. Saepe magna proelia faciēbat, saepe inimīca castra oppidaque capiēbat. Sed in mediīs victōriīs vīta eius erat vēra et integra. Nec in villā amplā, sed in casā parvā habitābat, et cum officia pūblica nōn prohibēbant, magnā dīligentiā in parvō agrō labōrābat. Ōlim Samnītēs,[1] fīnitimī Rōmānōrum, quī amīcitiam Dentātī petēbant, ad eum lēgātōs mīsērunt. Lēgātī multa praemia pulchra et cōpiam aurī (gold) portābant et ad agrum Dentātī properāvērunt.

1. The Samnites, living west and south of Latium, conquered by the Romans after a great struggle, in which Dentatus played a prominent part.

LESSON XLV

Ut sēmentem fēceris, ita metēs — As you sow, so shall you reap[1]

PRINCIPAL PARTS OF VERBS

321. The following verbs include the three irregular verbs and all verbs of the second conjugation previously used. Review the meanings and drill on the inflection of the perfect.

322. Principal Parts of Irregular Verbs. Learn the principal parts of the following irregular verbs:

Pres. Indic.	Pres. Inf.	Perfect	Past Part.
sum	esse	fuī	——	be
ab'sum	abes'se	ā'fuī	——	be away
dō	dare	dedī	datus	give

a. Sum and absum have the future participles futūrus and āfutūrus.

323. Principal Parts of Second Conjugation. Learn the principal parts of the following verbs of the second conjugation:

fa'veō	favē're	fāvī	fautū'rus	favor
ha'beō	habē're	ha'buī	ha'bitus	have mo'neō	monē're	mo'nuī	mo'nitus	advise no'ceō	nocē're	no'cuī	nocitū'rus	injure
pā'reō	pārē're	pā'ruī	——	obey
pa'teō	patē're	pa'tuī	——	extend persuā'deō	persuādē're	persuā'sī	persuā'sus	persuade prohi'beō	prohibē're	prohi'buī	prohi'bitus	prevent
respon'deō	respondē're	respon'dī	respōn'sus	reply
se'deō	sedē're	sēdī	sessus	sit stu'deō	studē're	stu'duī	——	be eager

[1] From Cicero, Rome's greatest orator and generally considered her first man of letters.

te'neō	tenē're	te'nuī	——	hold
ti'meō	timē're	ti'muī	——	fear
vi'deō	vidē're	vīdī	vīsus	see

a. Note that all these verbs have the infinitive ending -ēre. This marks them as belonging to the second conjugation. Further, observe that the formation of the perfect varies in different verbs and that the past participle is sometimes lacking. Occasionally a verb that has no past participle will have a future participle ending in -ūrus, and this is then given in the principal parts. There are two examples of this in the above list. Do you see them? In dealing with verbs make it a rule to look at the infinitive first of all to determine the conjugation, and do not be surprised to find irregularities in the formation of the perfect and the participle.

325. Past Perfect Indicative. The tense sign of the past perfect indicative active is -erā-. This is added to the perfect stem. The personal endings are the same as in the past indicative, and the inflection is like that of fueram (§ 308).

326. The past perfect indicative active of the four conjugations is inflected as follows:

First Conjugation		Second Conjugation
vocā'veram (perf. stem vocāv-), I had called		monu'eram (perf. stem monu-), I had advised
1. vocā'veram	vocāverā'mus	monu'eram	monuerā'mus
2. vocā'verās	vocāverā'tis	monu'erās	monuerā'tis
3. vocā'verat	vocā'verant	monu'erat	monu'erant

Vēnī, vīdī, vīcī — I came, I saw, I conquered[1]

FUTURE PERFECT INDICATIVE AND PERFECT INFINITIVE ACTIVE · PRINCIPAL PARTS (Concluded)

330. Future Perfect Indicative Active. The tense sign of the future perfect indicative active is -eri-. This is added to the perfect stem. The personal endings are the same as in the future, and the inflection is like that of fuerō (§ 308).

331. The future perfect indicative active of the four conjugations is inflected as follows:

First Conjugation		Second Conjugation
vocā′verō (perf. stem vocāv-), I shall have called		monu′erō (perf. stem monu-) I shall have advised
1. vocā′verō	vocāve′rimus	monu′erō	monue′rimus
2. vocā′veris	vocāve′ritis	monu′eris	monue′ritis
3. vocā′verit	vocā′verint	monu′erit	monu′erint

Third Conjugation		Fourth Conjugation
rē′xerō (perf. stem rēx-), I shall have ruled		audī′verō (perf. stem audīv-), I shall have heard
1. rē′xerō	rēxe′rimus	audī′verō	audīve′rimus
2. rē′xeris	rēxe′ritis	audī′veris	audīve′ritis
3. rē′xerit	rē′xerint	audī′verit	audī′verint

332. Perfect Infinitive Active. The perfect infinitive active is also part of the perfect system and is easily learned in this connection. It is formed by adding -isse to the perfect stem.

[1] A famous dispatch of Cæsar at the conclusion of a short and brilliant campaign. He was a man of quick decision and tireless energy.

Conj.	Perfect Stem	Perfect Infinitive
I	vocāv-	vocāvis'se, to have called
II	monu-	monuis'se, to have advised
III	rēx-	rēxis'se, to have ruled
IV	audīv-	audīvis'se, to have heard sum	fu-	fuis'se, to have been

333. Principal Parts of Fourth Conjugation. The following list comprises the verbs of the fourth conjugation thus far used. Learn the principal parts, review the meanings, and drill on the perfect, past perfect, and future perfect indicative and the perfect infinitive.

Pres. Indic.	Pres. Inf.	Perfect	Past Part.
au'diō	audī're	audī'vī	audī'tus	hear inve'niō	invenī're	invē'nī	inven'tus	find mū'niō	mūnī're	mūnī'vī	mūnī'tus	fortify ve'niō	venī're	vēnī	ventus	come

EXERCISES

334. Give the present and perfect infinitives of dō, mūniō, faciō, crēdō, dīcō, mittō, teneō, videō, persuādeō, portō, absum, pācō.

335. Inflect the following verbs in the perfect, past perfect, and future perfect: nārrō, timeō, veniō, agō, locō, mittō, pugnō, mūniō, sum.

336. 1. You (sing.) have had, they have believed, they had sent. 2. He has seen, you (sing.) will have said, to have led. 3. You (plur.) have sent, they have obeyed, we had departed. 4. He has attacked, I had given, I shall have sent. 5. We shall have feared, he has extended, to have been. 6. You (sing.) had given, you (plur.) will have made, to have sent. 7. You (sing.) had come, you (plur.) had given, he will have carried.

REVIEW OF THE ACTIVE VOICE

337. Formation of Tenses of Indicative. A review of the tenses of the indicative active shows the following formation:

PRESENT	First of the principal parts
PAST	Present stem + -ba-m
FUTURE	Present stem + { -bō, Conj. I and II -a-m, Conj. III and IV
PERFECT	Third of the principal parts
PAST PERF.	Perfect stem + -era-m
FUT. PERF.	Perfect stem + -erō

338. Synopsis of vocō. The synopsis of the active voice of vocō, as far as we have learned the conjugation, is as follows:

PRINCIPAL PARTS: vocō, vocā′re, vocā′vī, vocā′tus

(pres. stem vocā-, perf. stem vocāv-)

INDICATIVE	PRESENT	vocō	INDICATIVE	PERFECT	vocā′vī
	PAST	vocā′bam		PAST PERF.	vocā′veram
	FUTURE	vocā′bō		FUT. PERF.	vocā′verō

PRES. IMPER. vocā

PRES. INFIN. vocā′re PERF. INFIN. vocāvis′se

[1] From Vergil, author of the Ænē′id, the greatest Latin epic. The sentiment is appropriate when a person is beset by difficulties and dangers. Of similar import are his words, "Revocāte animōs, maestumque timōrem mittite," Recall your courage and banish gloomy fear.

EXERCISES

339. Following § 338 as a model, learn to write and to recite rapidly the principal parts and the synopsis of the following verbs in any person or number: parō, dō, habeō, videō, dīcō, dūcō, capiō, mūniō, veniō, and other verbs selected from the lists in §§ 161, 323, 327, 333.

340. Read again the story about Curius Dentatus and answer the following questions in Latin:

1. Quō Samnītēs lēgātōs mīserant?
2. Cūr Samnītēs lēgātōs ad eum mīserant?
3. Quid lēgātī comparāverant et ad Dentātum portāverant?
4. Num Dentātus amplam vīllam habuit?
5. Nōnne vīta Dentātī vēra et integra fuerat?
6. Labōrāveratne Dentātus in agrō?
7. Ubi lēgātī Dentātum invēnērunt?
8. Cēpitne Dentātus praemia pulchra lēgātōrum?
9. Quid dīxit?

LESSON XLIX

Tempus fugit — Time flies

WORD FORMATION

341. Something has been said in §§ 238 and 258 concerning Latin and English prefixes. Those mentioned before are here reviewed and three new ones are added.

ā, ab, from, as in abdūcō, lead away; English, abduct

ad, to, as in addūcō, lead to; English, adduce con- (com-, co-), together, as in condūcō, lead together; English, conduct. Often with intensive force, as in convincō, conquer completely; English, convince dē, down from, as in dēdūcō, lead down; English, deduce

ē, ex, out from, as in ēdūcō, lead out; English, educe

in, in, into, as in indūcō, lead in; English, induce prō, forth, forward, as in prōdūcō, lead forward; English, produce re- (red-), back or again, as in redūcō, lead back; English, reduce trāns (trā-), across, as in trādūcō, lead across; English, traduce

All these prefixes, excepting con- and re-, are also used alone as prepositions.

NOTE. An English derivative from a Latin compound often loses the literal meaning of the Latin and is used only in a figurative sense. This is well illustrated by the derivatives given above. For example, traduce never means to lead across, but is used only in the figurative sense of to make a parade of, dishonor, slander. The Latin student has the advantage of being able to trace the figurative meaning back to its literal source.

342. Derivation. Write a list of English derivatives from the verbs servō, locō, vocō, videō, mittō, dīcō, spectō, selecting the proper prefixes from § 341, and adding such English suffixes as you may know. Use the English dictionary.

NOTE. Students should keep derivation notebooks. See page 382.

GALLĪ RŌMAM OPPUGNANT

343. Olim Gallī Italiam vāstābant. Iam agricolās miserōs ex agrīs lātīs ēgerant et equōs pulchrōs eōrum rapuerant. Iam multa oppida expugnāverant. Iam Rōmam petēbant. Tum Rōmānī magnopere perterrēbantur et in Capitōlium[1] fūgērunt. Mānlius, vir ēgregius bellī, Capitōlium firmō praesidiō tenuit nec Gallōs timuit. Capitōlium erat in locō altō et magnīs mūrīs mūniēbātur. Diū populus nātūrā locī et praesidiō dēfendēbātur et Gallī frūstrā (in vain) labōrābant. Victōria longē aberat. Sed dēnique barbarī novum cōnsilium cēpērunt.[2] Nocte[3] magnō silentiō[4] saxa[5] alta ascendērunt. Nec audiēbantur nec prohibēbantur. Iam mūrōs Capitōlī tenēbant. Sed erant in Capitōliō sacrī ānserēs.[6] Ei ānserēs Gallōs audīvērunt et Capitōlium servāvērunt. Nam clāmōre[7] suō Mānlium ex somnō[8] excitāvērunt.[9] Mānlius arma rapuit, suōs vocāvit, Gallōs dē saxīs altīs iēcit.

1. The Capitolium was the citadel of Rome. It was located on the Capitoline Hill, which was steep and rocky. 2. cōnsilium capere, to form a plan. 3. By night. 4. silentium, silentī, N., silence. 5. saxum, -ī, N., rock. 6. Geese. These were sacred to Juno, whose temple was on the Capitoline. 7. clāmōre suō, by their cackling. 8. somnus, -ī, M., sleep. 9. excitō, -āre, arouse.

THE PAST PARTICIPLE · THE PASSIVE PERFECTS

344. Participles Defined. A participle is a verbal adjective, and takes its name from the fact that it participates in the uses of both verb and adjective. As a verb, it has tense and voice, and may be either transitive or intransitive. As an adjective, it is declined, and agrees with its noun in gender, number, and case. Thus, in "He, seeing the enemy, fled," seeing is a participle, present, active, and transitive, with enemy as its direct object. This is its verbal side. As an adjective, it agrees with he in gender, number, and case.

345. Participles in English. In English the chief classes of participles are present and past. The present participle ends in -ing. It usually describes an action as taking place at the same time with some other action: as, "Reaching for the boat I lost my balance." The past participle expresses completed action. In the passive it has the same form as the past tense: as, "The floors are swept," "The chairs are mended." The active past participle is formed by putting having before the passive past participle: as, "Having swept the floors, I rested," "Having mended the chairs, I sold them." Sometimes having is used also in passive participial expressions: as, "The floors having been swept, I rested." Participles with having are often called perfect participles.

346. Past Participles in English and Latin. English has both an active and a passive past participle: as, having called

[1] From Publilius Syrus. Born a slave and educated by his master, he was granted his freedom and became a noted writer.

(active), (having been) called (passive). Latin has only a passive past participle, and this participle is of special importance because, as we have seen (§ 299), it is the fourth and last of the principal parts.

347. Participial Stem. The participial stem is found, as will be recalled, by dropping -us from the past participle. From this stem are formed the future active infinitive and all passive perfects.

348. Perfect, Past Perfect, Future Perfect Indicative Passive. In English the perfect, past perfect, and future perfect tenses of the indicative passive are made up of forms of the auxiliary verb to be and the past participle: as, I have been called, I had been called, I shall have been called.

Very similarly in Latin the perfect, past perfect, and future perfect passive use the present, past, and future of sum as an auxiliary verb with the past participle: as,

Perfect passive, vocā'tus sum, I have been called or was called Past perfect passive, vocā'tus eram, I had been called Future perfect passive, vocā'tus erō, I shall have been called

349. The past participle is declined like bonus, bona, bonum. When making part of a verb form, it agrees in gender, number, and case with the subject of the verb, as shown below:

EXAMPLES IN THE SINGULAR

Vir vocātus est, the man was called or has been called Puella vocāta est, the girl was called or has been called Praesidium vocātum est, the garrison was called or has been called

EXAMPLES IN THE PLURAL

Virī vocātī sunt, the men were called or have been called Puellae vocātae sunt, the girls were called or have been called Praesidia vocāta sunt, the garrisons were called or have been called

350. In all the conjugations the perfect, past perfect, and future perfect indicative passive are formed and inflected in the same way. Study these inflections, §§ 832–835.

EXERCISES

351. Inflect the perfect, past perfect, and future perfect indicative, active and passive, of vocō, moneō, regō, and audiō.

352. 1. Agricolae frūmentum in oppidum sacrum portāvērunt. 2. Frūmentum ab agricolīs in oppidum sacrum portātum est. 3. Rēgīna Lesbiae pecūniam dederat. 4. Pecūnia ā rēgīnā Lesbiae data erat. 5. Mānlius dē mūrō sacrō Gallōs iēcerit. 6. Gallī ā Mānliō dē mūrō sacrō iactī erunt. 7. Dentātus lēgātōs dīmīserat. Lēgātī ā Dentātō dīmissī erant. 8. Puellae exemplum ēgregium vērae amīcitiae vīderant. 9. Exemplum ēgregium vērae amīcitiae ā puellīs vīsum erat. 10. Animī timidī eōrum factīs vestrīs cōnfirmātī sunt. 11. Gallī ab agrīs nostrīs armīs Rōmānīs prohibitī erant.

353. 1. Greece had been freed from danger. 2. Fresh troops had been put before the sacred town by the Romans. 3. The girls had been greatly terrified and had fled. 4. The fields had been laid waste, but, because of the nature of the place, the camp had not been taken by storm. 5. Did the Gauls climb your walls? Not at all, but they laid waste the fields.

THE TIBER, CASTLE OF ST. ANGELO, AND ST. PETER'S

Navigation on the Tiber, now of little account, was of great importance to ancient Rome. There are ruins of great docks in the city and of still greater ones at Ostia, at the river's mouth, sixteen miles downstream. The Castle of St Angelo is the tomb of the Emperor Hadrian. Concerning St. Peter's, compare the note and picture facing page 12

THE PERFECT INFINITIVE PASSIVE AND THE FUTURE INFINITIVE ACTIVE · PREPOSITIONS

354. As the perfect infinitive passive and the future infinitive active are also formed from the participial stem, they are most easily learned at this point.

355. Perfect Infinitive Passive. The perfect infinitive passive is formed by adding esse to the past participle: as, vocātus esse, to have been called. Similarly in the other conjugations we have monitus esse, to have been advised; rēctus esse, to have been ruled; audītus esse, to have been heard.

356. Future Infinitive Active. The future infinitive active of vocō is vocātū'rus esse, to be about to call. This is formed by adding -ūrus esse to the participial stem. Similarly in the other conjugations we have monitū'rus esse, to be about to advise; rēctū'rus esse, to be about to rule; audītū'rus esse, to be about to hear.

357. We have now completed the infinitive, active and passive. The synopsis of the infinitives of vocō is as follows:

	ACTIVE	PASSIVE
PRES.	vocā're, to call	vocā'rī, to be called
PERF.	vocāvis'se, to have called	vocā'tus esse, to have been called
FUT.	vocātū'rus esse, to be about to call	(Rare and hence omitted)

a. The infinitives of the other conjugations are similarly formed, but do not forget the peculiar formation of the present infinitive passive in the third conjugation (§ 285).

358. Prepositions. We learned in § 77 that only the accusative and ablative are used with prepositions. Those prepositions which we have had before are here summarized and three more added.

a. Prepositions expressing ablative relations (from, with, in, etc.) govern the ablative case. Learn the following list:

ā or ab, from, by	ē or ex, out from, out of cum, with	in, in or on dē, down from, concerning, about	prō, in behalf of, for sine, without

b. Prepositions not expressing ablative relations must govern the accusative. Among these are ad, to, towards	per, through ante, before, in front of	post, after in, into, to, against	trāns, across

There are many others; but learn the list above of prepositions taking the ablative, and use the accusative after all others.

THE CONJUGATION OF POSSUM

362. Possum, I am able, I can, is a compound of the adjective potis, able, and sum, I am. It is inflected in the indicative and infinitive as follows:

PRINCIPAL PARTS: possum, posse, potuī, ——

INDICATIVE MOOD

PRESENT

possum, I am able, I can	pos'sumus, we are able, we can potes, you are able, you can	potes'tis, you are able, you can potest, he is able, he can	possunt, they are able, they can

[1] From one of the Odes of Horace, Rome's greatest lyric poet.

PAST

po'teram, I was able, I could; etc. poterā'mus, we were able, we could; etc.

FUTURE

po'terō, I shall be able; etc. pote'rimus, we shall be able; etc.

PERFECT

po'tuī, I have been able, I could; etc. potu'imus, we have been able, we could; etc.

PAST PERFECT

potu'eram, I had been able; etc. potuerā'mus, we had been able; etc.

FUTURE PERFECT

potu'erō, I shall have been able; etc. potue'rimus, we shall have been able; etc.

INFINITIVE MOOD

PRESENT	PERFECT
posse, to be able	potuis'se, to have been able

a. This verb has no imperative and no future infinitive. The perfect infinitive, as in all verbs, is formed by adding -isse to the perfect stem (§ 332).

1. Etrūscī, -ōrum, M., the Etruscans, neighbors of the Romans to the north and their most powerful enemies in the early years of the city. 2. Used here in the sense of suffer. 3. Youth. 4. The English pronunciation is Sev'o-la.

364. 1. They had held the sovereignty across the Rhine for (per) many years. 2. Because of the scarcity of grain the men had not advanced. 3. That matter had been undertaken by Mucius. 4. The captives had been led before your camp. 5. After the battle a large supply of money was found there.

LESSON LIII

THE INFINITIVE USED AS IN ENGLISH

365. Nature of the Infinitive. The uses of the infinitive are much the same in Latin as in English. Being a verbal noun it is used sometimes as a verb and sometimes as a noun. As a verb, it has tense and voice, may govern a case, and may be modified by an adverb. As a noun, it may have the construction of a noun. For example, in To cross the marsh quickly was difficult, the infinitive to cross is a noun, for it is the subject of was; but it is also a verb, for it takes an object (marsh) and is modified by an adverb (quickly).

366. Infinitive Clause as Object. In English, verbs of commanding, wishing, forbidding, and the like may be followed by a clause consisting of a noun or pronoun in the objective case and an infinitive: as, the slave commanded the men to flee. The same construction is used in Latin.

[1] From Vergil. Literally, They are able because they seem (think themselves) to be able.

Servus virōs fugere iussit, the slave commanded the men to flee
Eōs fābulam audīre cupit, he wishes them to hear the story
Eum dīcere vetat, he forbids him to speak

367. Rule for the Infinitive Object Clause. The verbs iubeō, command; cupiō, wish; vetō, forbid, and the like are often followed by an infinitive clause as object.

368. Rule for Subject of Infinitive. The subject of the infinitive is in the accusative.

369. Complementary Infinitive. In English, and also in Latin, an infinitive without a subject may be added to many verbs as an adverbial modifier to complete their meaning. Such verbs are called verbs of incomplete predication, and the added infinitive is called a complementary infinitive. Among such verbs are the following:

incipiō, I begin	possum, I am able, I can properō, I hasten	studeō, I am eager

Fugere incipiunt, they begin to flee
Oppidum capere properat, he hastens to take the town
Nōn pugnāre potes, you are not able to fight or you can't fight
Eum invenīre studeō, I am eager to find him

370. Infinitive as Noun. In English, and also in Latin, the infinitive is often a pure noun, being used as the subject of a sentence or as a predicate noun: as,

Vidēre est crēdere, seeing (to see) is believing (to believe)
Vincere est grātum, to conquer is pleasing

a. An infinitive used as a noun is neuter singular, as is shown in the sentence above by grātum, a neuter adjective in agreement with vincere, the subject.

LESSON LIV

Oleum et operam perdidī — I have wasted time and labor[1]

WORD FORMATION

373. One of the most important of the Latin prefixes is in-. We have already learned something of its use with verbs. It is then the same as the preposition in, and has the same meanings of in, on, into, against, and has the same force in related English words: as, Latin indūcō, lead into; English induce, meaning to lead one into some course of action.

374. But there is another prefix in-, identical in form but of a different origin, which may be combined with an adjective or an adverb. This in- negatives the word to which it is attached: thus, fīrmus, firm or strong, but infīrmus, infirm or weak. The same prefix is similarly used in English: as, in-secure, in-sincere, in-valid, etc. In English the prefix often changes its form to un-, as in unsafe, unmoved, etc. This in- is never used as a Latin preposition, but only as a prefix.

375. Latin prefixes before a consonant may change their final consonant to a similar letter or one more easily pronounced. This is called assimilation. Thus, in- + mātūrus = immātūrus, immature; in- + mortālis = immortālis, immortal; con- + rēctiō = corrēctiō, correction. Compare also such English words as impossible (in- + possum), irresponsible (in- + respondeō), illiberal (in- + līberālis), etc.

376. Another important point is that Latin simple verbs having a short a in the first syllable followed by a single consonant (as in capiō) generally change a to i in the present, and to e in the past participle, when the simple verb is compounded with a prefix. So in- + capiō becomes incipiō in the present and inceptus in the past participle. The same change in spelling follows in English; from capiō we have capture, but incipiō gives us incipient, and inceptus, inception. So recipiō gives us recipient, recipe, and receptus, reception, receptive.

[1] From Plautus. Literally, I have wasted oil (i.e. lamp oil) and labor.

MŪCIUS SCAEVOLA

SENTENCES AND CLAUSES · RELATIVE PRONOUNS

380. Sentences and Clauses. Sentences are simple, compound, or complex.

381. A simple sentence makes but one statement, and has but one subject and one predicate: as,

Columbus discovered America

382. A compound sentence contains two or more independent statements: as,

Columbus discovered America | and | he thereby won immortal fame

383. A complex sentence contains one independent statement and one or more dependent statements: as,

When Columbus discovered America | he won immortal fame

384. The separate statements in a compound or complex sentence are called clauses. An independent statement is called a main clause; a dependent statement, a subordinate clause.

385. Subordinate clauses may be used as nouns, adjectives, or adverbs. Hence we have noun clauses, adjective clauses, and adverb clauses.

386. Relative Pronouns. Examine the following sentences:

1. This is the wounded soldier.
2. This is the soldier who has been wounded.
3. This is the soldier, and the soldier has been wounded.

[1] Motto of Brown University.

Number 1 is a simple sentence. Number 2 is complex, the adjective wounded in number 1 being represented in number 2 by the subordinate adjective clause who has been wounded. The word who is a pronoun, taking the place of soldier, as shown by number 3, and it also connects the subordinate adjective clause who has been wounded with the noun soldier. A pronoun that connects an adjective clause with a noun or pronoun is called a relative pronoun, and the noun or pronoun is called its antecedent. In English the relative pronouns are who, whose, whom, which, what, that.

387. Declension of Relative Pronoun quī. The relative pronoun in Latin is quī, quae, quod. It is declined as follows:

	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.
Nom.	quī	quae	quod	quī	quae	quae
Gen.	cuius	cuius	cuius	quōrum	quārum	quōrum
Dat.	cui	cui	cui	quibus	quibus	quibus
Acc.	quem	quam	quod	quōs	quās	quae
Abl.	quō	quā	quō	quibus	quibus	quibus

a. Review the declension of is, § 203, and note the similarity in the endings. The forms quī, quae, and quibus are the only forms showing new endings.

Note. The genitive cuius is pronounced cōō'yŏŏs, and the dative cui is pronounced kwee.

388. Translation. The relative quī is translated as follows:

	Masc. and Fem.	Neut.
Nom.	who, that	which, what, that
Gen.	of whom, whose	of which, of what, whose
Dat.	to or for whom	to or for which, to or for what
Acc.	whom, that	which, what, that
Abl.	from, etc., whom	from, etc., which or what

389. Agreement of Relative Pronoun. Note the following sentences:

Puer quem vidēs est Mārcus, the boy whom you see is Mark
Puella quam vidēs est Lesbia, the girl whom you see is Lesbia

The relatives quem and quam agree with their antecedents puer and puella in gender and number, but not in case. The antecedents are nominatives, subjects of est, and the relatives are accusatives, objects of vidēs. The rule for the agreement of the relative is, therefore, as follows:

390. Rule for Agreement of Relative Pronoun. The relative agrees with its antecedent in gender and number, but its case is determined by its use in its own clause.

INTERROGATIVE PRONOUNS AND ADJECTIVES · THE ABLATIVE ABSOLUTE

393. Interrogatives in English. Interrogative pronouns and adjectives are used in asking questions. In English the interrogative pronouns are who? which? and what? Which and what are used also as interrogative adjectives.

Who is your friend? (Who, interrogative pronoun)
What friends have you? (What, interrogative adjective)

394. Interrogatives in Latin. The Latin interrogative pronoun is quis (who?), quid (what?). It is declined in the singular as follows:

	Masc. and Fem.	Neut.
Nom.	quis, who?	quid, what? which?
Gen.	cuius, whose?	cuius, whose?
Dat.	cui, to or for whom?	cui, to or for which or what?
Acc.	quem, whom?	quid, what? which?
Abl.	quō, from, etc., whom?	quō, from, etc., which or what?

The plural forms are the same as those of the relative (§ 387).

Quis est amīcus tuus, who is your friend?
Quī sunt amīcī tuī, who are your friends?

395. The Latin interrogative adjective is quī (or quis), quae, quod. It is declined like the relative (§ 387).

Quōs librōs habēs, what books have you?

[1] Words of Julius Cæsar when he crossed the river Rubicon, the boundary of his province, with an armed force. This act amounted to a declaration of war against the Roman government.

396. Ablative Absolute. In English a noun with a participle attached is often used to make a phrase grammatically independent of the main clause: as,

The town having been captured
With the town captured } the lieutenant fled

The independent phrase is called the absolute construction. The noun is in the nominative case, and is called the nominative absolute.

397. In Latin a noun with attached participle in the absolute construction is put in the ablative, and the construction is called the ablative absolute: as,

Oppidō captō, lēgātus fūgit

a. The ablative absolute denotes the circumstances accompanying the action of the main verb, a fundamental ablative relation often expressed in English by the preposition with. Note the second form in § 396: With the town captured, the lieutenant fled.

398. There is no present participle "being" in Latin. In consequence we often have two nouns, or a noun and an adjective, in the ablative absolute with no participle: as,

fīliā rēgīnā, his daughter being queen
puerīs tardīs, the boys being slow

399. Translation of Ablative Absolute. The absolute construction, rather rare in English, is very common in Latin, and is often best translated by a clause introduced by when, after, since, though, etc. Use the form of clause that will best express the thought. Note the following translations of oppidō captō, lēgātus fūgit:

when, since, after, although, etc. { the town was captured, the lieutenant fled

400. Rule for Ablative Absolute. The ablative of a noun and a participle, a noun and an adjective, or two nouns may be used in the absolute construction to denote attendant circumstances.

Miserīs captīvīs. 9. Lēgātō in iūdicium vocātō, populus bellum gerī nōn cupīvit.

1. Why dative? See § 224. 2. Predicate genitive of possession, § 150.

402. 1. After the battle was fought,[1] to what famous place did they wish the lieutenant to move the camp? 2. How far away was the camp which you saw? 3. Did the battle rage[2] a long time? I think so. 4. Whose money did you find? Galba's. 5. After the town had been stormed, did not the people suffer[3] the penalty due the state[4]? 6. Who can tell the story of Dentatus? I can.

1. Not pugnō. 2. Literally, was it fought, the word battle not being expressed. See § 259, note 3. 3. dō, -are. 4. Due the state, pūblicus, -a, -um.

THE ARCH OF TITUS AND THE COLOSSEUM

The Arch of Titus was erected in the first century of our era to commemorate the destruction of Jerusalem by Titus. To the same period belongs the Colosseum, the most impressive ruin in Rome, covering about five acres. In it gladiatorial combats were held for nearly five hundred years. There were seats for almost 100,000 spectators and several hundred gladiators or wild beasts could fight in the arena at the same time

SECOND HALF YEAR

Classes should have reached at least this point at the beginning of the second half year. This is suggested not as a maximum, however, but as a minimum. Go as far beyond it as you can consistently with good work, so as to have more time for the reading of the stories at the end of the book before the close of the year.

THE THIRD DECLENSION · CONSONANT STEMS

403. Nouns that end in -is in the genitive singular are of the Third Declension. They may be masculine, feminine, or neuter.

CLASSES OF NOUNS IN THE THIRD DECLENSION

404. Nouns of the third declension are divided into two classes, known as consonant stems and i-stems.

a. The stem is the body of a word to which the terminations are added. When the stem ends in a consonant, the stem is the same as the base. In vowel stems the stem is formed by adding the stem vowel to the base: thus, the base of hostis, enemy, is host-, and the stem is host + i = hosti-. Consonant stems and i-stems differ somewhat in declension, so the distinction is an important one.

[1] Motto of the state of Missouri, quoted from a famous code of Roman laws.

CONSONANT STEMS, MASCULINES AND FEMININES

405. Masculines and feminines are declined alike. The nominative is often the same as the base or nearly so. Often it is formed by adding -s to the base. In that case the added -s causes various changes in spelling. Always learn the genitive along with the nominative, for the genitive gives the key to all the other forms.

	cōnsul, M., consul (base cōnsul-)	legiō, F., legion (base legiōn-)	pater, M., father (base patr-)	TERMINATIONS
NOM.	cōn′sul	le′giō	pa′ter	—
GEN.	cōn′sulis	legiō′nis	pa′tris	-is
DAT.	cōn′sulī	legiō′nī	pa′trī	-ī
ACC.	cōn′sulem	legiō′nem	pa′trem	-em
ABL.	cōn′sule	legiō′ne	pa′tre	-e
NOM.	cōn′sulēs	legiō′nēs	pa′trēs	-ēs
GEN.	cōn′sulum	legiō′num	pa′trum	-um
DAT.	cōnsu′libus	legiō′nibus	pa′tribus	-ibus
ACC.	cōn′sulēs	legiō′nēs	pa′trēs	-ēs
ABL.	cōnsu′libus	legiō′nibus	pa′tribus	-ibus

	prīnceps, M., chief (base prīncip-[1])	mīles, M., soldier (base mīlit-[1])	rēx, M., king (base rēg-)
NOM.	prīn′ceps	mī′les	rēx	-s
GEN.	prīn′cipis	mī′litis	rēgis	-is
DAT.	prīn′cipī	mī′litī	rēgī	-ī
ACC.	prīn′cipem	mī′litem	rēgem	-em
ABL.	prīn′cipe	mī′lite	rēge	-e

[1] An i in the last syllable of the base is often changed in the nominative to e: as, prīnceps, base prīncip-; mīles, base mīlit-.

NOM.	prīn'cipēs	mī'litēs	rēgēs	-ēs
GEN.	prīn'cipum	mī'litum	rēgum	-um
DAT.	prīnci'pibus	mīli'tibus	rē'gibus	-ibus
ACC.	prīn'cipēs	mī'litēs	rēgēs	-ēs
ABL.	prīnci'pibus	mīli'tibus	rē'gibus	-ibus

a. The nominative case termination s combines with a final c or g of the base and makes x: thus, rēg + s gives rēx, king; and duc + s gives dux, leader. A final d or t is dropped before s: thus, lapid + s gives lapis, stone; mīlet + s gives mīles, soldier.

b. The base or stem is found by dropping -is in the genitive singular.

c. Review § 108 and apply the rules to this declension.

THE THIRD DECLENSION, CONSONANT STEMS (CONTINUED)

408. Neuter Consonant Stems. There are many neuter consonant stems. The nominative singular generally differs from the base. Thus, bases in -in- have final -en in the nominative, and bases in -er- or -or- generally have -us.

	flūmen, N., river (base flūmin-)	tempus, N., time (base tempor-)	caput, N., head (base capit-)	TERMINATIONS

a. These neuter nouns, like all other neuters, have the nominative and accusative alike, which in the plural end in -a (§ 108. a).

b. Some neuters of this class have passed into English without change: as, acumen, omen, specimen. A few have kept the Latin form also in the plural: as, genus, plural genera; stamen, plural stamens and stamina, with a difference in meaning. Note, too, the plurals viscera and capita.

RŌMULUS ET REMUS

First learn the special vocabulary, page 371. Decline all the nouns, adjectives, and pronouns in the story, and give the principal parts of all the verbs.

411. Rōmulus et Remus erant fīliī Mārtis,[1] deī bellī. Eōrum māter erat Rhea Silvia, fīlia Numitōris,[2] quī rēx Albānōrum[3] anteā fuerat, sed ā malō frātre Amūliō pulsus erat. Itaque Amūlius, quī rēgnum Albānōrum tum obtinēbat, puerōs magnopere timuit et eōs interficere cōnsilium cēpit. Rhea vītam fīliōrum suōrum cōnservāre studēbat, sed rēx iussit servum eōs in flūmen dēicere. Imperiō rēgis autem servus nōn pāruit, sed puerōs in arcā ligneā[4] posuit, quae aquā[5] flūminis sine perīculō vehī[6] poterat. Mox puerī ad rīpam flūminis vectī sunt.[6] Ibi lupa,[7] quae nōn longē aberat, puerōs audīvit atque cūrāvit.[8] Posteā pāstor[9] benignus[10] eōs invēnit et in casam parvam portāvit.

Post longum tempus Rōmulus et Remus, quī virī nunc erant, et malum rēgem interfēcērunt et rēgnum Numitōrī reddidērunt. Tum auxiliō sociōrum suōrum novum oppidum ad (near) flūmen posuērunt. THE THIRD DECLENSION, I-STEMS, MASCULINES AND FEMININES

412. Masculine and feminine i-stems are declined alike. As distinguished from consonant stems, they have -ium in the genitive plural and -īs or -ēs in the accusative plural.

	caedēs, F., slaughter (stem caedi-, base caed-)		hostis, M., enemy (stem hosti-, base host-)

a. A few nouns have either -ī or -e in the ablative singular: as, cīvis (abl. cīvī or cīve), ignis (abl. ignī or igne), nāvis (abl. nāvī or nāve).

b. A number of Latin and Greek nouns ending in -is or -x have passed into English without change and form their plural in -es: as, analysis, analyses; appendix, appendices; axis, axes; basis, bases; crisis, crises; hypothesis, hypotheses; index, indices; oasis, oases; parenthesis, parentheses; thesis, theses; vertex, vertices.

[1] Motto of the University of Mississippi.

413. Masculine and feminine i-stems include the following:

a. Nouns in -ēs or -is with the same number of syllables in the genitive as in the nominative.

Thus caedēs, caedis, is an i-stem, but mīles, mīlitis, is a consonant stem.

b. Nouns of more than one syllable in -ns or -rs: as, cliēns, cohors.

c. Nouns of one syllable in -s or -x preceded by a consonant: as, urbs, arx.

WORD FORMATION

424. Selecting appropriate prefixes from § 341, write a list of English derivatives from the following verbs. Define the derivatives, looking them up in the English dictionary if necessary.

putō	agō	habeō
moveō	parō	pellō
capiō	pugnō	teneō

425. Latin Suffixes. Many Latin words are formed from others by means of suffixes. Thus:

cīvis, citizen	cīvitās, state
adveniō, come to	adventus, arrival
capiō, take	captīvus, captive
aequus, level	aequō, make level
līber, free	lībertās, freedom
magnus, great	magnitūdō, greatness
pecus, cattle	pecūnia, wealth
vir, man	virtūs, manliness, courage

We see, too, that by the use of suffixes different parts of speech are derived from each other, such as verbs from nouns, nouns from verbs, nouns from adjectives, etc. Some of the suffixes are readily recognized and have a uniform and easily defined meaning. We shall study some of the more important ones later on (§§ 626–629). A knowledge of prefixes and suffixes will greatly increase your Latin and English vocabulary, as it will enable you to grasp the meaning of many words without consulting a dictionary.

[1] Motto of the state of Oregon.

426. English Suffixes. Suffixes are equally important in English. Many of them are of Latin origin and have the same meaning as in Latin. As an illustration of the part that suffixes play in the making of English words, note the following combinations of port-, 'carry,' from Latin portō:

porter portly portage portal portable

Using prefixes as well, we get a much larger number: as,

comport	unexportable	importation
comportable	exportation	importer
deport	exporter	reimport
deportable	reëxport	report
deportation	import	reportable deportment	importable	unreportable
export	important	reporter
exportable	unimportant	etc.

ADJECTIVES OF THE THIRD DECLENSION, THREE ENDINGS

427. All adjectives are either of the first and second declensions (like bonus, pulcher, līber) or of the third declension.

428. Nearly all adjectives of the third declension have i-stems and are declined like nouns with i-stems (§ 412).

429. Classes of Adjectives. Adjectives of the third declension are classified as follows:

Class I. Adjectives of three endings — a different form in the nominative for each gender.

Class II. Adjectives of two endings — the nominative of the masculine and feminine alike, the neuter different.

Class III. Adjectives of one ending — the nominative masculine, feminine, and neuter all alike.

430. Adjectives of the third declension in -er have three endings; those in -is have two; the others have one.

LESSON LXVIII

Excelsior — Higher[1]

REGULAR COMPARISON OF ADJECTIVES · THE COMPARATIVE WITH QUAM

441. Comparison of Adjectives in English. In English, adjectives regularly change their form to express quality in different degrees. This is called comparison. There are three degrees of comparison: the positive, the comparative, and the superlative. The usual way of comparing an adjective is by using the suffix -er for the comparative and -est for the superlative: as, positive high, comparative higher, superlative highest. Sometimes we use the adverbs more and most: as, positive beautiful, comparative more beautiful, superlative most beautiful.

442. Comparison of Adjectives in Latin. In Latin, as in English, adjectives are regularly compared by adding suffixes. From the base of the positive the comparative is formed by adding -ior, masculine and feminine, and -ius, neuter; the superlative, by adding -issimus, -issima, -issimum. Thus, altus (base alt-), high, and gravis (base grav-), heavy, are compared as follows:

altus, -a, -um,	altior, altius,	altissimus, -a, -um,
high	higher	highest
gravis, grave,	gravior, gravius,	gravissimus, -a, -um,
heavy	heavier	heaviest

443. Adjectives in -er form the comparative regularly, but the superlative is formed by adding -rimus, -rima, -rimum to the nominative masculine of the positive. Thus, ācer (base ācr-), sharp; pulcher (base pulchr-), pretty; and līber (base līber-), free, have the following comparative and superlative forms:

[1] Motto of the state of New York.

ācer, ācris, ācre, sharp	ācrior, ācrius, sharper	ācerrimus, -a, -um, sharpest
pulcher, pulchra, pulchrum, pretty	pulchrior, pulchrius, prettier	pulcherrimus, -a, -um, prettiest
līber, lībera, līberum, free	līberior, līberius, freer	līberrimus, -a, -um, freest

444. The superlative is often translated by very: as, altissimus, very high.

445. Comparative with quam. In English two objects are compared by the use of a comparative followed by the conjunction than: as, the ditch is wider than the wall. In this sentence ditch is nominative, subject of is; and wall is also nominative, subject of is understood. That is to say, the two objects compared are in the same case. In Latin the word for than is quam and the usage is the same. Thus the sentence above becomes fossa est lātior quam mūrus.

446. Rule for Comparative with quam. In comparisons with quam the two objects compared are in the same case.

DECLENSION OF COMPARATIVES · THE ABLATIVE OF THE MEASURE OF DIFFERENCE

450. Declension of Comparatives. Comparatives are adjectives of the third declension. They are of two endings (§ 429) and are declined as follows:

altior, higher

	Masc. and Fem.	Neut.	Masc. and Fem.	Neut.
Nom.	altior	altius	altiōrēs	altiōra
Gen.	altiōris	altiōris	altiōrum	altiōrum
Dat.	altiōrī	altiōrī	altiōribus	altiōribus
Acc.	altiōrem	altius	altiōrēs	altiōra
Abl.	altiōre	altiōre	altiōribus	altiōribus

451. Ablative of Measure of Difference. In the sentence Sextus is a foot taller than Julia the word foot expresses the measure of difference in height between Sextus and Julia.

[1] From Cicero, the greatest Roman orator.

The Latin form of expression would be Sextus is taller by a foot than Julia, Sextus est longior pede quam Iūlia, and the ablative pede is called the ablative of the measure of difference.

452. Rule for Ablative of Measure of Difference. With comparatives and words implying comparison the ablative is used to denote the measure of difference.

a. The neuter ablatives multō, by much; nihilō, by nothing; and paulō, by a little, are very common in this construction.

IRREGULAR COMPARISON OF ADJECTIVES · THE DECLENSION OF PLŪS

456. Irregular Comparison of Adjectives. Some adjectives in English have irregular comparison: as, good, better, best; much, more, most. So some Latin adjectives are compared irregularly. Among these are the following:

POSITIVE	COMPARATIVE	SUPERLATIVE
bonus, -a, -um, good	melior, melius	optimus, -a, -um magnus, -a, -um, great	maior, maius	maximus, -a, -um malus, -a, -um, bad	peior, peius	pessimus, -a, -um multus, -a, -um, much	——, plūs	plūrimus, -a, -um
parvus, -a, -um, small	minor, minus	minimus, -a, -um

457. The following adjectives, with regular comparative, form the superlative by adding -limus to the base of the positive:

POSITIVE	COMPARATIVE	SUPERLATIVE
facilis, -e, easy	facilior, -ius	facillimus, -a, -um difficilis, -e, hard	difficilior, -ius	difficillimus, -a, -um similis, -e, like	similior, -ius	simillimus, -a, -um
dissimilis, -e, unlike	dissimilior, -ius	dissimillimus, -a, -um

FORMATION AND COMPARISON OF ADVERBS

461. Formation of Adverbs. An adverb is a word that modifies a verb, an adjective, or another adverb, and generally answers the question How? Where? When? Why? To what extent?

462. Rule for Adverbs. Adverbs modify verbs, adjectives, and other adverbs.

463. Adverbs are generally derived from adjectives. In English they usually end in -ly: as, adjective brave, adverb bravely. Latin adverbs, too, have certain endings. They are compared, but not declined.

464. Adverbs derived from adjectives of the first and second declensions are formed by adding -ē to the base of the adjective.

Adj.	lātus, wide	pulcher, beautiful	līber, free
Adv.	lātē, widely	pulchrē, beautifully	līberē, freely

465. Adverbs derived from adjectives of the third declension are generally formed by adding -iter to the base of the adjective.

Adj.	ācer, sharp	celer, swift	brevis, brief
Adv.	ācriter, sharply	celeriter, swiftly	breviter, briefly

466. Comparison of Adverbs. Adverbs are compared like the adjectives from which they are derived, except that the comparative ends in -ius and the superlative in -ē.

[1] From Cicero, Rome's foremost man of letters.

POSITIVE	COMPARATIVE	SUPERLATIVE
lātē, widely	lātius	lātissimē
pulchrē, beautifully	pulchrius	pulcherrimē
līberē, freely	līberius	līberrimē
ācriter, sharply	ācrius	ācerrimē
similiter, similarly	similius	simillimē

467. Using the regular terminations, form adverbs from the following adjectives, and compare them:

FORMATION AND COMPARISON OF ADVERBS (Concluded)

470. Case Forms used as Adverbs. The accusative or the ablative neuter singular of some adjectives is used adverbially. Thus the comparative adverb in -ius is really the accusative neuter singular of the comparative adjective. Other examples are the following:

facile, easily, accusative of facilis, easy plūrimum, very much, accusative of plūrimus, most prīmum, first, accusative of prīmus, first prīmō, at first, ablative of prīmus, first

471. The following adverbs are formed irregularly and have irregular comparison:

bene, well	melius, better	optimē, best diū, long (time)	diūtius, longer	diūtissimē, longest magnopere, greatly	magis, more	maximē, most
saepe, often	saepius, oftener	saepissimē, oftenest

a. Note the difference in meaning between diū, long in time, and longē, long in space.

472. In English, adverbs and adjectives are often compared by means of more and most. So some Latin adverbs and adjectives are compared by means of magis, more, and maximē, most: as, idōneus, suitable; magis idōneus, more suitable; maximē idōneus, most suitable.

a. The Latin comparative sometimes means quite or somewhat, and the superlative is often best translated by very or exceedingly.

THE ROMAN CAMPAGNA AND THE ALBAN MOUNT

The great plain surrounding Rome, known as the Campagna, now nearly bare, was in ancient times a terrestrial paradise of villas and gardens. After the fall of the Roman Empire it was laid waste by barbarian invaders and has never been reclaimed. The Alban Mount was the sacred mountain of the Latins. On its slope was built Alba Longa, Rome's mother city

EXPRESSIONS OF PLACE

480. Regular Expressions of Place. The place to which, the place from which, and the place at or in which are regularly expressed by prepositions with their proper cases. From this general principle we deduce the following rules:

481. Rule for Accusative of Place to Which. The place to which is expressed by ad or in with the accusative, and answers the question Whither?

Galba ad casam properat, Galba hastens to his cottage

482. Rule for Ablative of Place from Which. The place from which is expressed by ā or ab, dē, ē or ex, with the ablative, and answers the question Whence? (Cf. § 295.)

Galba ā casā properat, Galba hastens from his cottage

483. Rule for Ablative of Place at or in Which.[2] The place at or in which is expressed by the ablative with in, and answers the question Where?

Galba in casā habitat, Galba lives in his cottage

484. Important Exceptions. Names of towns and small islands, domus, home,[3] and rūs, country, omit the preposition in expressions of place.

Galba Athēnās properat, Galba hastens to Athens
Galba Athēnīs properat, Galba hastens from Athens

[1] Motto of Columbia University.
[2] This is often called the locative ablative (from locus, place).
[3] When domus means house, the preposition is used.

Galba Athēnīs habitat, Galba lives at (or in) Athens
Galba domum properat, Galba hastens home
Galba rūs properat, Galba hastens to the country
Galba domō properat, Galba hastens from home
Galba rūre properat, Galba hastens from the country

a. Names of countries, like Germānia, Italia, etc., do not come under these exceptions. With them prepositions must be used.

485. Locative Case. Names of towns and small islands that are singular and belong to the first or second declension express the place at which by the so-called locative case. This is like the genitive singular in form. Other locatives are domī,[1] at home, and rūrī, in the country.

Galba Rōmae habitat, Galba lives at Rome
Galba Corinthī habitat, Galba lives at Corinth
Galba domī habitat, Galba lives at home
Galba rūrī habitat, Galba lives in the country

a. When the name of the town is plural, there is no special locative form and the ablative must be used (§ 483).

Galba Athēnīs habitat, Galba lives at Athens

III	-is
IV	-ūs

493. Rule for Ablative of Time When. The time when or within which anything happens is expressed by the ablative without a preposition.

a. Occasionally the preposition in is found. Compare the English The next day we started and On the next day we started.

GENDER IN THE THIRD DECLENSION · WORD FORMATION

496. Gender in Third Declension. In all the declensions except the third the gender of nouns is easy to determine. In the third, however, the rules for gender are numerous and present many exceptions. The subject has therefore been postponed to prevent confusion during the learning of the case forms. We take it up at this point, confining it to a few rules that are of great practical service and have few exceptions.

[1] From Horace, the great lyric poet. The sentiment teaches the value of the golden mean. One of the sayings of one of the seven sages of Greece was, "Nothing too much." The Latin equivalent, nē quid nimis, quoted from Terence, will be found on the title-page of this book.

a. Masculine are most nouns in -or and -es (genitive -itis).

b. Feminine are most nouns in -dō, -iō, -tās, -ūs, and in -s preceded by a consonant.

(1) Exception: masculine are dēns, a tooth, and mōns, a mountain, pōns, a bridge, and fōns, a fountain.

c. Neuter are most nouns in -e, -al, -ar, -n, -ŭs.

497. Word Formation. To the prefixes that you have learned (ā, ab, ad, con-, dē, ē, ex, in, in-, prō, re-, trāns) we now add four more: inter, per, prae, and sub. Two of these, inter and per, you have already learned as prepositions.

a. Inter, between or among, also used as a preposition with the accusative: as, intermittō, send between or among, hence interrupt, suspend; English derivatives, intermission, intermittent; intericiō (inter + iaciō, throw), throw between; English derivatives, interject, interjection, etc.

b. Per, through, also used as a preposition with the accusative: as, permittō, send through, hence give leave, permit; English derivatives, permission, permissible, etc. As a prefix per often has the force of through and through, thoroughly: as, terreō, frighten; perterreō, frighten thoroughly; moveō, permoveō; etc.

c. Prae, before, also used as a preposition with the ablative, but more common as a prefix: as, praemittō, send ahead. In English this prefix usually appears as pre-, as in the word prefix itself, which means to fix or fasten before or in front. Compare also such words as predict (prae + dīcō), prepare (prae + parō), precede (prae + cēdō, move), preoccupy (prae + occupō), etc.

d. Sub, under, also used as a preposition, generally with the ablative: as, submittō, send under, hence yield, submit; English derivatives, submission, submissive, etc. The prefix also takes the form suc-, suf-, sug-, sup-, and sus-, as in suc-cumb, suf-fer, sug-gest, sup-port, sus-tain. Look up these words in the English dictionary and note the force of the prefix and the meaning of the root word.

EXERCISES

498. Derivation. What should you judge to be the meaning of inter + veniō, per + veniō, prae + veniō, sub + veniō?

499. Derivation. With veniō as the root word, write a list of twenty-five English derivatives, using prefixes and suffixes, and define each derivative.

500. With the aid of the rules in § 496 give the gender of the following nouns:

mare	aestās	animal
mors	nōmen	legiō
pedes	virtūs	corpus

501. Give the rules for gender in the five declensions. See §§ 86, 97, 496, 476, 489.

THE NINE IRREGULAR ADJECTIVES

502. Nine adjectives of the first and second declensions have the genitive singular in -īus and the dative in -ī in all genders. The rest of the singular and all the plural forms are regular. Learn the meaning of each:

alius, alia, aliud, other, another (of several) alter, altera, alterum, the one, the other (of two) neuter, neutra, neutrum, neither (of two) nūllus, -a, -um, none, no sōlus, -a, -um, alone
tōtus, -a, -um, all, whole, entire ūllus, -a, -um, any ūnus, -a, -um, one, alone; (in the plural) only uter, utra, utrum, which? (of two)

[1] From Lucilius, a famous writer of Latin satire.

503. Declension of nūllus and alius.

	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.

Acc.	nūllum	nūllam	nūllum	alium	aliam	aliud
Abl.	nūllō	nūllā	nūllō	aliō	aliā	aliō

The plural is regular.

504. Alius and alter are frequently used in pairs as follows:

alius . . . alius, one . . . another alter . . . alter, the one . . . the other aliī . . . aliī, some . . . others alterī . . . alterī, the one party . . . the other party alter iubet, alter pāret, the one commands, the other obeys aliī terram, aliī aquam amant, some love the land, others the water

505. Alius repeated in another case expresses briefly a double statement.

alius aliud petit, one seeks one thing, another another (literally, another seeks another thing) aliī aliam urbem occupant, some seize one city, others another (literally, others seize another city)

CLASSES OF PRONOUNS · PERSONAL AND REFLEXIVE PRONOUNS

508. Classes of Pronouns. The classes of pronouns are the same in Latin as in English.

a. Personal pronouns, which show the person speaking, spoken to, or spoken of: as, ego, I; tū, you. (Cf. § 509.)

b. Possessive pronouns, which denote possession: as, meus, my; tuus, your; suus, his, her, its, their; etc. (Cf. § 133.)

c. Reflexive pronouns, used in the predicate to refer back to the subject: as, sē vīdit, he saw himself. (Cf. § 511.)

d. Intensive pronouns, used to emphasize a noun or pronoun: as, ipse id vīdī, I myself saw it. (Cf. § 516.)

e. Demonstrative pronouns, which point out persons or things: as, is, this, that. (Cf. § 203.)

f. Relative pronouns, which connect a subordinate adjective clause with an antecedent: as, quī, who. (Cf. § 386.)

g. Interrogative pronouns, which ask a question: as, quis? who? (Cf. § 394.)

h. Indefinite pronouns, which point out indefinitely: as, aliquis, someone, anyone; quīdam, some, certain ones; etc. (Cf. § 528.)

[1] From Martial, a Roman poet, famous for his epigrams.

509. Personal Pronouns. The personal pronouns of the first person are ego, I, and nōs, we; of the second person, tū, thou or you, and vōs, ye or you. They are declined as follows:

	SINGULAR
	First Person	Second Person
Nom.	ego, I	tū, you
Gen.	meī, of me	tuī, of you
Dat.	mihi, to or for me	tibi, to or for you
Acc.	mē, me	tē, you
Abl.	mē, with, from, etc., me	tē, with, from, etc., you
	PLURAL
Nom.	nōs, we	vōs, you
Gen.	nostrum or nostrī, of us	vestrum or vestrī, of you
Dat.	nōbīs, to or for us	vōbīs, to or for you
Acc.	nōs, us	vōs, you
Abl.	nōbīs, with, from, etc., us	vōbīs, with, from, etc., you

a. The nominatives, ego, tū, nōs, vōs, are used only to express emphasis or contrast.

510. The personal pronoun of the third person (he, she, it, they, etc.) is regularly expressed by the demonstrative pronoun is, ea, id (§ 205).

511. Reflexive Pronouns. The reflexives of the first person (myself, ourselves) and of the second person (yourself, yourselves) are expressed by the forms of ego and tū: as, videō mē, I see myself	vidēmus nōs, we see ourselves

vidēs tē, you see yourself	vidētis vōs, you see yourselves

512. The reflexive pronoun of the third person (himself, herself, itself, themselves) has a special form, declined alike in the singular and plural.

SINGULAR AND PLURAL

Nom.	lacking
Gen.	suī, of himself, herself, itself, themselves
Dat.	sibi, to or for himself, herself, itself, themselves
Acc.	sē or sēsē, himself, herself, itself, themselves
Abl.	sē or sēsē, with, from, etc., himself, herself, itself, themselves

Puer sē videt, the boy sees himself
Puella sē videt, the girl sees herself
Animal sē videt, the animal sees itself
Iī sē vident, they see themselves

513. Enclitic Use of cum. The preposition cum, when used with the ablatives mē, tē, sē, nōbīs, vōbīs, is joined to them: as, mēcum, with me; nōbīs'cum, with us; etc. Cum is likewise joined to quō, quā, and quibus, the ablative forms of the relative and interrogative: as,

Vir quōcum puer venit, the man with whom the boy is coming Quibuscum bellum gerunt, with whom do they carry on war?

514. 1. Mea patria est mihi nōta, et tua patria est tibi nōta. 2. Vestrī amīcī sunt nōbīs grātī, et nostrī amīcī sunt vōbīs grātī. 3. Lēgātī pācem amicitiamque sibi et sociīs suīs petiērunt. 4. Sī tū [1] arma capiēs, ego [1] rēgnum tuum occupābō. 5. Uter vestrum est cīvis Rōmānus? Neuter nostrum. 6. Quibus [2] rēbus cognitīs, multī sēsē in fugam dedērunt. 7. Timōre servitūtis commōtae, multae mulierēs sēsē interfēcērunt. 8. Quōcum imperātor iter faciet? Mēcum.

1. Personal pronouns in the nominative are emphatic. 2. These. The relative is often used at the beginning of a sentence with the force of a demonstrative.

515. 1. You cannot see yourself. 2. The queen is pleasing to herself, but not to her kingdom. 3. The general, alarmed by your arrival, fled.[1] 4. You will suffer[2] punishment on that day, but not I.[3] 5. Many things alarmed us, but most of all the fear of the cavalry.

1. Latin, gave himself into flight. 2. Latin, give. 3. The pronouns you and I, being emphatic, must be expressed.

THE INTENSIVE PRONOUN IPSE · THE DEMONSTRATIVE PRONOUN ĪDEM

516. Intensive Pronoun ipse. The intensive ipse, ipsa, ipsum, is used both as a pronoun and as an adjective. It is usually an adjective and emphasizes the noun or pronoun with which it agrees, and is translated himself, herself, itself, myself, yourself, etc.: as,

Homō ipse venit, the man himself is coming Puella ipsa venit, the girl herself is coming Puerī ipsī veniunt, the boys themselves are coming Ego ipse veniō, I myself am coming

a. In English the pronouns himself etc. are used both intensively (as, Galba will come himself) and reflexively (as, Galba will kill himself); in Latin the former would be translated by the adjective ipse, the latter by the pronoun sē:

Galba ipse veniet Galba sē interficiet

b. Ipse is sometimes translated by very: as, eō ipsō diē, on that very day.

[1] From Horace.

517. The intensive pronoun ipse is declined like the nine irregular adjectives (§ 502).

	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.
Nom.	ipse	ipsa	ipsum	ipsī	ipsae	ipsa
Gen.	ipsī'us	ipsī'us	ipsī'us	ipsōrum	ipsārum	ipsōrum
Dat.	ipsī	ipsī	ipsī	ipsīs	ipsīs	ipsīs

Abl.	ipsō	ipsā	ipsō	ipsīs	ipsīs	ipsīs

518. Demonstrative Pronoun īdem. The demonstrative pronoun īdem, the same, is a compound of is, and is declined as follows:

	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.
Nom.	īdem	e'adem	idem
Gen.	eius'dem	eius'dem	eius'dem
Dat.	eī'dem	eī'dem	eī'dem
Acc.	eun'dem	ean'dem	idem
Abl.	eō'dem	eā'dem	eō'dem
Nom.	iī'dem eī'dem	eae'dem	e'adem

Abl.	iīs'dem eīs'dem	iīs'dem eīs'dem	iīs'dem eīs'dem

a. The forms iīdem and iīsdem are often spelled and pronounced with one ī.

b. The demonstrative īdem is used both as a noun and as an adjective.

c. Īdem is sometimes best rendered also, at the same time: as, ego īdem dīxī, I also said.

Tamen vōs ipsī eōsdem saepissimē vīcistis. 7. Imperātor suā manū fīliam servāvit, sed sē ipse [2] servāre nōn potuit.

1. Latin says I and you, not you and I. 2. The intensive ipse here agrees with the subject, though in English the emphasis falls on the predicate.

520. 1. The general himself gave a part of the army the right of way through the same kingdom. 2. After all hope [1] of safety was left behind, the citizens themselves laid down their arms. 3. The same great fear seized [2] the hearts of all.

1. Ablative absolute. 2. occupō, -āre.

LESSON LXXX

Nōn sibi, sed suīs — Not for herself, but for her own [1]

THE DEMONSTRATIVE PRONOUNS HIC, ISTE, ILLE

521. Use of hic, iste, and ille. The demonstrative pronoun is, ea, id, makes no definite reference to place or time (§ 203); but hic (this, he) refers to a person or thing near the speaker, iste (that, he) to a person or thing near the person addressed, and ille (that, he) to a person or thing remote from both.

Amāsne hunc equum, do you like this horse (of mine)?
Istum equum amō, sed illum equum nōn amō, I like that horse (of yours), but that horse (yonder) I don't like

[1] Motto of Tulane University.

522. The demonstratives hic, iste, and ille are used both as pronouns and as adjectives. When used as adjectives, they regularly precede their nouns.

523. Declension of hic, iste, and ille. Hic is declined as follows:

	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.	Masc.	Fem.	Neut.
Nom.	hic	haec	hoc	hī	hae	haec
Gen.	huius	huius	huius	hōrum	hārum	hōrum

Abl.	hōc	hāc	hōc	hīs	hīs	hīs

a. Huius is pronounced hŏŏ'yŏŏs, and huic is pronounced hweek (one syllable).

524. The demonstrative pronouns iste, ista, istud, and ille, illa, illud, except for the nominative and accusative singular neuter forms istud and illud, are declined like ipse, ipsa, ipsum. (See § 517.)

526. 1. Is that spear (of yours[1]) heavy? No, this spear (of mine[1]) is light. 2. That spear of Mark's is much longer than mine. 3. You ought to show us the road that leads across this mountain. 4. That road which extends through our territory is much shorter. 5. The very manner of life of those savages is not the same.

1. English words in parentheses are not to be translated.

INDEFINITE PRONOUNS

527. Indefinite pronouns do not, like demonstratives, point out definite persons or things, but refer to them indefinitely: as, someone, anyone, something, some, any.

528. Indefinite pronouns, like demonstratives, are used both as pronouns and as adjectives. The simple indefinite pronoun is quis, someone, anyone, and the indefinite adjective is quī, quae, quod, some, any.[2] Far more common are the compounds aliquis, someone; quisque, each one; and quīdam, a certain one. The forms of these indefinites are as follows:

1. Substantive forms:

Masc. and Fem.	Neut.
aliquis, someone, anyone	aliquid, something, anything
quisque, each one, everyone	quidque, each thing, everything

Masc.	Fem.	Neut.
quīdam, a certain man	quaedam, a certain woman	quiddam, a certain thing

[1] Motto of the state of Oklahoma.

[2] The indefinites quis and quī are the same in form and declension as the interrogatives (§§ 394, 395).

2. Adjective forms:

MASC.	FEM.	NEUT.
aliquī	aliqua	aliquod, any quisque	quaeque	quodque, each quīdam	quaedam	quoddam, a certain

529. Declension of Indefinites. Indefinites are declined, in general, like the interrogatives quis and qui. An m coming before a d is changed to n: as, quendam, not quemdam.[1]

CARDINAL NUMERALS AND THEIR DECLENSION

532. Cardinal Numerals. Cardinal numerals answer the question How many? The first twelve cardinals are as follows:[2]

1, ūnus	5, quīnque	9, novem
2, duo	6, sex	10, decem
3, trēs	7, septem	11, ūndecim
4, quattuor	8, octō	12, duodecim

a. The word for 100 is centum; for 200, ducentī; for 1000, mīlle.

533. Declension of Cardinals. Of the cardinals, only ūnus, duo, trēs, the hundreds above one hundred, and mīlle used as a noun, are declined.

534. Ūnus, one, is one of the nine irregular adjectives, and is declined like nūllus (§ 503).

535. Learn the declension of duo, two, and of trēs, three. See § 824.

536. Mīlle, thousand, in the singular is an indeclinable adjective. In the plural it is a neuter noun, and is declined like the plural of mare:

Nom.	mīlia
Gen.	mīlium
Dat.	mīlibus
Acc.	mīlia
Abl.	mīlibus

[1] From Terence, the famous writer of comedies. The motto means that every man has his opinion.

[2] A fuller table of numerals is given in § 823.

537. Ducentī, two hundred, and other hundreds above one hundred are declined like the plural of bonus: as,

ducentī	ducentae	ducenta
ducentōrum	ducentārum	ducentōrum
ducentīs	ducentīs	ducentīs
etc.	etc.	etc.

ORDINAL NUMERALS · THE GENITIVE OF THE WHOLE, OR THE PARTITIVE GENITIVE

539. Ordinal Numerals. Ordinal numerals answer the question In what order? The first twelve are as follows:

first, prīmus, -a, -um	seventh, septimus, -a, -um
second, secundus, -a, -um	eighth, octā'vus, -a, -um
third, tertius, -a, -um	ninth, nōnus, -a, -um fourth, quārtus, -a, -um	tenth, decimus, -a, -um
fifth, quīntus, -a, -um	eleventh, ūndecimus, -a, -um
sixth, sextus, -a, -um	twelfth, duodecimus, -a, -um

The ordinals are all declined like bonus.

540. Genitive of the Whole, or Partitive Genitive. In the sentence Of all these the Belgæ are the bravest, the phrase of all these represents the whole number of whom the Belgæ are the bravest part. This sentence is expressed similarly in Latin: as,

Hōrum omnium fortissimī sunt Belgae and the genitive hōrum omnium is called the genitive of the whole, or the partitive genitive.

541. Rule for Genitive of the Whole. A genitive denoting the whole is used with words denoting a part, and is known as the genitive of the whole, or the partitive genitive.

542. Mīlle, singular, is an indeclinable adjective: as, mīlle mīlitēs, a thousand soldiers. Mīlia, plural, is a neuter noun, and is followed by the genitive: as, decem mīlia mīlitum, ten thousand soldiers (literally, ten thousands of soldiers).

543. Cardinal numbers, except mīlia, are followed by the ablative with ex or dē, instead of the genitive: as, ūnus ex puerīs, one of the boys.

Of all the kings Tarquinius Superbus was the worst. For this reason he was driven out by Brutus, the first consul.

THE ACCUSATIVE OF DURATION OF TIME OR EXTENT OF SPACE

546. The questions How long? and How far? are answered in English by an adverbial objective expressing duration of time or extent of space. This relation is similarly expressed in Latin by the Latin objective, or accusative: as,

Gallī sex diēs pugnāvērunt, the Gauls fought for six days
Aqua centum pedēs alta est, the water is a hundred feet deep

547. Rule for Accusative of Duration or Extent. Duration of time and extent of space are expressed by the accusative.

548. The accusative of time how long and the ablative of the time when or within which (§ 493) must be carefully distinguished. Select what would be accusatives of time or space and ablatives of time in the following passage if it were in Latin:

At midnight I went on deck. For many hours I had been tossing sleepless in my bunk. In the first place, the storm which began on Monday had now been raging for five days. Furthermore, in a few hours we should be in the channel; only a few miles from safety, to be sure, but also in the most dangerous zone of our voyage. The night was clear, and once I thought I saw a periscope, but it was only a floating spar extending several feet above the water. I was distinctly nervous, and did not care to repeat my former experience when I spent forty-eight hours in a leaky boat, which we rowed forty-seven miles before we were saved.

THE ABLATIVE OF RESPECT · THE GENITIVE WITH ADJECTIVES

551. Ablative of Respect. Note the following sentences:

Cīvēs erant paucī numerō, the citizens were few in number
Mārcus frātrem virtūte superat, Mark excels his brother in valor

The ablatives numerō and virtūte answer the question In what respect? and are called ablatives of respect.

552. Rule for Ablative of Respect. The ablative is used to denote in what respect something is true.

553. Genitive with Adjectives. Compare the following sentences:

Rēx bellum cupit, the king desires war
Rēx bellī cupidus est, the king is desirous of war

The relation between the verb cupit and its direct object bellum is clearly similar to that between the adjective cupidus and its genitive bellī. Genitives used as the object of the action or feeling implied in certain adjectives are therefore called objective genitives.

554. Rule for Genitive with Adjectives. The adjectives cupidus, desirous; perītus, skilled; imperītus, ignorant, and others of similar character are followed by the objective genitive.

DEPONENT VERBS · THE GENITIVE OR ABLATIVE OF DESCRIPTION

557. Deponent Verbs. A deponent verb is one that is passive in form but active in meaning.

558. The principal parts of deponents are, of course, passive.

hortor, hortārī, hortātus sum, urge

a. A few verbs are deponent in the perfect system only: as, audeō, audēre, ausus sum, dare

559. Deponent verbs are conjugated in the passive:

hortor, hortārī, hortātus sum (urge), like vocor (§ 832) vereor, verērī, veritus sum (fear), like moneor (§ 833) sequor, sequī, secūtus sum (follow), like regor (§ 834) patior, patī, passus sum (suffer), like capior (§ 836) partior, partīrī, partītus sum (share), like audior (§ 835)

560. Besides having all the forms of the passive, deponent verbs have also the future active infinitive, the active participles, and a few other active forms which will be noted later.[2]

561. Genitive or Ablative of Description. English and Latin employ similar expressions of quality or description. Thus we may say either Cæsar was a man of great courage or Cæsar was a man with great courage. Similarly in Latin we may use the genitive in the first case and the ablative in the second: as,

Caesar erat vir magnae virtūtis
Caesar erat vir magnā virtūte

[1] From Horace, the poet laureate of the Augustan age.

[2] The complete synopsis of deponent verbs is given in § 837.

562. Rule for Genitive or Ablative of Description. The genitive or the ablative, with a modifying adjective, is used in expressions of quality or description.

a. Numerical descriptions of measure are in the genitive, and descriptions of physical characteristics are usually in the ablative.

fossa decem pedum, a ditch of ten feet, or a ten-foot ditch
puella parvīs manibus, a girl with small hands

1. ex omnibus partibus, on all sides. 2. Several.

564. 1. Cæsar constructed[1] a ten-foot rampart.[2] 2. The rampart was many miles[3] long. 3. Men of no wisdom suffer pain because they do not fear the laws. 4. One man urges one thing, another another.[4] 5. But we shall follow Cæsar's authority. 6. In height your mountains are not equal to ours.

1. dūcō. 2. Latin, a rampart of ten feet. 3. Latin, many thousands of paces. 4. Translate the sentence by three Latin words. See § 505.

LESSON LXXXVII

Vōx clāmantis in dēsertō — The voice of one crying in the wilderness[1]

PARTICIPLES

565. The nature of the participle has been already discussed (§ 344). Latin has four participles, the present and the future in the active voice, and the past and the future (also called the gerundive) in the passive voice.[2]

I. Present Active Participle. Present Stem + -ns or -ēns	vocāns, calling monēns, advising regēns, ruling audiēns, hearing
II. Future Active Participle. Participial Stem + -ūrus, -a, -um	vocātūrus, about to call monitūrus, about to advise rēctūrus, about to rule audītūrus, about to hear
III. Past Passive Participle. Participial Stem + -us, -a, -um	vocātus, having been called monitus, having been advised rēctus, having been ruled audītus, having been heard
IV. Future Passive Participle or Gerundive. Present Stem + -ndus or -endus, -a, -um	vocandus, to be called monendus, to be advised regendus, to be ruled audiendus, to be heard

566. Declension of Participles. All participles ending in -us are declined like bonus (§ 120). Present participles are declined like adjectives of one ending; see the declension of vocāns, § 817.

[1] Motto of Dartmouth College. From the Latin translation of the Bible.

[2] It is to be noted that Latin, unlike English, has no past active participle (having called) or present passive participle (being called).

567. Past and Future Participles. We have made frequent use of the past passive participle as the last of the principal parts (§ 299), and in the formation of the perfect passive system (vocātus sum, etc.). We have also used it frequently in agreement with a noun in the ablative absolute (§ 400): as,

Gallīs superātīs, Caesar in Italiam contendit, after the Gauls had been overcome, Cæsar hastened into Italy

The future active participle with esse makes the future active infinitive (§ 356): as, vocātūrus esse, to be about to call.

568. Present Active Participle. The present active participle, as well as the past passive, is often used with a noun or pronoun in the ablative absolute.

Caesare dūcente, nihil timēmus, Cæsar leading (or when Cæsar leads), we fear nothing

569. Participles of Deponent Verbs. Deponent verbs have four participles, of the same form as those of other verbs: as, hortāns, urging hortātūrus, about to urge hortātus, having urged hortandus, to be urged[1]

But note that the past participle of deponents is active in meaning, and that only deponent verbs have an active past participle. Compare hortātus, having urged (active), from hortor, deponent vocātus, having been called (passive), from vocō, not deponent

570. Give the participles of the following verbs:

portō	mittō	mūniō	vereor
iaciō	dūcō	moveō	patior

[1] The future passive participle, or gerundive, of deponent verbs is passive in meaning as well as in form.

1. Where we say "build a bridge over," the Romans said "build a bridge in," because bridges were often built of boats.

572. 1. When our country calls,[1] we ought to take up arms. 2. The king, fearing the multitude, did not dare to send ahead spies. 3. After suffering[2] wrongs for many years, the allies were eager for war. 4. At the fourth hour suitable scouts were chosen and sent forward. 5. Cæsar inflicted punishment on that king. 6. Many books have been written concerning the size of Rome. 7. After drawing up[3] the line of battle, the commander waited for two hours.

1. Express by the present participle in the ablative absolute. 2. Past participle. 3. Express by the past participle in the ablative absolute, and note that, as this participle is regularly passive in Latin, the voice of the English verb must be changed, and thus the English becomes after the line of battle had been drawn up. Never fail to change an English past participle from the active to the passive before translating, unless the Latin verb is deponent (cf. § 569).

LESSON LXXXVIII

Scientia sōl mentis — Knowledge the sun of the mind[1]

WORD FORMATION

573. Spelling of English Words in -ant and -ent. Many English nouns and adjectives ending in -ant and -ent are derived from the Latin present participle, and have the same form as its base. Thus:

Latin Verb	Present Participle	English Word
occupō	occupāns, -antis	occupant
servō	servāns, -antis	servant
importō	importāns, -antis	important studeō	studēns, -entis	student
agō	agēns, -entis	agent
contineō	continēns, -entis	continent

English words of this kind derived from Latin verbs of the first conjugation end in -ant; from verbs of other conjugations, in -ent.

a. Exceptions to this rule are words of Latin origin that have come into English through the medium of Norman French, where the present participle of verbs of all conjugations ends regularly in -ant. Thus, from teneō (present participle tenēns) the English derivative is not tenent, as we should expect, but tenant (cf. French tenant).

574. Nouns in -or denoting the Agent or Doer. Many Latin nouns denoting the agent or doer are formed from Latin verbs by changing -us of the past participle to -or. These nouns have generally passed into English with no change of form. Thus:

[1] Motto of Delaware College.

Verb	Past Participle	Latin Noun	English Noun
agō	āctus	āctor	actor
audiō	audītus	audītor	auditor
capiō	captus	captor	captor
veniō	inventus	inventor	inventor
līberō	līberātus	līberātor	liberator
moneō	monitus	monitor	monitor
nārrō	nārrātus	nārrātor	narrator
nāvigō	nāvigātus	nāvigātor	navigator
spectō	spectātus	spectātor	spectator
vincō	victus	victor	victor

The number of these nouns, both in Latin and English, is very great. Some of the Latin nouns have a feminine form in -trīx: as, administrātrīx, victrīx, etc. The same suffix is used in English: as, administrator, M.; administratrix, F.

THE GATE OF ST. SEBASTIAN

Rome is still a walled town. The wall built about 600 B.C. by King Servius Tullius sufficed for nine hundred years, though the city had spread far beyond it on every side. But about A.D. 300 the danger of barbarian invasion became so great that the present wall was constructed. It is nearly twelve miles in circuit and has fifteen gates. The gate in the picture is the Porta Appia, now called the Gate of St. Sebastian, through which passes the Appian Way.

LESSON LXXXIX

Scientia crēscat, vīta colātur — Let knowledge grow, let life be enriched[1]

THE SUBJUNCTIVE MOOD · PRESENT SUBJUNCTIVE OF THE FIRST AND SECOND CONJUGATIONS · THE INDICATIVE AND SUBJUNCTIVE COMPARED

577. Subjunctive Mood. Besides the indicative and imperative, Latin has a third mood, called the subjunctive.

578. Tenses of Subjunctive. The subjunctive has four tenses: present, past, perfect, and past perfect.

The personal endings, active and passive, are the same as in the indicative.

a. The meaning of the subjunctive varies in different constructions to such a degree that it is not practical to translate the subjunctive forms in the paradigms.

579. Present Subjunctive of First Conjugation. The sign of the present subjunctive in the first conjugation is -ē-, which takes the place of -ā, the final vowel of the present stem: as,

Active	Passive
voc(ā) + ē + m = vocem	voc(ā) + ē + r = vocer

580. In the subjunctive, as elsewhere, a long vowel is shortened before nt and final -m, -t, or -r (see § 194). The present subjunctive is inflected as follows:

	Active Voice		Passive Voice
1.	vo′cem	vocē′mus	vo′cer	vocē′mur
2.	vo′cēs	vocē′tis	vocē′ris (-re)	vocē′minī
3.	vo′cet	vo′cent	vocē′tur	vocen′tur

[1] Motto of The University of Chicago.

581. Present Subjunctive of Second Conjugation. The sign of the present subjunctive in the second conjugation is -ā-, which is added to the present stem and is followed by the personal endings: as,

ACTIVE monē + ā + m = moneam PASSIVE monē + ā + r = monear

Long vowels are shortened in the usual places (§ 194).

	ACTIVE VOICE		PASSIVE VOICE
1.	mo'neam	monā'mus	mo'near	monā'mur
2.	mo'neās	monā'tis	monā'ris (-re)	monā'minī
3.	mo'neat	mo'neant	monā'tur	monean'tur

582. Indicative and Subjunctive Compared. The indicative mood asserts facts or inquires after facts. The subjunctive, on the other hand, expresses desires, wishes, purposes, possibilities, expectations, and the like. The following sentences illustrate the difference between indicative and subjunctive ideas.

INDICATIVE IDEAS	SUBJUNCTIVE IDEAS
1. We call him Eum vocāmus	1. Let us call him Eum vocēmus (desire)
2. You see the city Urbem vidēs	2. May you see the city Urbem videās (wish)
3. Scouts come who warn you Explōrātōrēs veniunt quī tē monent	3. Scouts come to warn (or who are to warn) you Explōrātōrēs veniunt quī tē moneant (purpose)
4. They fight bravely Fortiter pugnant	4. They would fight bravely Fortiter pugnent (possibility)
5. He waits at Rome until the enemy are overcome Rōmae exspectat dum hostēs superantur	5. He waits at Rome until the enemy shall be overcome Rōmae exspectat dum hostēs superentur (expectation)

EXERCISE

583. Which verbs in the following paragraph would be in the indicative, and which in the subjunctive, in a Latin translation?

> And we won't come back till it 's over over there.
> How splendidly our soldiers made good the words of their song. Who would have expected so speedy and so glorious a victory? They were young. They were fine. They were brave. But they had not been tested. "Let us hope, let us have confidence," was the best one could say. The crisis was at hand. At Paris, less than forty miles away, one might hear the thunder of the guns. And still the enemy pressed on and the brave French were forced back. American forces were rushed to the front. The French urged retreat to a stronger position. "We came to fight, not to retreat," said the Yanks. Then in plunged the Marines. May their glory ever shine! And what they did thrilled the world. From that day onward the Stars and Stripes blazed the victorious trail.
> 'Tis the Star-Spangled Banner, O long may it wave
> O'er the land of the free, and the home of the brave!

Scūtō bonae voluntātis tuae corōnāstī nōs — Thou hast encompassed us by the shield of Thy loving-kindness[1]

PRESENT SUBJUNCTIVE, THIRD AND FOURTH CONJUGATIONS · SUBJUNCTIVE OF PURPOSE

585. Present Subjunctive of Third Conjugation. The sign of the present subjunctive of the third conjugation is -ā-. This -ā- takes the place of -e, the final vowel of the present stem, and is followed by the personal endings:

ACTIVE reg(e) + ā + m = regam PASSIVE reg(e) + ā + r = regar

ACTIVE VOICE		PASSIVE VOICE
1. re′gam	regā′mus	re′gar	regā′mur
2. re′gās	regā′tis	regā′ris (-re)	regā′minī
3. re′gat	re′gant	regā′tur	regan′tur

a. In like manner inflect capiam, the present subjunctive of capiō, and other -iō verbs of the third conjugation (see § 836).

586. Present Subjunctive of Fourth Conjugation. The sign of the present subjunctive of the fourth conjugation is -ā-. This is added to the present stem and is followed by the personal endings:

ACTIVE audī + ā + m = audiam PASSIVE audī + ā + r = audiar

ACTIVE VOICE		PASSIVE VOICE
1. au′diam	audiā′mus	au′diar	audiā′mur
2. au′diās	audiā′tis	audiā′ris (-re)	audiā′minī
3. au′diat	au′diant	audiā′tur	audian′tur

[1] Motto of the state of Maryland. From the Latin translation of the Bible.

587. Subjunctive of Purpose. Observe the following sentence:

Explōrātōrēs veniunt quī tē moneant, scouts come to warn you

The verb moneant in the dependent clause is in the subjunctive because it expresses the scouts' purpose. This use of the subjunctive is called the subjunctive of purpose. In English the purpose is often expressed, as here, by the infinitive. It is never so expressed in good Latin prose.

588. Rule for Subjunctive of Purpose. A clause expressing purpose takes the subjunctive.

589. A clause of purpose is introduced by the relative pronoun quī (as above), or by ut, in order that, that; or, if negative, by nē, in order that not, that not, lest.

Caesar mittit mīlitēs quī agrōs vāstent, Cæsar sends soldiers to lay waste (literally, who should lay waste) the fields

Mīlitēs veniunt ut agrōs vāstent, soldiers come to lay waste (literally, in order that they may lay waste) the fields

Agricolae pugnant nē agrī vāstentur, the farmers fight that their fields may not be laid waste

PAST SUBJUNCTIVE, FIRST AND SECOND CONJUGATIONS SEQUENCE OF TENSES

592. Inflection of Past Subjunctive. The past subjunctive of any verb may be formed by adding the personal endings to the present infinitive active. The past subjunctive of vocō and moneō is inflected as follows:

ACTIVE VOICE

1. vocā′rem	vocārē′mus	monē′rem	monērē′mus
2. vocā′rēs	vocārē′tis	monē′rēs	monērē′tis
3. vocā′ret	vocā′rent	monē′ret	monē′rent

PASSIVE VOICE

1. vocā′rer	vocārē′mur	monē′rer	monērē′mur
2. vocārē′ris (-re)	vocārē′minī	monērē′ris (-re)	monērē′minī
3. vocārē′tur	vocāren′tur	monērē′tur	monēren′tur

593. Sequence of Tenses Defined. Tenses referring to present or future time are called primary tenses. Tenses referring to past time are called secondary tenses. As a rule, the tenses of the verbs used in the principal and the dependent clause of a complex sentence harmonize; that is, all are primary or all are secondary. For example, in He says that he is coming both of the verbs are present and in a primary tense; but if we change He says to He said, a corresponding change takes place in the verb in the dependent clause, and we say He said that he was coming, both of the verbs being in a secondary tense. This harmony between the tenses is called the sequence of tenses.

[1] Motto of the University of Georgia.

594. Primary and Secondary Tenses. In the following table the primary tenses are marked (1) and the secondary tenses (2):

INDICATIVE	SUBJUNCTIVE
(1) Present	(1) Present
(2) Past	(2) Past
(1) Future	(1) Perfect
(2) Perfect	(2) Past Perfect
(2) Past Perfect
(1) Future Perfect

When indicatives and subjunctives are used in the same sentence, the tenses generally harmonize.

595. Rule for Sequence of Tenses. In a complex sentence a primary tense of the indicative in the principal clause is followed by a primary tense of the subjunctive in the dependent clause, and a secondary by a secondary.

596. EXAMPLES

I. Primary tenses in principal and dependent clauses:

Present Mittit
Future Mittet } hostēs ut agrōs vāstent (Prcs. Subjv.)
Fut. Perf. Mīserit

He { sends / will send / will have sent } foes { that they may, / in order to, or / to } lay waste the fields

II. Secondary tenses in principal and dependent clauses:

Past Mittēbat
Perfect Mīsit } hostēs ut agrōs vāstārent (Past Subjv.)
Past Perf. Mīserat

He { was sending / sent or has sent / had sent } foes { that they might, / in order to, or / to } lay waste the fields

2. regerē′ris (-re)	regerē′minī	audīrē′ris (-re)	audīrē′minī
3. regerē′tur	regeren′tur	audīrē′tur	audīren′tur

a. Like regerem inflect caperem, the past subjunctive of capiō, and other -iō verbs of the third conjugation (see § 836).

600. Noun Clause Defined. A clause is often used as a part of speech, and is then named after the part of speech to which it is equivalent (cf. § 385). Thus we saw in § 386 that a relative clause has the force of an adjective and hence is called an adjective clause. A clause may modify a verb like an adverb, and is then called an adverbial clause: as, vēnērunt *ut pācem peterent, they came to seek peace (adverbial clause of purpose). Similarly, a clause that is used as a noun is called a noun clause. Such a clause is often the subject or object of a verb: as,

That we should agree seems impossible (clause used as subject)

Cæsar commanded that the captives should be let go (clause used as object)

[1] Motto of the University of Michigan.

601. Noun Clauses of Purpose. In English, verbs of asking, commanding, urging, etc. are usually followed by an infinitive clause as object: as,

They asked
They commanded } me to come
They urged

Verbs of this kind denote a purpose or desire that something be done, and the infinitive expresses what that something is. But in Latin, as we have learned (§ 582), a purpose or desire is not expressed by the infinitive, but by the subjunctive. Compare the following English and Latin sentences:

They urged me to come
Hortābantur mē ut venīrem (lit. that I should come)

602. Rule for Noun Clauses of Purpose. Verbs denoting a purpose or desire that something be done are followed by a subjunctive clause as object, introduced by ut or nē.

603. The following common verbs are regularly followed by a noun clause with ut or nē and the subjunctive:

hortor, urge imperō, order (with the dative of the person ordered and a subjunctive clause of the thing ordered) moneō, advise persuādeō, persuade (with the same construction as imperō) petō, rogō, beg, ask postulō, demand, require

a. Remember that iubeō, order, takes the infinitive as in English (§ 367). Compare the following sentences:

Iubeō eum venīre, I order him to come Imperō eī ut veniat, I give orders to him that he come

THE SUBJUNCTIVE OF SUM AND POSSUM

606. Subjunctive of sum. The subjunctive of sum is inflected as follows:

	Present		Past
1.	sim	sīmus	essem	essē′mus
2.	sīs	sītis	essēs	essē′tis
3.	sit	sint	esset	essent

	Perfect		Past Perfect
1.	fu′erim	fue′rimus	fuis′sem	fuissē′mus
2.	fu′eris	fue′ritis	fuis′sēs	fuissē′tis
3.	fu′erit	fu′erint	fuis′set	fuis′sent

607. Subjunctive of possum. The subjunctive of possum is inflected as follows:

	Present		Past
1.	possim	possī′mus	possem	possē′mus
2.	possīs	possī′tis	possēs	possē′tis
3.	possit	possint	posset	possent

	Perfect		Past Perfect
1.	potu′erim	potue′rimus	potuis′sem	potuissē′mus
2.	potu′eris	potue′ritis	potuis′sēs	potuissē′tis
3.	potu′erit	potu′erint	potuis′set	potuis′sent

a. Compare the perfect subjunctive with the future perfect indicative. Note that the past subjunctive may be formed by adding m to the present active infinitive (posse + m), and the past perfect subjunctive by adding m to the perfect active infinitive (potuisse + m).

SUBJUNCTIVE OF RESULT

615. Observe the following sentence:

The danger was so great that all fled, perīculum erat tantum ut omnēs fugerent

The principal clause names a cause, and the dependent clause states the result of this cause. In English the verb fled in the dependent clause is indicative, but in Latin this clause is introduced by ut (so that), and fugerent is subjunctive. This construction is called the subjunctive of result.

616. Rule for Subjunctive of Result. Clauses of result are introduced by ut (negative ut nōn) and have the verb in the subjunctive.

617. Result is sometimes expressed by a noun clause used as object: as,

Perīculum fēcit ut omnēs fugerent, the danger caused all to flee (literally, made so that all fled)

618. Rule for Object Clauses of Result. Object clauses of result introduced by ut (negative ut nōn) are used after verbs of effecting or bringing about.

619. Purpose and Result Clauses Compared. Affirmative clauses of purpose and result are similar; but a negative purpose clause is introduced by nē, while a negative result clause has ut nōn.

1. Not infinitive. 2. Latin idiom, made that she lost.

LESSON XCVI

Commūne vinculum omnibus artibus — The common bond for all the arts[1]

THE DATIVE WITH COMPOUNDS

622. The dative is the case of the indirect object (§ 58). Many intransitive verbs take an indirect object (§ 222), and some transitive verbs take both a direct object and an indirect object: as, Mārcus puerō tēlum dedit, Marcus gave a spear to the boy. Whether or not a verb will have an indirect object depends on its meaning. A number of verbs, some transitive and some intransitive, which in their simple form do not take an indirect object, have a meaning, when compounded with certain prepositions, that calls for one. This indirect object is called the dative with compounds.

623. Rule for Dative with Compounds. Some verbs compounded with ad, ante, con, dē, in, inter, ob, post, prae, prō, sub, and super take the dative of the indirect object. Transitive compounds may take both an accusative and a dative.

Potestās rēgī nōn deërat, power was not lacking to the king
Caesar equitātuī lēgātum praefēcit, Cæsar placed the lieutenant in command of the cavalry

a. Many verbs compounded with these prepositions do not take the dative, because their meaning forbids: as,

Caesar cōpiās ad montem prōdūxit, Cæsar led forth the troops to the mountain

WORD FORMATION

626. Many abstract nouns are formed from adjectives by the suffixes -ia, -tia, -tās, -tūdō.

memor-ia, memory	memor, mindful
inop-ia, want	inops, poor
sapient-ia, wisdom	sapiēns, wise
amīci-tia, friendship	amīcus, friendly
celeri-tās, swiftness	celer, swift
līber-tās, freedom	līber, free
magni-tūdō, greatness	magnus, great
alti-tūdō, height	altus, high

627. Adjectives denoting quality or state are formed from verbs by the suffix -idus.

cup-idus, desirous	cupere, desire
tim-idus, fearful	timēre, fear

628. Adjectives denoting fullness are formed from nouns by the suffix -ōsus (the English suffix -ous).

perīcul-ōsus, dangerous	perīculum, danger
studi-ōsus, zealous	studium, zeal

629. Adjectives denoting capability in a passive sense are formed from verbs by the suffixes -ilis and -bilis.

fac-ilis, easy (able to be done)	facere, do
crēdi-bilis, credible (able to be believed)	crēdere, believe
amā-bilis, lovable	amāre, love

[1] Motto of the University of Florida.

630. Hints on Spelling. When in doubt as to whether an English word should end in -able or -ible, remember that derivatives from Latin verbs of the first conjugation end in -able, those from other conjugations end in -ible.

portable	portāre	visible	vidēre
vulnerable	vulnerāre	reducible	redūcere
comparable	comparāre	audible	audīre
habitable	habitāre	possible	posse

A few common words are exceptions: as, tenable, movable, capable, preventable.

631. Most English words ending in -tion or -sion are derived from Latin verbs. If the Latin past participle ends in -tus, use the suffix -tion; if in -sus, use -sion.

ENGLISH WORD	LATIN PARTICIPLE
exception	exceptus
contention	contentus

THE IRREGULAR VERBS VOLŌ, NŌLŌ, AND MĀLŌ

634. Learn the inflection of volō, wish; nōlō, be unwilling; and mālō, prefer (§ 840), and note that the indicative and subjunctive are inflected like regō except in the present indicative and the present and past subjunctive. These verbs have no passive voice.

635. Constructions with volō, nōlō, and mālō. In English we say I wish to write or I wish him to write. In the first sentence I wish is followed by the complementary infinitive to write, and the subject of the two verbs is the same. In the second, I wish is followed by the object clause him to write, and the subjects are different.

Similarly, in Latin, volō, nōlō, and mālō are used with the complementary infinitive when the subject remains the same; and with the infinitive with subject accusative when the subjects are different (§§ 367–369).

VOCABULARY REVIEW · CONSTRUCTIONS WITH CUM

638. Review the word lists in §§ 732, 733, 737, 738.

639. Constructions with cum. The conjunction cum has three meanings: when, since, and although.

640. Clauses introduced by cum are of four kinds: temporal, descriptive, causal, and concessive.

641. Cum meaning when is temporal or descriptive,[2] and is usually followed by the indicative if the tense is present or future, otherwise by the subjunctive.

Veniam cum poterō, I will come when I can

Cum Rōmānī sē ostenderent, hostēs fūgērunt, when the Romans appeared (showed themselves), the enemy fled

642. Cum causal (since) and cum concessive (although) are followed by the subjunctive.

Cum pācem peterent, Caesar in eōs impetum nōn fēcit, since they were seeking peace, Cæsar did not make an attack on them

Cum prīmī ōrdinēs fūgissent, tamen reliquī fortiter cōnsistēbant, though the first ranks had fled, yet the rest bravely stood their ground

[1] Motto of the University of New Mexico.

[2] A descriptive clause describes the circumstances under which the main action took place: as, The farmer found the money when he was plowing. It is, furthermore, implied that but for the circumstances stated, the action expressed in the main clause would not have taken place. Thus, in the sentence above, if the farmer had not been plowing, he would not have found the money.

643. Rule for Constructions with cum. Cum means when, since, or although, and takes the subjunctive except in a temporal or descriptive clause of present or future time.

VOCABULARY REVIEW · THE IRREGULAR VERB EŌ

646. Review the word lists in §§ 743, 744.

647. Irregular Verb eō. Learn the inflection of the irregular verb eō, go (§ 842), and the declension of the present participle iēns, going (§ 817).

EXERCISES

648. Derivation. The irregular verb eō has a large number of compounds. Using your knowledge of prefixes, give the meaning of the following common words: adeō, exeō, ineō, redeō, trānseō.

649. 1. Cum[1] exercitus rē frūmentāriā premerētur, dux ad oppidum īre contendit. 2. Castrīs positīs, nostrī equitēs crēbra proelia cum barbarīs fēcērunt, sed legiōnēs sēsē in castrīs continēbant. 3. Germānī cum magnīs cōpiīs ex fīnibus suīs ierant ut agrōs meliōrēs occupārent. 4. Multī Germānōs ita timēbant ut cum eīs pugnāre nōllent et domum īre vellent. 5. Imperātor, cum hanc fāmam audīvisset, dīxit, "Īte domum, sī vultis, atque ego sōlus in hostēs ībō." 6. Tum tanta virtūs animōs omnium occupāvit ut manēre quam īre māllent. 7. Cum ad Galliam īrēmus, ōram īnsulae Britanniae vidēre poterāmus. 8. Sine ūllā spē praemī aut victōriae et cum summō perīculō pugnāvī, nē amīcitiam tuam āmitterem. 9. Puerī miserī, quī per silvam euntēs raptī erant, numquam posteā vīsī sunt.

1. cum causal.

[1] From Ovid, a famous poet of the Augustan age. The words are often quoted to urge the value of moderation in all things.

650. 1. The senate persuaded the general[1] not to go[2] to Britain. 2. Though we have toiled many days, yet you wish us to go home without any reward. 3. When you have plenty of money, I advise you to go[2] to Rome. 4. Since you fear frequent wars, why do you not make peace? 5. Go into battle with good arms if you wish to conquer.

1. Not accusative. 2. Not infinitive.

VOCABULARY REVIEW · INDIRECT STATEMENTS

651. Review the word lists in §§ 749, 750.

652. Indirect Statements in English. Direct statements are those which the speaker or writer makes himself or which are quoted in his exact language. Indirect statements are those reported in a different form of words from that used by the speaker or writer. Compare the following direct and indirect statements:

Direct statements
1. The Gauls are brave
2. The Gauls were brave
3. The Gauls will be brave

Indirect statements after a verb in the present tense
1. He says that the Gauls are brave
2. He says that the Gauls were brave
3. He says that the Gauls will be brave

Indirect statements after a verb in a past tense
1. He said that the Gauls were brave
2. He said that the Gauls had been brave
3. He said that the Gauls would be brave

When an English direct statement becomes indirect,

[1] Motto of the University of North Dakota.

a. The indirect statement becomes a dependent clause introduced by the conjunction that.

b. The verb remains finite and its subject is in the nominative.

c. The tenses of the verbs originally used are changed after the past tense, He said.

653. Indirect Statements in Latin. In Latin the direct and indirect statements above would be expressed as follows:

Direct statements:

1. Gallī sunt fortēs, the Gauls are brave
2. Gallī erant fortēs, the Gauls were brave
3. Gallī erunt fortēs, the Gauls will be brave

Indirect statements:

1. Dīcit or Dīxit Gallōs esse fortīs (he says or he said the Gauls to be brave)[1]
2. Dīcit or Dīxit Gallōs fuisse fortīs (he says or he said the Gauls to have been brave)[1]
3. Dīcit or Dīxit Gallōs futūrōs esse fortīs (he says or he said the Gauls to be about to be brave)[1]

Comparing these Latin indirect statements with the English in the preceding section, we observe three marked differences:

a. There is no conjunction corresponding to that.

b. The verb is in the infinitive and its subject is in the accusative.

c. The tenses of the infinitive are not changed after a past tense of the principal verb.

654. Rule for Indirect Statements. When a direct statement becomes indirect, the principal verb is changed to the infinitive and its subject nominative becomes subject accusative of the infinitive.

655. Tenses of Infinitive. When the sentences in §653 were changed from the direct to the indirect form of statement, sunt became esse, erant became fuisse, and erunt became futūrōs esse.

[1] These parenthetical renderings are not inserted as translations, but merely to show the literal meaning of the Latin.

656. Rule for Tenses of Infinitive in Indirect Statements. A present indicative of a direct statement becomes present infinitive of the indirect, a past indicative becomes perfect infinitive, and a future indicative becomes future infinitive.

657. Rule for Verbs followed by Indirect Statements. The accusative-with-infinitive construction in indirect statements is found after verbs of saying, telling, knowing, thinking, and perceiving.

658. Verbs regularly followed by indirect statements are

a. Verbs of saying and telling:

dīcō, dīcere, dīxī, dictus, say, tell negō, negāre, negāvī, negātus, deny, say not nūntiō, nūntiāre, nūntiāvī, nūntiātus, announce respondeō, respondēre, respondī, respōnsus, reply

b. Verbs of knowing:

cognōscō, cognōscere, cognōvī, cognitus, learn, (in the perfect) know sciō, scīre, scīvī, scītus, know

c. Verbs of thinking:

exīstimō, exīstimāre, exīstimāvī, exīstimātus, think, believe iūdicō, iūdicāre, iūdicāvī, iūdicātus, judge, decide putō, putāre, putāvī, putātus, reckon, think spērō, spērāre, spērāvī, spērātus, hope

d. Verbs of perceiving:

audiō, audīre, audīvī, audītus, hear sentiō, sentīre, sēnsī, sēnsus, feel, perceive videō, vidēre, vīdī, vīsus, see intellegō, intellegere, intellēxī, intellēctus, understand, perceive

Most of these verbs you know. Learn the new ones, and use the list for reference.

EXERCISES

659. 1. Caesar per explōrātōrēs cognōverat hostēs inopiā frūmentī premī. 2. Rōmānī audivērunt Helvētiōs proximā aestāte ex finibus suīs excessūrōs esse. 3. Lēgātī cum pervēnissent, respondērunt frātrem rēgis exercituī praefutūrum esse. 4. Prīncipēs Gallōrum negābant sē oppida sua incendisse. 5. Rēx respondit pecūniam esse rēgīnae.[1] 6. Poētae exīstimābant potestātem deōrum esse maiōrem quam deārum. 7. Hīs rēbus[2] cognitīs, spērāvimus aliquem missūrum esse nāvigium quod nōs servāret.[3] 8. Cum urbī appropinquārēmus, intellēximus mediam partem altīs et lātīs mūrīs mūnītam esse. 9. Hāc ōrātiōne[2] habitā, sēnsimus animum finitimōrum esse nōbīs inimīcum.

1. rēgīnae, predicate genitive of possessor (§ 150). 2. Ablative absolute (§ 400). 3. Subjunctive in a relative clause of purpose (§ 589).

660. Using five of the verbs in § 658, write five Latin sentences, each one containing an indirect statement.

A STREET IN POMPEII

VOCABULARY REVIEW · THE IRREGULAR VERB FERŌ

661. Review the word lists in §§ 755, 756.

662. Irregular Verb ferō. Learn the inflection of ferō, bear (§ 841). Its principal parts are very irregular, but the different tenses are formed on the three stems as usual.

a. The verb ferō has many compounds. One of these is īnferō in the idiom bellum īnferō, I make war on, with the dative. Learn also the idiom graviter or molestē ferō, I am annoyed, followed by the accusative and infinitive.

EXERCISES

663. Derivation. Note the prefixes and give the meanings of the following compounds: ad′ferō, cōn′ferō, dē′ferō, in′ferō, trāns′ferō. Name ten English derivatives from these words.

664. I. 1. Māvis, nōn vultis, vīs, nōlumus. 2. Ut nōlit, nē vellēmus, nōlīte, māvultis. 3. It, īmus, ut eant, eunt. 4. Fer,[1] tulisse, ferent, tulerant. 5. Ut ferrent, lātus esse, nē ferant.

1. Dīc, dūc, fac, and fer are the four short imperatives. Cf. p. 100, footnote.

II. 1. Rōmānī molestē ferēbant illam cīvitātem sociīs bellum īnferre. 2. Explōrātōrēs nūntiāvērunt summum montem circumm ūnītum esse et firmō praesidiō tenērī. 3. Caesar respondit senātum graviter ferre magnam multitūdinem Germānōrum in optimīs partibus Galliae sedēre. 4. Nōs iūdicāmus vōs nōbīs bellum īnferre nōn oportēre. 5. Rēx dīxit memoriā patrum

[1] Motto of the state of Connecticut.

Helvētiōs proelium cum Rōmānis commisisse et eōs[1] magnā caede in fugam dedisse. 6. Cum impedīmenta rapta essent, barbarī impetum nostrōrum diūtius ferre nōn poterant.

1. eōs refers to the Romans and is the object of dedisse.

665. 1. We are annoyed that the Gauls are making war on our allies. 2. The king denied that his son had gone. 3. The captives hastened to go that they might observe[1] the battle. 4. When the towers had been moved[2] to the walls, all who bore arms were led out.

1. spectō, -āre. 2. agō, -ere, ēgī, āctus.

Virtūs omnibus rēbus anteit — Virtue surpasses all things[1]

VOCABULARY REVIEW · THE SUBJUNCTIVE IN INDIRECT QUESTIONS

666. Review the word lists in §§ 762, 763.

667. Indirect Question Defined. When we report a question instead of asking it directly, we have an indirect question.

Direct Question	Indirect Question
Who conquered the Gauls?	He asked who conquered the Gauls

An indirect question is a noun clause and is usually the object of a verb of asking, saying, knowing, or feeling.

668. Moods in Questions. In English, as the example shows, the indicative is used in both direct and indirect questions.

[1] From Plautus, a dramatic poet.

669. In Latin, verbs in direct questions are in the indicative; verbs in indirect questions are in the subjunctive.

Direct Question	Indirect Question
Quis Gallōs vīcit?	Rogāvit quis Gallōs vinceret
Who conquered the Gauls?	He asked who conquered the Gauls
Ubi est Rōma?	Rogat ubi sit Rōma
Where is Rome?	He asks where Rome is

a. Compare indirect questions and indirect statements. An indirect question is interrogative in form and has its verb in the subjunctive, as shown above. An indirect statement is introduced in English by the conjunction that, and its verb in Latin is in the infinitive: as, He says that Cæsar conquered the Gauls, dīcit Caesarem Gallōs vīcisse.

670. Indirect questions are introduced by the same interrogative words as direct questions. Whether is usually rendered by num.

671. Rule for Indirect Questions. In an indirect question the verb is in the subjunctive, and its tense is determined by the rule for the sequence of tenses (§ 595).

672. IDIOMS

VOCABULARY REVIEW · THE IRREGULAR VERB FĪŌ

675. Review the word lists in §§ 768, 769.

676. Irregular Verb fīō. Learn the inflection of fīō, be made, happen (§ 843). In the present system this verb serves as the passive of faciō. The rest of the passive of faciō is regular.

677. IDIOMS

Aliquem certiōrem faciō, I inform someone (literally, I make someone more certain), followed by an infinitive with subject accusative or by an indirect question.

Certior fīō, I am informed (literally, I am made more certain), followed by the same construction as above.

Helvētiīs in animō est, the Helvetii intend (literally, it is in mind to the Helvetii), followed by the complementary infinitive.

EXERCISES

678. 1. Tuā linguā intellegō tē esse Gallum, et certior factus sum tibi in animō esse ratiōnem nostram bellī hostibus nūntiāre. 2. Quā dē causā tē rapī iubēbō ut supplicium pūblicum dē tē sūmam. 3. 679. 1. Don't you know why I am unwilling to undertake this business? 2. He asked why they were terrified. 3. He perceived why the camp had been moved. 4. Someone informed the senate that the town could not be taken. 5. We think that you will receive this state under[1] your protection. 6. He had been informed that the army had been led forward. 7. Do you know what the Helvetii intend to do?

1. in with the accusative.

LESSON CV

Litterae sine mōribus vānae — Letters without morals are vain[1]

VOCABULARY REVIEW · PREDICATE ACCUSATIVE DATIVE OF PURPOSE

680. Review the word lists in §§ 774, 775.

681. Predicate Accusative. In English, verbs of making, choosing, calling, naming, and the like may take two objects referring to the same person or thing. The first of these is the direct object, and the second completes the sense of the predicate, and is called the predicate objective or the objective attribute.

The Romans made him consul
The senate called the king friend

682. Similarly, in Latin, faciō, make; dēligō, choose; vocō and appellō, call, and the like may take two accusatives: the first, the direct object; the second, referring to the same person or thing, known as the predicate accusative.

Rōmānī eum cōnsulem fēcērunt, the Romans made him consul Senātus rēgem amīcum appellāvit, the senate called the king friend

[1] Motto of the University of Pennsylvania.

683. When the verb is changed to the passive, both the accusatives become nominatives; the direct object becoming the subject, and the predicate accusative the predicate nominative.

Rēx amīcus ā senātū appellātus est, the king was called friend by the senate

a. Note that senātus, the subject of the active verb, becomes ā senātū, ablative of agent, when the verb is changed to the passive.

684. Rule for Predicate Accusative. Verbs of making, choosing, calling, and the like may take a predicate accusative along with the direct object. With the passive voice the two accusatives become nominatives.

685. Dative of Purpose. Observe the following sentence:

Explōrātōrēs locum castrīs dēlēgērunt, the scouts chose a place for a camp

Note that the dative castrīs expresses the purpose for which the place was intended. Such a dative is called the dative of purpose or end for which. It is often followed by a second dative denoting the person or thing affected: as,

Hoc erat magnō impedīmentō Gallīs, this was (for) a great hindrance to the Gauls

686. Rule for Dative of Purpose. The dative is used to denote the purpose or end for which, often with another dative denoting the person or thing affected.

687. IDIOMS

iniūriās alicui īnferre, to inflict injuries upon someone nihil posse, to have no power praesidiō cīvitātī esse, to be a defense to the state

688. 1. Omnibus temporibus exercitus erat firmissimō praesidiō cīvitātī. 2. Lēgātus nōs certiōrēs fēcit tē cōnsulem appellātum esse. 3. Rogāvī cūr senātus mihi iniūriās intulisset. 4. Rēx voluit vōbīs auxiliō esse, sed nihil poterat. 5. Certior factus eram tibi in animō esse domum sine mē contendere. 6. Magnō impedimentō hostibus erit sī hunc locum castrīs dēligēmus. 7. Scīsne cūr Rōmānī urbem Rōmam appellāverint?

EXERCISE

689. 1. Men like you are a great defense to any commonwealth. 2. The consul called the woman's sister queen of the island. 3. The new city was called Rome by Romulus. 4. It will be a great hindrance[1] to your safety if the citizens make you king. 5. The chiefs dared to inflict injuries upon the king because he had no power. 6. He asked where the horseman had left his spurs.

1. Latin, for a great hindrance.

LESSON CVI

Crēscit eundō — She grows as she goes[1]

VOCABULARY REVIEW · THE GERUND AND GERUNDIVE

690. Review the word lists in §§ 778, 779.

691. Gerund. A verbal noun is the name of an action: as, Talking is useless.*

692. English has many verbal nouns ending in -ing. When these are in the nominative case, they are expressed in Latin by the infinitive: as,

Seeing is believing, vidēre est crēdere

693. When the English verbal noun is not a nominative, it is expressed in Latin by a verbal noun called a gerund.

[1] Motto of the state of New Mexico. Literally, She grows by going.

694. The Latin gerund is used only in the genitive, dative, accusative, and ablative singular, and is formed by adding -ndī, -ndō, -ndum, -ndō to the present stem: as,

GEN.	vocandī, of calling
DAT.	vocandō, for calling
ACC.	vocandum, calling
ABL.	vocandō, by calling

Learn the gerunds of the other model verbs, moneō, regō, capiō, audiō (§§ 833–836). Deponent verbs have the gerund of the active voice.

695. Uses of Gerund. The gerund has the construction of a noun; but, being verbal in character, it may have an object: as,

gerendō bellum, by waging war

Here gerendō is ablative of means and bellum is its direct object.

696. Gerund denoting Purpose. The accusative of the gerund with ad, or the genitive of the gerund followed by causā (for the sake of), is often used to express purpose.

Hominēs ad videndum vēnērunt, the men came for the purpose of seeing, to see (literally, for seeing)

Hominēs videndī causā vēnērunt, the men came for the sake of seeing, to see

697. Gerundive. The future passive participle (§ 565) is called the gerundive when it takes the place of the gerund. The gerund, being a noun, may be used either alone or with an object; but the gerundive, being an adjective, must agree with a noun. Observe the following sentences:

1. Urbem videndī causā vēnērunt, they came to see the town
2. Urbis videndae causā vēnērunt, they came to see the town (literally, they came for the sake of the town to be seen)

In sentence 1, we have the gerund videndī and its direct object urbem. In 2, we have the gerundive videndae in agreement with urbis.

Note that the sentences are translated alike. The gerund with a direct object must not be used except in the genitive or in the ablative without a preposition. Even then the gerundive construction is more common.

SUMMARY OF IMPORTANT POINTS

1. The gerund is a noun. The gerundive is an adjective.

2. The gerund may stand alone or with an object.

3. The gerundive construction is more frequently used than the gerund with an object.

4. The gerund with an object may be used only in the genitive or in the ablative without a preposition.

5. The accusative of the gerund or gerundive after ad, or the genitive preceding causā, may be used to denote purpose.

EXERCISES

698. 1. Omnēs mulierēs ōrātiōnem audiendī [1] causā mānsērunt. 2. Omnēs mulierēs ad ōrātiōnem audiendam [1] mānsērunt. 3. Fuga erat tam celeris ut nūllum spatium ad novās cōpiās cōgendās darētur. 4. Multīs vulnerātīs, reliquī adventum ducis exspectāvērunt, minimē diūtius resistendī causā sed pācis petendae causā. 5. Spatium neque arma capiendī neque auxilī petendī datum est. 6. Haec cīvitās, auctōritāte et grātiā rēgis adducta, cōpiās pedestrēs ad iter nostrum prohibendum mīserat. 7. Maximae rēs nōn exspectandō sed agendō cōnficiuntur.

1. Which of these expressions is gerund and which gerundive?

699. 1. You will make your death more certain by remaining among the Gauls. 2. He made the journey much [1] shorter by building [2] a bridge. 3. They sent ambassadors to seek [3] peace. 4. The cavalry battle was very severe, since [4] the place was unfavorable for fighting. 5. Cæsar learned, by inquiring, what [5] the nature of the island was.

1. Latin, by much, ablative of measure of difference, § 452. 2 Use both the gerund and the gerundive construction. 3. Use the genitive with causā. 4. cum causal, § 642. 5. What kind of question? See § 671.

THE GAULS IN SIGHT OF ROME

OPTIONAL LESSONS

OPTIONAL LESSON A

Ēmollit mōrēs nec sinit esse ferōs — She refines character and does not allow it to be untrained [1]

THE SUBJUNCTIVE OF CHARACTERISTIC OR DESCRIPTION

721. A relative clause with its verb in the indicative states a fact concerning the antecedent: as,

Caesar erat imperātor quī Gallōs superāvit, Cæsar was the general who overcame the Gauls

722. A relative clause with its verb in the subjunctive is often used to describe an antecedent. Such a clause is called a relative clause of characteristic or description: as,

Quondam erat imperātor quī Gallōs superāret, once there was a general who overcame the Gauls

a. A relative clause is descriptive when the antecedent is indefinite or general and the relative may be translated by the words of such a character that, as in the following expressions:

sunt quī sciant, there are some who know (i. e. of such a character that they know) quis est quī sciat, who is there who knows?
nēmō est quī sciat, there is no one who knows ūnus est quī sciat, he is the only one who knows

723. Rule for Subjunctive of Characteristic. A relative clause with the subjunctive may be used to describe an antecedent. This is called the subjunctive of characteristic or description.

EXERCISES

724. 1. Erant duo itinera quibus Helvētiī domō discēdere possent. 2. Erat nūllum oppidum quod sē armīs dēfendere vellet. 3. Quis est quī viam meliōrem nōbīs ostendere possit? 4. Ille est ūnus quī sciat nātūram illīus locī. 5. Cum Rōmānī oppidum rē frūmentāriā interclūserint, nihil habēmus quō diūtius sustinēre possīmus. 6. Aliī Gallōrum pācis petendae cupidī erant. 7. Erant aliī quī novīs rēbus studērent. 8. Erant quī molestē ferrent novās legiōnēs in nostrīs fīnibus cōnscrībī. 9. Nēmō est quī neget rem pūblicam cōnservārī dēbēre. 10. Dentātus cum imperium summum tenēret, tamen rūrī vīvere mālēbat. 11. Quis est quī nōn audīverit Rōmulum urbem suam Rōmam appellāvisse?

725. 1. Once there was a consul who inflicted the severest punishment on his own sons. 2. Who is there that does not remember that man's name? 3. There were some who said that the consul's sons made war upon their country. 4. It is the business[1] of the consul to look out for the safety[2] of the commonwealth. 5. He is the only one who has sufficient authority.[3]

1. Omit. 2. Not dative. 3. Latin, sufficient of authority, partitive genitive.

ROMAN CAESTUS, OR BOXING GLOVE

This consisted of thongs of leather bound around the hand and forearm. It was often loaded with lead and was a terrible weapon

OPTIONAL LESSON B

Dē gustibus nōn est disputandum — There is no disputing about tastes[1]

THE PERIPHRASTIC CONJUGATIONS AND THE DATIVE OF AGENT

726. The future active participle in -ūrus is often combined with the forms of sum to denote future or intended action: as, vocātūrus sum, I am about to call, I intend to call audītūrus eram, I was about to hear, I intended to hear

This is known as the active periphrastic conjugation.

727. The future passive participle (gerundive) in -ndus is similarly combined with the forms of sum to denote obligation or necessity in the passive voice: as, vocandus sum, I ought to be called, I must be called audiendus sum, I ought to be heard, I must be heard

This is known as the passive periphrastic conjugation.

728. The personal agent is regularly expressed by the ablative with ā or ab (§ 261): as, castra ā mīlitibus mūnīta sunt, the camp was fortified by the soldiers; but with a passive periphrastic form the person by whom something ought to be done or must be done is expressed by the dative. This is called the dative of agent: as,

Castra mīlitibus mūnienda sunt, the camp must be fortified by the soldiers

729. Rule for Dative of Agent. With the passive periphrastic conjugation agency is expressed by the dative.

[1] Or Everyone to his own taste. Both of these translations are free. Literally, It ought not to be disputed about tastes, disputandum est being an impersonal passive periphrastic form.

EXERCISES

Eō diē erant quī putārent Rōmānōs nōn victūrōs esse. 8. Quis est quī crēdat illud proelium nōn faciendum fuisse? 9. Mox audītūrī sumus dē aliis bellīs quae ā Rōmānīs gesta sunt. 10. Longa itinera magnō impedīmentō Rōmānīs futūra sunt.

731. 1. Many things had to be done by Theseus to save[1] the boys and girls of Greece. 2. That famous man intended to kill the Minotaur. 3. First a long journey to Crete had to be made by him. 4. Then help had to be given by someone. 5. When he had arrived at[2] Crete, he told the king's daughter what[3] he intended to do. 6. Without much difficulty he persuaded her to give[4] him[5] aid.

1. Not infinitive (§ 588). 2. ad. 3. An indirect question (§ 671). 4. Not infinitive (§ 602). 5. sibi.

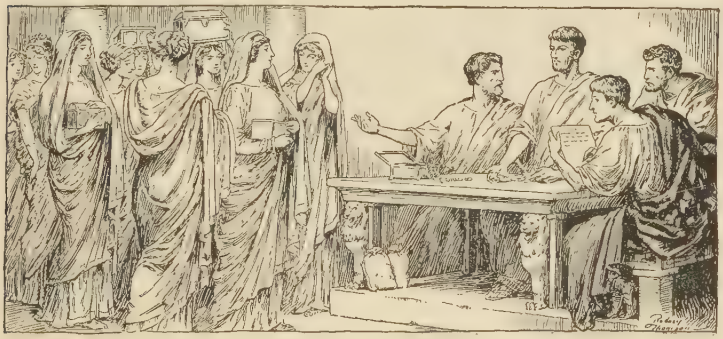
THE ROMANS STORM THE ENEMY'S STRONGHOLD

ORIGINAL STORIES

Study each of the following pictures. Where is the scene laid? What objects do you see? What characters are present? What are they doing? Attention to these details will give you the material for writing a short Latin story or, at least, for composing some disconnected sentences. The vocabulary below each picture will help you.



I. In times ancient as well as modern, women by their patriotic service have saved the state when men were ready to despair.

argentum, -ī, n., silver aurum, -ī, n., gold computō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus, compute dēsum, -esse, -fuī, -futūrus, be lacking, w. dat.
dōnum, -ī, n., gift mātrōna, -ae, f., matron, lady mēnsa, -ae, f., table ōrnāmentum, -ī, n., jewel patria, -ae, f., country, native land pecūnia, -ae, f., money perīculum, -ī, n., danger scrība, -ae, m., clerk

Tiberius, Tibe´rī, m., Tiberius, the older son of Cornelia vīcīna, -ae, f., neighbor visitō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus, call on, go to see

III. This picture is clearly of a religious character. The Romans were very faithful in their worship. The household gods comprised the Lares (the spirits of the ancestors), the Pena'tes (the gods guarding the family stores), and the Genius (the guardian spirit of the master of the house). The family shrine was often a niche, containing images of the gods, with an altar before it. In the picture the niche is closed by a metal screen. The serpents painted on the wall are a symbol of the protecting divinities. Incense was burned to the gods; and wine, oil, and food were offered. Family worship was usually conducted by the father. He is not present in this case. Perhaps he is fighting with the Gauls, and is in danger of his life.

absum, abesse, āfuī, āfutūrus, be away, be absent adōrō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus, worship ampulla, -ae, f., bottle

vāstō, -āre, -āvi, -ātus, lay waste, destroy vāstus, -a, -um, huge, immense vulnerō, -āre, -āvī, -ātus, wound

V. Among the most beautiful surviving works of ancient art are the Greek vases. Besides their grace of form, they are adorned with artistic designs and pictures drawn from legends of gods and heroes. Often, too, there are scenes from the classic drama. The colors used are chiefly black, red, and white. How absorbed the young Greek is in his painting! Does the girl seem interested? What do you think the artist will do with the vase after he has finished it?

admīror, -ārī, -ātus sum, admire adulēscēns, -entis, m., youth albus, -a, -um, white artificium, artifi´cī, n., work of art

vās, vāsis, n., pl. vāsa, -ōrum, vase

VI. Many stories are told about Dædalus (ded'a-lus), the Athenian, famed for his skill as an inventor, artist, and builder. Once, accompanied by his son Icarus (ik'a-rus), he visited the island of Crete and by his marvelous works won the king's favor. Later the king became angry with him and refused to let him leave the island. All the ships were seized and all the ports guarded. Longing for home, Dædalus and his son seemed without means of escape. But Dædalus had genius and a courage equal to any deed of daring. What did he do?

VII. The Romans were devoted to their children and trained them very carefully. They taught them to be obedient and respectful, to have reverence for all things sacred, to be truthful and honorable, and to be courageous and self-reliant. Every Roman boy was destined to be a soldier, and so from earliest childhood he learned to despise danger and to regard cowardice as worse than death.

IX. Roman towns had many shops. These resembled our stalls or booths. They were open in front with the exception of a low wall forming the counter, and were closed at night by wooden shutters. The wares stood or hung about the shop or were placed on shelves within easy reach of the shopkeeper as he stood behind the counter. This is a provision shop. There are eatables of different kinds, and jars of wine. Do you see the sign? What does it advertise? Give Latin names to the characters, and tell what they are doing or make up a story about them. Do not forget the donkey.

A BRITISH CHIEF URGES RESISTANCE TO THE ROMAN INVASION

(AFTER LESSON XXIII)

Est fāma bellī, Britannī, novī et magnī. Iam Rōmānī agrōs miserōrum Gallōrum tenent. Iam ōrās Galliae proximās nostrae īnsulae tenent. Nunc Britannia est in perīculō. Iam Rōmānī cōpiās suās convocant. Mox ad īnsulam nostram nāvigābunt et oppida nostra occupabunt. Sed sumus Britannī; Britannī nihil (nothing) timent. Numquam Rōmānīs oppida nostra, fīliās nostrās, fīliōs nostrōs dabimus. Ad arma! Ad arma! Pugnābimus, pugnābimus. Numquam līberī virī erunt servī. Superābimus Rōmānōs et magna erunt praemia nostra.

A FATHER'S LETTER TO HIS SON

(AFTER LESSON XLIII)

Quam grāta mihi (to me), Mārce, erat epistula magistrī tuī! Nam magister diligentiam tuam laudat (praise) et dīcit: "Fīlius tuus est bonus et industrius. Numquam officium suum neglegit (neglect) et semper ēgregium exemplum tardīs dat." Māter ad tē (you) librum pulchrum, praemium dīligentiae tuae, mox mittet. Soror (sister) tua hodiē (today) sex annōs habet. Saepe rogat (ask): "Ubi est frāter Mārcus? Diū āfuit. Quandō (when) revertet (return)?" Valē.

FABLE — THE LION'S SHARE

(AFTER LESSON LXI)

Animālia leō, equus, capra (goat), ovis (sheep), societātem faciunt. Multam praedam capiunt et in ūnum locum comportant. Tum in quattuor partēs praedam dīvidunt. Praedā dīvīsā, leō dixit: "Prīma pars mea est, nam leō est rēx animālium. Et mea est secunda pars meīs labōribus. Tertiam partem vindicō (claim), nam magnam famem habeō. Dēnique quārtam partem rapiam et sī quis (anyone) prohibēbit, eum interficiam."

ARĪ'ON'S GOOD FORTUNE

(AFTER LESSON LXXX)

ARĪ'ON SAVED BY A DOLPHIN

Arī'on, the noted singer, after an enthusiastic reception in foreign lands, embarks for home laden with treasures

Ōlim Arīōn,[1] vātēs[2] nōtissimus, domō longissimē aberat ac patriam petēbat. Eī rēgēs multārum terrārum praemia amplissima dederant. Arīōn omnēs rēs quās acceperat in nāve posuerat et domum sēcum portābat. Iam nāvis in mediō marī erat, neque ūlla terra vidērī poterat.

Tum nautae, hominēs pessimī, barbarum cōnsilium cēpērunt atque inter sē[1] dixērunt: "Certē hic vir ex manibus nostrīs numquam dīmittētur.[2] Eum interficiēmus et omnia quae habet nostra erunt." Deinde vātem corripiunt[3] et in mare dēiciunt.

He is miraculously saved by a huge dolphin

Arīōn tōtam spem salūtis dēposuerat et mortem certam exspec- 10
tāvit. Sed deī ipsī vītam eius cōnservāvērunt. Nam subitō[4] Arīōn in tergō[5] magnī delphīnī[6] sedēre vīsus est, quī ad ōram proximam eum celeriter vexit.[7]

CERES AND PROSERPINA

(AFTER LESSON LXXXVIII)

This is one of the most beautiful of the Greek myths. Proser'pina's abduction signifies the disappearance of vegetation in the autumn, when the vital forces of nature are drawn deep into the earth. Thus Pluto steals Proserpina. When vegetation reappears in the spring, Proserpina is restored to her mother. Read Tennyson's "Deme'ter and Perseph'one."

Pluto, king of the lower world, falls in love with Proserpina and carries her down to his gloomy realm

Vērō, Venus,[8] tua potestās est maxima. Nam tū docuistī etiam Plūtōnem,[9] deum īnferōrum,[10] amāre. Ōlim deus per īnsulam Siciliam[11] currum[12] agēbat. Ibi Prōserpinam,[13] fīliam pulcherrimam Cereris,[14] deae agricultūrae,[15] vīdit et adamāvit.[16] Eam statim rapuit et equōs hortātus ē cōnspectū[17] fūgit. 5

Ceres, after a long search, discovers where her daughter is. Then she goes to Jupiter and demands that her daughter be returned

Tum vērō Cerēs, gravī dolōre ac timōre commōta, fīliam diem noctemque sine fīne petēbat. Interim Plūtō Prōserpinam in mātrimōnium dūxerat. Iam dea erat rēgīna īnferōrum.[1] Dēnique Cerēs omnia cognōverat, et inīquō animō apud Iovem[2] causam[3] ita dīxit: "Fīliam meam, quam per omnēs terrās mariaque petēbam, invēnī. Eam Plūtō rapuit. Etiam nunc ea in manū eius est. Plūtō mihi magnam iniūriam fēcit. Iubē eum fīliam meam reddere. Sūme dē eō gravissimum supplicium."

Jupiter compromises the matter so that Proserpina spends six months with her mother and six months with her husband

Iuppiter respondit: "Ita, Cerēs, dīcere nōn dēbēs. Hoc factum meō iūdiciō nōn est iniūria, sed certus (true) amor.[4] Sed tibi petentī hanc veniam[5] dabō. Sex mēnsēs cuiusque annī Prōserpina in rēgnō Plūtōnis manēbit atque sex mēnsēs tēcum erit." Itaque hieme Prōserpina est apud īnferōs,[1] et aestāte, īnferīs relictīs, cum mātre terram incolit.

CINCINNATUS CALLED FROM THE PLOW

(AFTER LESSON CV)

The early Romans were devoted to agriculture

Omnibus temporibus vīta rūstica[6] summō auxiliō virtūtī ac fīrmissimō praesidiō cīvitātī fuit.[7] Hanc rem etiam Rōmānī crēdēbant, et multī eōrum villās habēbant et agrōs manibus suīs colēbant.[8]

Cincinnatus was an example of this fine old type

Apud hōs erat Cincinnātus, vir bellō ēgregius et agricola minimē tardus. Ōlim cum quīdam hostēs urbī appropinquārent et iam multī timidī salūtem patriae dēspērāre inciperent, mentēs omnium ad Cincinnātum versae[9] sunt. Ille autem nōn in urbe sed rūrī erat.

CINCINNATUS CALLED FROM THE PLOW

On one occasion the senate, having appointed Cincinnatus dictator, sent lictors to escort him from his farm to the city

Tum senātus Cincinnatum dictātōrem fēcit et mīsit līctōrēs[1] quī eum in urbem dēdūcerent. Līctōrēs rūs contendērunt et ad vīllam parvam Cincinnātī celeriter pervēnērunt. Ille tunicātus[2] agrum arābat[3] et, cum līctōrēs vidēret, rogāvit quid vellent. Līctōrēs respondērunt senātum eum dictātōrem fēcisse ut patriam ex summō perīculō līberāret, et sē vēnisse ut eum in urbem dēdūcerent.

Cincinnatus, though reluctant to leave his work, went with them, but as soon as possible returned to finish his plowing

Agrum relinquere Cincinnātō nōn grātum erat, tamen senātuī pārēre oportēbat. Itaque pulvere[4] ac sūdōre abstersō, optimus vir induit[5] togam quam līctōrēs ferēbant et Rōmam prōcessit. Bellō paucīs diēbus cōnfectō, Cincinnātus domum properāvit ut arāret.

THE LORD'S PRAYER

Pater noster, quī es in caelīs, sānctificētur nōmen tuum. Adveniat rēgnum tuum; fiat voluntās tua, ut in caelō, ita etiam in terrā. Pānem nostrum cotidiānum dā nōbīs hodiē. Et remitte nōbīs dēbita nostra, sīcut et nōs remittimus dēbitōribus nostrīs. Et nē nōs indūcās in tentātiōnem, sed līberā nos ab illō improbō. Quia tuum est rēgnum, et potentia, et glōria, in saecula. Āmēn. — Matt. 6. 9–13

THE GOLDEN RULE

Omnia ergō quaecumque vultis ut faciant vōbīs hominēs, et vōs facite illīs. Haec est enim lēx et prophētae. — Matt. 7. 12

THE STRAIT GATE

Intrāte per angustam portam: quia lāta porta, et spatiōsa via est quae dūcit ad perditiōnem, et multī sunt quī intrant per eam. — Matt. 7. 13

1. The lictors were the official attendants of a magistrate and carried a bundle of rods (fascēs), sometimes with an ax in the middle standing for the power of the state to punish. Note the fasces on the American dime. 2. tunicātus, -a, -um, dressed in his tunic. Compare in his shirtsleeves or in his overalls. 3. arō, -āre, plow. 4. pulvere . . . abstersō, wiping off the dust and sweat. 5. induō, -ere, put on.

A LATIN PLAY

PERSEUS AND ANDROMEDA

This may be used at any time after Lesson LXXX is finished

Characters

Cepheus, king of Ethiopia
Cassiopeia, queen of Ethiopia
Andromeda, daughter of Cepheus and Cassiopeia
Perseus, the Greek hero
Sacerdos, priestess of the oracle
Three citizens of Ethiopia
Friends of the royal family and attendants

Scene I

A room in the palace. Cepheus and Cassiopeia are sitting at a table. An Attendant stands at the right near the stage entrance Cepheus. Cūr, Cassiopeia mea, faciem tuam sine fīne laudās? Audācia tua mē terret. Nōnne deōrum invidiam verēris?

Cassiopeia. Nōn magis dīcō quam vērum est. Spectā mē. Nōnne sum pulchrior quam ūlla dea? Nē nymphae maris quidem sunt pulchriōrēs.

Cepheus (raising his hand in solemn protest). Tacē, mulier, tacē! Etiam nunc deī supplicium fortasse parant.

Cassiopeia. Minimē tacēbō. Supplicia deōrum nōn timeō. Nōn crēdō . . . (She is interrupted by a loud rapping on the door.)

Attendant. Aliquis pulsat, rēgīna.

Cassiopeia. Aperī ōstium.

Attendant (after opening the door). Trēs cīvēs rēgī dīcere cupiunt.

Cepheus. Iubē eōs intrāre.

Enter three men in great excitement

Citizens (all speaking at once). Perīmus, rēx! Quid faciēmus? Quid faciēmus?

Cepheus. Quid est, cīvēs? Quis dolor vōs permovet?

First Citizen. Ingēns mōnstrum ex marī vēnit atque agrōs meōs vāstāvit.

Second Citizen. Idem mōnstrum omne pecus meum dēvorāvit.

Third Citizen. Heu mē miserum! Saevum mōnstrum coniugem līberōsque meōs interfēcit.

Cassiopeia (rising and raising both arms to heaven). Quid dīcitis? Quid audiō? Mea est culpa. Ō verba stultissima! Ō mala superbia!

Cepheus. Ūna salūs relicta est. Ad ōrāculum properābō et auxilium petam.

Scene II

At the seat of the oracle. A veiled Priestess is seated on a high stool Attendant. Cēpheus, rēx Aethiopiae, sacerdōs, aditum petit.

Sacerdos. Dūc eum ante mē. Eum audiam. (The attendant leads in Cepheus, who kneels before the priestess.) Cūr, rēx, ad mē vēnistī?

Cepheus. Tē cōnsulere, sacerdōs, cupiō. Saevum mōnstrum agrōs nostrōs vāstat et populum meum perterret. Quis hoc mōnstrum mīsit? Cūr missum est?

Sacerdos. Neptūnus, deus maris, mōnstrum mīsit. Deus est inimīcus propter superbiam rēgīnae tuae. Illa ausa est sē ante nymphās ipsas pōnere.

Cepheus. Obsecrō, sacerdōs, quō modō mōnstrum ex patriā agere possum?

Sacerdos. Expiāre culpam rēgīnae oportet. Dā Andromedam, fīliam tuam, mōnstrō et patria tua cōnservābitur. Discēde et pārē.

Cepheus rises and with bowed head leaves the stage

Scene III

Room in the palace, as in Scene I. Cassiopeia and Andromeda are seated at a table

Andromeda. Quae mora patrem tenet?

Cassiopeia. Iam diū eum exspectō. In diēs perīcula nostra crēscunt. Pectus meum est plēnum sollicitūdinis et timōris. (Cepheus enters with slow step and sad countenance. The queen and Andromeda rise to greet him.) Salvē, coniūnx. Vultus tuus mē terret. Quid ōrāculum dīxit?

CEPHEUS. Gravissima est fortūna nostra. Neptūnus, inimīcus propter superbiam tuam, hoc supplicium dē populō nostrō sūmit. Sī patriam cōnservāre cupimus, Andromedam mōnstrō dare oportet.

CASSIOPEIA. Quid! Andromedam dare! (Clasps ANDROMEDA in her arms.) Numquam, numquam hoc faciam. (Buries her face on ANDROMEDA'S shoulder and weeps.)

ANDROMEDA. Audī, māter cārissima, melius est mē perīre quam omnēs dare poenās. Parāta sum, pater, pārēre ōraculō.

SCENE IV

CASSIOPEIA. Perīī; hunc dolōrem tolerare nōn possum. Cūr illa stultissima verba dixī? Ego, nōn Andromeda, mōnstrō darī dēbeō.

CEPHEUS. Vērum dīcis, coniūnx; sed verba ōrāculī scīs. (A distant roaring is heard.) Audīsne illum sonitum terribilem? Sine dubiō mōnstrum appropinquat.

FIRST FRIEND. Heu! Heu! Iam mors imminet.

SECOND FRIEND. Etiam Andromeda sonitum audit. Ecce, quam pallidus est vultus eius!

PERSEUS, wearing helmet and breastplate and grasping a sword, makes a sudden entrance. All look at him in amazement

CEPHEUS. Quis es, hospes? Quō modō in fīnēs nostrōs pervēnistī?

PERSEUS. Perseus sum, fīlius Iovis. Alīs per aurās iter faciō. Unde istae lacrimae? Cūr illa virgō vincula gerit?

CEPHEUS. Illa virgō est fīlia mea. Imperiō ōrāculī dabitur mōnstrō saevō quod Neptūnus ex marī cotīdiē ēmittit. Mōnstrum hoc modō pācātum nōbīs parcet. Prō patriā Andromeda vītam suam dat.

PERSEUS. Per deōs, rēx, ego ipse hoc mōnstrum interficiam sī mihi fīliam tuam in mātrimōnium dabis.

[1] A large box, four or five feet high, covered with gray cloth, will serve as a rock.

CEPHEUS (with great eagerness). Libenter, hospes, hanc condiciōnem accipiō. Sed brevissimum est tempus. Etiam nunc mōnstrum adest. (A loud roaring is heard.)

PERSEUS (calling loudly). Pelle timōrem ex animō tuō, Andromeda. Tē servābō. (Rushes from the stage.)

THIRD FRIEND. Magna spēs mē iam tenet.

FOURTH FRIEND (pointing to the sky). Ecce, hospes per aurās altē volat.

FIFTH FRIEND. Iam dēscendit et mōnstrum petit.

All stand gazing toward the scene of combat. The sound of blows is heard mingled with roars of rage and pain. Then PERSEUS reënters and all greet him with shouts of "Iō triumphe." He goes to ANDROMEDA, frees her from her bonds, and, taking her by the hand, leads her to her father

PERSEUS. Ecce, rēx, fīlia tua. Meā virtūte eam servāvī. Praemium meum postulō.

CEPHEUS. Tua est Andromeda, hospes. Tū es servātor domūs meae.

Curtain falls while all shout "Fēlīciter"

PERSEUS ANDROMEDAM SERVAT

BACULUS THE CENTURION

(Use after completing the Lessons)

Publius Sextius Baculus, a centurion, served in Cæsar's army and won his general's highest praise for his courage and fidelity. The incidents here related are partly based on Cæsar's narrative[1] and are partly fiction. They make no claim to historic accuracy.

Baculus on the march

"Venī, māter, celeriter venī! Multitūdō mīlitum appropinquat. Iam prīmum agmen vidēre possum." Ita magnā vōce clamāvit iuvenis quī ante casam stābat et intentīs oculīs mīlitēs prōcēdentēs spectābat. Verbīs auditīs, māter ex casā properāvit ac prope fīlium cōnstitit.

Iuvenis erat Mārcus Caecilius Metellus,[2] fīlius imperātōris nōtissimī quī plūribus ante annīs[3] vītam prō rē pūblicā dederat. Iam Mārcus et Līvia māter in villā patris habitābant. Illa villa posita erat in viā Flāminiā quae ad Galliam dūcit.

Iam cōpiae multō propius vēnerant. Prīmum equitēs procēdēbant, tum peditēs, multa mīlia hominum, sequēbantur; dēnique magnus numerus equōrum et carrōrum, quī impedīmenta ferēbant, agmen claudēbat. Apud centuriōnēs erat quīdam corpore magnō, humerīs lātīs, speciē ēgregiā, quī sē inūsitatā auctōritāte gerēbat. Eum[4] simul atque Līvia cōnspēxit, vehementer permōta clamāvit, "Obsecrō, quem videō? Ecce, mī fīlī, Baculus centuriō, amīcus patrī tuō amīcissimus, quem iam post multōs annōs videō. Quam gaudeō! Sine dubiō in Galliam ad castra Caesaris cōpiās dūcit." "Crēdō, māter cārissima," inquit[5] Mārcus, "deōs

A Roman regularly had three names: the first, his given name; the second the name of his clan (gēns); and the third the name of his family. 3. See § 452. 4. As soon as Livia perceived him. Eum is placed first as the connecting word. See § 198. a. N. 5. inquit Mārcus, said Marcus. The verb inquit is used with a direct quotation and is followed by its subject.

Baculum ad nōs mīsisse. Scīs mē[1] iam diū cupere nōmen dare et vestīgia patris sequī. Quis melius quam Baculus prīma[2] castrōrum rudīmenta docēre potest?" "Bene dīcis," inquit Līvia. "Castra Baculī nōn longē aberunt. Adī ad eum et dā eī epistulam quam statim scrībam."

Marcus goes to the Roman camp and is kindly received by Baculus

Pluribus[3] post hōrīs Mārcus ad castra Rōmāna pervēnit. Prō portīs castrōrum armātī stābant. Ex hīs ūnus Mārcum rogāvit quid vellet[4] et quem peteret.[4] Tum Mārcus, cum respondisset[5] sē Baculum centuriōnem petere, ad praetōrium[6] deductus est.

Baculus, vir reī[7] mīlitāris perītissimus, propter ēgregiam virtūtem ā Caesare saepe laudātus erat et prīmus pīlus creātus erat. Hōc tempore, imperātōre et reliquīs ducibus superiōribus absentibus, tōtī legiōnī[8] praeerat. Is, cum Mārcum nōn nōvisset,[9] tamen eum benignē accēpit. Eī tum Mārcus dedit epistulam mātris. Baculus, epistulā acceptā et apertā, haec verba lēgit.

Livia's letter to Baculus

Līvia Baculō salūtem[10] dīcit. Sī[11] valēs, bene est; ego valeō. Haec epistula sine dubiō tibi[12] admīrātiōnem movēbit; nam post mortem coniugis meī ad tē non scrīpsī. Sed sciō tē memoriam amīcitiae nostrae adhūc tenēre. Iuvenis quī ad tē hanc epistulam adfert est fīlius meus. Is tibi omnēs fortūnās nostrās nārrābit. Pectus eius studiō reī mīlitāris flagrat. Iam aetātem mīlitārem habet. Tibi eum commendō. Nōmen[13] dare vult. Valē.

Baculus makes Marcus his aide-de-camp

"Hercle," inquit Baculus, "esne tū fīlius Mārcī Metellī? Certē fuit nēmō nobilior aut generōsior umquam. Amantissimē tē accipiō.

Baculus resumes the march to Gaul

Proximō diē sonitus tubae Mārcum ex somnō prīmā lūce suscitāvit. Baculus iam surrēxerat et iusserat castra sine morā movērī. Celeriter cōpiae profectae sunt, nec tōtō diē iter intermissum est. Sub occāsum sōlis mīlitēs dēfessī castra posuērunt. Ita quattuor diēs magnīs itineribus contendērunt. Quīntō diē intrā fīnēs Gallōrum ingressī sunt.

Gaul and its people[3]

Gallia est omnis dīvīsa in partēs trēs; quārum ūnam partem incolunt Belgae, aliam Aquītānī, tertiam eī quī ipsōrum linguā Celtae appellantur. Hī omnēs linguā,[4] īnstitūtīs, lēgibus inter se differunt. Hōrum omnium fortissimī sunt Belgae, quod proximī sunt Germānīs quī trāns Rhēnum incolunt, quibuscum continenter bellum gerunt.[5] Quā[6] dē causā Helvētii quoque reliquōs Gallōs virtūte praecēdunt, quod fere cotīdiānīs proeliīs cum Germānīs contendunt.

The Helvetian migration

Hōc ipsō tempore Helvētiī, hominēs vagandī[7] et bellandī[7] cupidī, dē fīnibus suīs cum omnibus cōpiīs exīre volēbant ut lātiōrēs agrōs peterent. Molestē ferēbant sē nātūrā locī undique continērī. Erant omnīnō itinera duo quibus domō exīre possent,[8] ūnum angustum et difficile per fīnēs Sēquanōrum, alterum multō facilius per Prōvinciam Rōmānam. Hōc itinere ēgredī cōnstituērunt.

Cæsar resolves to stop them

Hīs rēbus audītīs, Caesar, prōcōnsul Galliae, Genāvam, oppidum Helvētiīs proximum, contendit ut eōs prohibēret. Simul Baculō imperāvit ut cōpiās cōgeret et quam[1] celerrimē in Galliam iter faceret. Quā dē causā, ut dictum est, Baculus cursū incitātō prōcesserat. Iam celerius[2] omnī opīniōne castrīs Caesaris appropinquābat. Interim Helvētiī convēnerant ad rīpam Rhodanī, quod flūmen inter prōvinciam et fīnēs Helvētiōrum fluit. Nē Helvētiī Rhodanum trānsīrent, Caesar rīpam mūrō fossāque mūnīvit et praesidia disposuit. Tum exspectāvit[3] sī sē invītō trānsīre cōnārentur.

The Helvetii try to cross the Rhine. Baculus brings needed help

Brevī tempore postquam Caesar hās mūnītiōnēs perfēcit, Helvētiī perrumpere cōnatī sunt. Prīmum impetum Caesar facile sustinuit, sed Helvētiī nōn numquam interdiū, saepius noctū, cōnātū[4] nōn dēstitērunt. Rōmānī, cum[5] numerō hominum multō īnferiōrēs essent, dēfessī proeliīs vigiliīsque paene cōnfectī sunt. In hōc discrīmine rērum Baculus cum cōpiīs suīs ad castra pervēnit et maximō gaudiō acceptus est. Quem[6] cum imperātor vidēret, "Peropportūnē," inquit, "Bacule, ades. Sine tuō subsidiō diūtius sustinēre vix poterāmus. Quis tandem est iuvenis qui propter[7] tē adstat?" "Hic iuvenis," inquit Baculus, "est Marcus Mārcī filius Metellus. Ego et pater eius ā puerīs amīcī erāmus. Illum mors abstulit, sed relīquit fīlium quem in rē mīlitārī exerceō." Caesar manum Mārcō porrigēns, "Salvē," inquit, "Mārce. Dē rēbus gestīs patris tuī, virī clārissimī, saepe audīvī. Laetus tē accipiō. Posteā noster eris."

1. quam celerrimē, as quickly as possible. 2. celerius omnī opīniōne, quicker than any one would suppose. 3. exspectāvit sī etc., he waited to see whether they would try to cross against his will. sē invītō is ablative absolute. On cōnārentur see § 671. 4. Abl. of Separation. See § 296. 5. cum, since. See § 643. 6. quem . . . vidēret, when the general saw him. quem is the object of vidēret; literally, whom when the general saw. This use of the relative is very common in Latin. 7. propter tē adstat, stands near you.

The Helvetii, unable to break through Cæsar's lines, follow the other route through the country of the Sequani

Illā ipsā nocte Helvētiī, aliī nāvibus aliī vadīs Rhodanī, cum omnibus cōpiīs flūmen trānsiērunt et summā vī mūnītiōnēs Rōmānās perrumpere cōnātī sunt. Sed tanta commūtātiō adventū Baculī et novārum cōpiārum facta est ut hostēs facile repellerentur et plūrimī tēlīs occiderentur aut in flūmine perīrent. Post hanc calamitātem Helvētiī adversā fortūnā superātī illō itinere sē āvertērunt et cōnstituērunt alteram viam per fīnēs Sēquanōrum sequī.

Cæsar follows them

Caesar, cum certior factus esset Helvētiōs ab illō locō profectōs esse et iam cōpiās suās per fīnēs Sēquanōrum trādūxisse, eōs cum omnibus cōpiīs secūtus est. Interim Helvētiī agrōs vāstābant et oppida expugnābant. Multae gentēs, sociī populī Rōmānī, sē ad Caesarem recipiēbant ut auxilium rogārent. Quibus rēbus adductus Caesar, neque diurnō neque nocturnō itinere intermissō, mātūrāvit.

The end of the pursuit

Dēnique propter inopiam reī frūmentāriae Caesar iter ā Helvētiīs āvertit et Bibracte, oppidum Haeduōrum maximum et cōpiōsissimum, quod nōn longē aberat, īre contendit. Quod[1] cum hostibus nūntiātum esset, Helvētiī existimābant Rōmānōs timōre perterritōs discēdere. Itaque itinere[2] conversō Rōmānōs ā novissimō agmine lacessere incipiēbant. Baculus, quī cum suīs agmen[3] claudēbat, mīsit Mārcum quī Caesarī novam hostium ratiōnem nūntiāret. Hīs rēbus cognitīs Caesar in proximō colle aciem īnstrūxit et cōpiam[4] pugnandī hostibus fēcit.

The Helvetii are defeated in a great battle

Helvētiī cum omnibus suīs carrīs secūtī impedīmenta in ūnum locum contulērunt; ipsī confertissimā aciē sub[5] prīmam aciem

1. quod cum, when this. See p. 286, l. 16, and note. 2. itinere conversō, changing their course. 3. agmen claudēbat, was bringing up the rear. 4. cōpiam . . . fēcit, gave the enemy an opportunity of fighting. 5. sub . . . successērunt, advanced close to the Roman battle front.

Rōmānōrum successērunt. Caesar hortātus suōs proelium commīsit. Mīlitēs, ē locō superiōre tēlīs missīs, facile aciem hostium perfrēgērunt. Tum gladiīs dēstrictīs in eōs impetum fēcērunt. Ab septimā hōrā ad vesperum ācriter pugnātum est, et nēmō āversum[1] hostem vidēre potuit. Tandem vulneribus dēfessī pedem rettulērunt. Hostibus superātīs, Rōmānī et impedīmenta et castra Helvētiōrum cēpērunt. Helvētiī omnium rērum inopiā adductī lēgātōs ad Caesarem mīsērunt, et, omnibus armīs trāditīs et obsidibus datīs, in dēditiōnem acceptī sunt. Praetereā Caesar iussit eōs in fīnēs suōs, unde erant profectī, revertī. Dē numerō hōrum Caesar ipse dīcit mīlia CCCLXVIII hominum domō exīsse et mīlia CX revertisse.

Baculus seriously wounded

Hōc proeliō Baculus grave vulnus accēpit. Nam cum iam plūrēs hōrās pugnātum esset et rēs[2] esset in periculō, Baculus magnā vōce clāmāns "Quis sequētur?" in mediōs hostēs sē iniēcit. Īnfēlīx autem iniquo locō vestīgia[3] nōn tenuit et graviter in terram concidit. Eum hostēs statim circumsistunt. Tum vērō cum gemitū Rōmānī ad eum servandum prōcurrunt. Dēnique, plūribus utrimque interfectīs, Baculus graviter vulnerātus ē manibus hostium ēripitur.

Baculus and Marcus return to Italy

Post proelium, cum Mārcus vulnerātō amīcō[4] adsidēret, imperātor ipse vēnit ut virum fortissimum vidēret. Postquam virtūtem eius amplissimīs verbīs laudāvit, "Brevī tempore," inquit, "mihi est in animō bellum cum Ariovistō, saevissimō rēge Germānōrum, gerere. Ille multa mīlia Germānōrum trāns Rhēnum trādūxit et sociīs populī Rōmānī gravēs iniūriās intulit. Sed sine tē, Bacule, hoc bellum gerendum erit.[5] Moneō ut in Italiam revertāris, et operam valētūdinī dēs. Post paucōs mēnsēs, ut spērō, in armīs rūrsus eris." "Mēcum itūrus est,[6] Caesar," inquit Mārcus. "Quis enim melius quam māter mea, Līvia, eum cūrāre potest?" Itaque ūsque ad proximum annum Baculus cum Mārcō et Līvia erat.

1. in flight; literally, turned away. 2. rēs . . . perīculō, the situation was critical. 3. vestīgia nōn tenuit, did not keep his footing. 4. Dative with adsidēret. See § 623. 5. gerendum erit, will have to be waged, passive periphrastic. See § 727. 6. itūrus est, he intends to go, active periphrastic. See § 726.

Baculus receives a letter from Cæsar

Initā aestāte Baculus, iam optimā valētūdine, hanc epistulam a Caesare accēpit. "Caesar Baculō salūtem dīcit. Sī valēs, bene est; ego valeō. Spērō tē integrīs vīribus parātum esse arma sūmere. Certior factus sum omnēs Belgās contrā populum Rōmānum coniūrāre. Venī ad castra et dūc tēcum Mārcum. Valē."

War with the Belgæ

Cum Baculus et Mārcus in Galliam pervenīrent, Caesar cum exercitū iam profectus erat, et, multīs gentibus superātīs, per Nerviōrum fīnēs iter faciēbat. Omnium Belgārum fortissimī Nervii erant. Incūsābant reliquōs Belgās quī sē populō Rōmānō dēdiderant, et dīcēbant sē neque lēgātōs missūrōs[1] neque ūllam condiciōnem pācis acceptūrōs.[1] Iam cum multīs sociīs adventum Rōmānōrum exspectābant.

The Nervii plan their attack

Cum Baculus et Mārcus exercitum Caesaris cōnsequerentur, castra Nerviōrum nōn longē aberant. Quīdam inimīcī Gallī, cōnsuētūdine itineris exercitūs Rōmānī perspectā, Nerviōs certiōrēs fēcerant inter[2] singulās legiōnēs impedīmentōrum magnum numerum intercēdere, et facile futūrum esse, cum prīma[3] legiō castra pōneret reliquaeque legiōnēs longē abessent, in hanc impetum facere. Hoc[4] cōnsilium Nervii exīstimāvērunt sibi nōn omittendum esse.

A desperate battle is fought

Locus, quem Rōmānī castrīs dēlēgerant, erat in summō colle quī ā quōdam flūmine nāscēbātur. Trāns flūmen hostēs in silvās sē abdiderant. Peropportūnē[5] accidit quod Caesar ratiōnem agminis mūtāverat, nec ūnam sed sex legiōnēs dūcēbat. Post eās tōtius

1. Future infinitive with esse omitted as it often is. 2. inter . . . intercēdere, between every two legions a very long baggage train intervened. 3. The first legion that reached the camp site began at once to lay it out and fortify it. 4. Hoc . . . esse, this plan the Nervii thought ought not to be left untried by them. See §§ 727, 729. 5. peropportūnē accidit quod, etc., very opportunely it happened that, etc.; the change in the order of march gave Cæsar six legions with which to meet the attack instead of only one. That fact alone saved the day for Cæsar.

exercitūs impedīmenta conlocāverat. Nervii, cum prīma impedīmenta Rōmānorum vidērent, putābant tempus exspectātum adesse. Subitō incrēdibilī celeritāte cum omnibus cōpiīs ē silvā prōvolāvērunt, et, flūmen trānsgressī, eādem celeritāte adversō[1] colle ad castra Rōmāna contendērunt. Caesarī[2] omnia ūnō tempore erant agenda: vēxillum[3] prōpōnendum, signum tubā[4] dandum, ab opere[5] revocandī mīlitēs, aciēs īnstruenda, mīlitēs hortandī, signum[6] dandum; quārum rērum magnam partem temporis brevitās et hostium celeritās impediēbant. Dīversae legiōnēs aliae[7] aliā in parte hostibus resistēbant. Undique ācerrimē pugnābātur, praesertim ā dextrō cornū. Ibi duodecima legiō, in quā Baculus ascrīptus est, ab hostibus urgēbātur. Iam omnēs ferē centuriōnēs aut vulnerātī aut occīsī erant, in hīs Baculus ipse quī tot et tam gravibus vulneribus est cōnfectus ut sē sustinēre nōn posset.

Cæsar to the rescue

In hōc discrīmine rērum Caesar, scūtō mīlitī[8] dētrāctō, quod ipse sine scūtō vēnerat, in prīmam aciem prōcessit. Imperātōris cōnspectus mīlitibus spem īnferēbat et paulum hostium impetus tardātus est. Interim reliquae legiōnēs, quae aliīs in partibus vīcerant, cum cognōvissent quō[9] in locō rēs esset, subsidium ferēbant. Denique Nervīī magnā caede superātī sunt. Post proelium Mārcus invenīrī nōn poterat. Multā autem nocte incolumis ad castra revertit; captus ab hostibus effūgit. Nec Baculus vulneribus mortuus est, sed post breve tempus arma sūmere poterat.

The twelfth legion in the Alps

Belgīs superātīs, legiō duodecima in Alpēs in oppidum quod appellābātur Octodūrus[10] hiemandī causā dūcēbatur. Hoc oppidum

1. adversō colle, up the opposite hill. 2. Dat. of agent with the passive periphrastic agenda erant. See § 729. A number of periphrastics follow with omitted auxiliary. 3. This was red in color and the signal for arming. 4. This was the signal to take their places in the ranks. 5. The work of fortifying the camp. 6. The battle signal. 7. aliae aliā in parte, some in one place, others in another. See § 505. 8. mīlitī, dat. with dētrāctō. See § 623. mīlitibus, in the next line but one, is in the same construction. 9. quō . . . esset, in what a state the situation was. See § 671. 10. See p. 49.

altissimīs montibus undique continēbātur. Galba lēgātus, quī legiōnī praeerat, Baculō[1] negōtium dedit ut hiberna mūnīret. Itaque Baculus negōtium suscipit et iubet[2] locum mūrō altō mūnīrī. Hōc opere nōndum perfectō, maxima multitūdō barbarōrum ex omnibus partibus impetum facit. Cum iam multās hōrās pugnārētur ac nōn sōlum vīrēs sed etiam tēla Rōmānōs dēficerent, Baculus et quīdam tribūnus mīlitum, vir magnae virtūtis, ad Galbam accurrunt. "Rēs est in perīculō, lēgāte," inquiunt.[3] "Ēruptiō est ūna spēs salūtis." Hōc cōnsiliō captō, mīlitēs ex castrīs subitō ērūpērunt. Hāc ēruptiōne improvīsā hostēs ita commōtī sunt ut tertiā parte interfectā reliquī fugerent. Quō proeliō factō Galba, alterum impetum timēns, incolumem legiōnem in fīnēs Allobrogum dūxit ibique hiemāvit.

A letter from Britain

Illō tempore Britannia erat Rōmānīs terra incognita. Nē Gallīs quidem erat īnsula nōta praeter eam partem quae est contrā Galliam. Multīs dē causīs Caesar īnsulam adīre cupiēbat, et quārtō annō prōcōnsulātūs profectus est. Et Baculus et Mārcus hoc iter fēcērunt. Dē hīs rēbus Mārcus hanc epistulam ad Līviam mātrem scrīpsit: "Mārcus Līviae mātrī suae salūtem plūrimam dīcit. In Britanniā Caesar castra nunc pōnit. Haec īnsula ā Galliā nōn longē abest. Nactī idōneam ad nāvigandum tempestātem tertiā ferē vigiliā[4] solvimus, et quārtā[4] hōrā diēī Britanniam attigimus. Ibi in omnibus collibus armātās hostium cōpiās cōnspēximus. Cuius locī haec erat nātūra ut[5] mare montibus angustē continērētur. Cum locus ad ēgrediendum idōneus nōn esset, circiter mīlia passuum VII ab eō locō prōgressus imperātor contrā[6] apertum et plānum lītus nāvēs cōnstituit. Sed barbarī secūtī nostrōs[7] nāvibus ēgredī prohibēre cōnābantur. Nostrī autem, altitūdine maris perterriti et illīus generis pugnandī imperītī, erant tardiōrēs,[1] cum simul dē nāvibus dēsiliendum et in fluctibus cōnsistendum et cum hostibus pugnandum esset. Tum aquilifer decimae legiōnis, vir fortissimus, sē ex nāve prōicit. 'Dēsilīte,' inquit, 'commīlitōnēs, nisi vultis aquilam hostibus prōdere,' et in hostēs aquilam ferre incipit. Simul Baculus dēsilit clamāns, 'Venīte! Venīte, Rōmānī!' Tum vērō nostrī ūniversī ex nāvibus dēsiluērunt. Pugnātum est utrimque ācriter. Dēnique, barbarīs in fugam datīs, ōram occupāmus et castra pōnimus. Haec īnsula, remōtissima terrārum, est saevissima et asperrima. Omnia sunt terribilia et perīculī plēna. Dēsīderō tē, māter cārissima. Ō quandō ego tē aspiciam! Valē."

Cæsar's sixth campaign

Sextō annō bellī Gallicī Caesar per prīmam partem aestātis in Germāniā rem gerēbat. Tum suōs in Galliam redūxit et castra in mediīs Eburōnum fīnibus posuit. Ibi impedīmenta omnium legiōnum contulit et praesidiō[2] impedimentīs ūnam legiōnem relīquit. Ipse et reliquae legiones aliī[3] aliās in partēs profectī sunt. Discēdēns monuit lēgātum ut mīlitēs in castrīs continēret.

The commanding officer, moved by the murmurs of his men who complain of being confined in camp without good cause, disregards Cæsar's advice

Plūrēs diēs post profectiōnem Caesaris lēgātus praeceptīs imperatōris summā diligentiā pāruit ac nē cālōnem quidem ex vāllō ēgredī passus est. Sed septimō diē, permōtus vōcibus[4] mīlitum quī molestē ferēbant sē, omnibus Gallīs superātīs, tam diū continērī, quīnque cohortēs et magnam multitūdinem cālōnum in agrōs proximōs frūmentandī[5] causā mīsit.

1. more backward than usual. 2. praesidiō impedīmentīs, two datives. See § 686. 3. aliī . . . partēs, some in one direction and others in another. aliī is masculine because it agrees not only with legiōnēs but also with ipse. An adjective agreeing with two or more nouns denoting persons of different genders is regularly masculine. 4. murmurs. 5. frūmentandī causā, to gather grain.

"VENĪTE! VENĪTE, RŌMANĪ!" CLĀMĀVIT BACULUS

A German force unexpectedly attacks the camp. A panic ensues

Hīs absentibus et castrīs paene sine praesidiō relictīs, duo mīlia Germānōrum imprōvīsō perveniunt et castra capere cōnantur. Ex[1] omnibus partibus hostēs castra circumveniunt. Vix Rōmānī prīmum impetum sustinent et portās dēfendunt. Omnēs perterritī sciunt neque quam in partem auxilium ferre neque quid facere dēbeant. Nūllīs dēfēnsōribus in vāllō vīsīs, barbarī crēdunt nūllum praesidium intus esse. Quā dē causā ācrius perrumpere cōnantur.

Baculus to the rescue

Baculus centuriō, cum aeger esset, cum exercitū nōn profectus est, sed in praesidiō relictus erat. Iam[2] diem quīntum cibō caruerat. Clamōre auditō, surgit et ex tabernāculo prōdit. Videt hostēs imminēre atque rem[3] esse summō in discrīmine. Capit arma a proximīs atque in portā cōnsistit. Cōnsequuntur hunc centuriōnēs eius cohortis quae in statiōne erat. Paulisper proelium sustinent. Relinquit[4] animus Baculum, gravibus acceptīs vulneribus; vix per[5] manūs trāditus servātur. Hōc spatiō interpositō, reliquī animīs cōnfīrmātīs in mūnītiōnibus cōnsistere audent speciemque dēfēnsōrum praebent. Mox mīlitēs quī ex castrīs ēgressī erant revertērunt et Germānī trāns Rhēnum sē recēpērunt. Ita virtūte Baculī castra et impedīmenta conservāta sunt.

Dē rēbus gestīs Baculī hāctenus.

1. ex omnibus partibus, on all sides. 2. Iam . . . caruerat, already for five days he had gone without food; on cibō see § 296. 3. rem . . . discrīmine, that the situation is extremely critical. 4. relinquit . . . Baculum, consciousness fails Baculus or Baculus faints. 5. per manūs trāditus, passed along from hand to hand.

Fuscus, the man of life upright and pure
Needeth nor javelin nor bow of Moor,
Nor arrows tipped with venom deadly sure,
Loading his quiver;

Whether o'er Afric's burning sands he rides,
Or frosty Caucasus' bleak mountain sides,
Or wanders lonely, where Hydaspes glides,
That storied river.

ADESTE FIDELES

(PORTUGUESE HYMN)

The words are by an unknown author of the seventeenth century. The tune, which is found in most of our hymnals, is generally ascribed to John Reading, who died in 1692. The name "Portuguese Hymn" comes from the melody's having been first used in the chapel of the Portuguese embassy in London. A translation under the title "O come, all ye Faithful" was made by F. Oakeley (1841).

GAUDEAMUS

The second and third stanzas of this famous student song were known as early as 1267. The melody in its present form dates back to about the middle of the eighteenth century.

Gau-de-a-mus i-gi-tur, Iu-ve-nes dum su-mus;
U-bi sunt, qui an-te nos In mun-do fu-e-re?
Vi-ta nos-tra bre-vis est, Bre-vi fi-ni-e-tur;
Post iu-cun-dam iu-ven-tu-tem, Post mo-les-tam se-nec-tu-tem,
Tran-se-as ad su-pe-ros, A-be-as ad in-fe-ros,
Ve-nit mors ve-lo-ci-ter, Ra-pit nos a-tro-ci-ter,
Nos ha-be-bit hu-mus, Nos ha-be-bit hu-mus.
Quos si vis vi-de-re, Quos si vis vi-de-re.
Ne-mi-ni par-ce-tur, Ne-mi-ni par-ce-tur.

Let us now in youth rejoice,
None can justly blame us;
For when golden youth has fled,
And in age our joys are dead,
Then the dust doth claim us,
Then the dust doth claim us.

Where have all our fathers gone?
Here we'll see them never;
Seek the gods' serene abode —
Cross the dolorous Stygian flood —
There they dwell forever,
There they dwell forever.

Brief is this our life on earth,
Brief — nor will it tarry —
Swiftly death runs to and fro,
All must feel his cruel blow,
None the dart can parry,
None the dart can parry.

What can you say about the mood and tense of the English verb in an indirect statement? What are the three marked differences between an English and a Latin indirect statement? What kind of verbs are followed by indirect statements? Give an English indirect statement and translate it into Latin. What is an indirect question? Give an example of an English indirect question and translate it into Latin.

803. Derivation. Give ten English words related to the Latin words in § 798. Define them and illustrate each by an English sentence. How are abstract nouns formed from adjectives? Illustrate. Explain the meaning and formation of cupidus. What is the force of the suffix -ōsus? of the suffixes -ilis, -bilis? What rule can you give for the spelling of English words ending in -able or -ible? in -tion or -sion?

SUMMARY OF RULES OF SYNTAX

Agreement

1. The verb agrees with its subject in person and number (§ 48).
2. A predicate noun agrees with the subject in case (§ 61).
3. An appositive agrees in case with the noun which it explains (§ 104).
4. Adjectives agree with their nouns in gender, number, and case (§ 91).
5. The relative agrees with its antecedent in gender and number, but its case is determined by its use in its own clause (§ 390).

Nominative Case

6. The subject of a finite verb is in the nominative (§ 33).

Genitive Case

7. The word denoting the owner or possessor of something is in the genitive (§ 34).
8. The possessive genitive often stands in the predicate and is connected with its noun by a form of the verb sum (§ 150).

Dative Case

9. The indirect object of a verb is in the dative (§ 58).
10. The dative of the indirect object is used with the intransitive verbs crēdō, faveō, noceō, pāreō, persuādeō, resistō, studeō, and others of like meaning (§ 224).
11. The dative is used with adjectives to denote the object toward which the given quality is directed. Such are those meaning near, also fit, friendly, pleasing, like, and their opposites (§ 130).

Accusative Case

12. The direct object of a transitive verb is in the accusative (§ 35).
13. The subject of the infinitive is in the accusative (§ 368).

Ablative Case

14. Cause is denoted by the ablative, usually without a preposition (§ 165).
15. Means is denoted by the ablative without a preposition (§ 166).
16. Accompaniment is denoted by the ablative with cum (§ 167).
17. Manner is denoted by the ablative with cum. Cum may be omitted if an adjective is used with the ablative (§ 168).
18. The place from which is expressed by the ablative with the prepositions ā (ab), dē, ē (ex) (§ 295).
19. Words expressing separation or taking away are followed by the ablative, often with the prepositions ā (ab), dē, ē (ex) (§ 296).
20. The ablative with the preposition ā or ab is used with passive verbs to indicate the person by whom the act is performed (§ 261).
21. The ablative of a noun and a participle, a noun and an adjective, or two nouns may be used in the absolute construction to denote attendant circumstances (§ 400).

Infinitive used as in English

22. The verbs iubeō, command; cupiō, wish; vetō, forbid, and the like are often followed by an infinitive clause as object (§ 367).
23. Verbs of incomplete predication are often followed by an infinitive (§ 369).

Genitive Case

1. A genitive denoting the whole is used with words denoting a part, and is known as the genitive of the whole, or the partitive genitive (§ 541).
2. The adjectives cupidus, desirous; perītus, skilled; imperītus, ignorant, and others of similar character are followed by the objective genitive (§ 554).
3. The genitive or the ablative, with a modifying adjective, is used in expressions of quality or description (§ 562).

Dative Case

4. Some verbs compounded with ad, ante, con, dē, in, inter, ob, post, prae, prō, sub, and super take the dative of the indirect object (§ 623).
5. The dative is used to denote the purpose or end for which, often with another dative denoting the person or thing affected (§ 686).

Accusative Case

6. The place to which is expressed by ad or in with the accusative (§ 481).
7. Duration of time and extent of space are expressed by the accusative (§ 547).
8. Verbs of making, choosing, calling, and the like may take a predicate accusative along with the direct object. With the passive voice the two accusatives become nominatives (§ 684).

Ablative Case

9. With comparatives and words implying comparison the ablative is used to denote the measure of difference (§ 452).
10. The place from which is expressed by ā or ab, dē, ē or ex, with the ablative (§ 482; cf. § 295).
11. The place at or in which is expressed by the ablative with in (§ 483).
12. The time when or within which anything happens is expressed by the ablative without a preposition (§ 493).
13. The ablative is used to denote in what respect something is true (§ 552).

Moods and Tenses of Verbs

14. In a complex sentence a primary tense of the indicative in the principal clause is followed by a primary tense of the subjunctive in the dependent clause, and a secondary by a secondary (§ 595).
15. A clause expressing purpose takes the subjunctive (§ 588).
16. Verbs denoting a purpose or desire that something be done are followed by a subjunctive clause as object, introduced by ut or nē (§ 602).
17. Clauses of result are introduced by ut (negative ut nōn) and have the verb in the subjunctive (§ 616).
18. Object clauses of result introduced by ut (negative ut nōn) are found after verbs of effecting or bringing about (§ 618).
19. Cum means when, since, or although, and takes the subjunctive except in a temporal or descriptive clause of present or future time (§ 643).

20. When a direct statement becomes indirect, the principal verb is changed to the infinitive and its subject nominative becomes subject accusative of the infinitive (§ 654).

21. A present indicative of a direct statement becomes present infinitive of the indirect, a past indicative becomes perfect infinitive, and a future indicative becomes future infinitive (§ 656).

22. The accusative-with-infinitive construction in indirect statements is found after verbs of saying, telling, knowing, thinking, and perceiving (§ 657).

23. In an indirect question the verb is in the subjunctive, and its tense is determined by the rule for the sequence of tenses (§ 671).

SERMONETA

Sermoneta is a characteristic hill town of Italy. The picture gives a good idea of Italian scenery. The country is very mountainous, and south of the valley of the Po there are few large plains. Note the great grove of olive trees covering the slopes below Sermoneta. Olives were as important to ancient as they are to modern Italy; but the Romans of Cæsar's time had neither oranges nor lemons
